OREGON BUILDING IS MOST SUBSTANTIAL OF ALL AT EXPOSITION

OTHER STATE STRUCTURES DESCRIBED—INMATE VIEWS ARE GIVEN.

W. E. Meacham Writes of Panama-Pacific Fair—New York Has Elaborate Building Costing Over $700,000—Room Where You Do Not Feel at Home.

(By W. E. Meacham)
San Francisco, March 22, 1915.
We have told you that the Oregon building was the most distinctive, substantial and unique building on the exposition grounds and now we are going to tell you briefly of the state buildings and let you draw your own conclusions.

We will commence with California which has the largest and most elaborate building on the grounds.

It is built on the old Spanish mission style and covers five acres of ground. Two million dollars were spent on the building and exhibits. It has a splendid location overlooking the bay and has elaborate reception rooms, dance hall and each county has tried to outdo the other in the beauty of its exhibits. All of the state's resources are splendidly shown and excites the wonder and admiration of all visitors. Close to the California building is the New York building. It is an elaborate building consists of a restaurant and rest rooms in which you do not feel at home. It cost over $700,000.

Adjoining the Oregon building is the New Jersey building which is a reproduction of the Trenton barracks. Pennsylvania has reproduced Independence hall.

Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and West Virginia have pleasant restrooms but no exhibits. Illinois has reproduced its capitol building and has portraits, letters and memoirs of Lincoln.

Virginia reproduces Mt. Vernon with interesting relics of Washington. Maryland has a rest room and portraits and memoirs of its famous men and women.

Massachusetts has a reproduction of old Boston state house with rest rooms and tea room in connection.

Washington has a small exhibit and has Ezra Meeker's famous oxen and wagon and Meeker himself as an attraction.

North Dakota has a fine exhibit of corn, grains and grasses and articles made in its state institutions. Nevada and Arkansas have rest rooms but no exhibits.

Texas has reproduced the Alamo. Utah has a rest room and relief maps of its largest mines. Indiana has a neat and comfortable rest room and an extensive library.

Ohio has a reproduction of its state capitol. Idaho has a pleasant rest room and a creditable school display.

These buildings are all made out of the regular exposition material and differ only in architecture. The Oregon building stands out distinct and alone in architecture, material and beauty. Built of Oregon wood, with its fore-eight great fir columns six feet in diameter and forty feet in length surrounding it, it has an appearance of stability that none other possesses.

It is 150x250 feet and over a half million feet of lumber was used in its construction.

The main exhibit hall is on the ground floor and is 45x145 feet in size. Eastern Oregon, southern Oregon, Willamette valley, Coos and Curry counties have booths 10x50 feet in which are displayed the products of the soil. The publicity booth is in the center of the building and is made of polished wood from the county. In one corner is located the moving picture show in which is shown daily Oregon views. On the balcony is located the school exhibit, art exhibit, lunch room and sleeping quarters for the guards.

A large rest room is located in the east end of the building with a piano, spacious fire place and comfortable settees for the comfort and enjoyment of visitors.

The building commands a splendid view of the bay where the battleships Oregon, Maryland and Colorado are all anchored and where the great ocean going vessels are seen coming and going daily.

North of the main building on the bay shore is located the building in which is shown a reproduction of the Columbia river from The Dalles to the sea and where Oregon birds and squirrels are kept.

The tallest flag pole in the world, 251 feet high, made from one Oregon tree, stands close to the building and flies a flag 35x49 feet.

One thing that impresses you is the homelike air of the place in marked contrast to some of the eastern states, particularly New York. The whole idea of the building is to make visitors feel at home and to call their attention to the wonderful resources and possibilities of our state. We believe that we will succeed in this and that visitors will leave with a good impression of our great state.

We admire a good talker who knows when to shut up.

DARING AVIATOR HAS SALARY INCREASED TO THIRTEEN CENTS A DAY

THAT IS FOR DAYS HE DOES NOT FLY—FLYING DAYS HE GETS 70 CENTS.

Pegoud Also Advanced in Rank to Adjutant—Famous Frenchman in Aviation Corps is Entirely Satisfied With His Recompense—Services Recognized by government.

PARIS, March 15.—(By Mail to New York.)—Pegoud—he who first looped the loop—has just had his salary increased to 13 cents a day. This is for the days he doesn't fly. When he flies all day he will get from now on 70 cents a day. On all days—whether he flies or not—he will hereafter be known as Adjutant Pegoud instead of just plain sergeant.

This is the extent of the recompense—and he is more than satisfied with it—which Pegoud has just received for the most brilliant aerial exploit accomplished by any aviator since the beginning of the war. Pegoud attacked and brought to earth three German aviators in one day.

Under the rigid restrictions of the French army, in which Pegoud is mobilized the same as the most ordinary soldier, he has not even been allowed to talk of this exploit for publication. Only his plain report to his aerial chief has been made public. In it he says:

"While reconnoitering above C-B, I discovered a Taube coming in my direction. I charged and at a distance of 50 meters opened fire with my machine gun. The Taube made a semi-circle and I pursued while my gunner kept the mitrailleuse pouring in a hail of fire without let-up. After a moment of pursuit the Taube made a long glide on its left wing, and fell completely enveloped in flames and smoke from its burning wings.

"A little later in the same region I discovered two more aviators over M.—I at once attacked the one nearer to me. At the first hail of fire from my machine gun the aviator tipped. I then charged vertically, my gunner never for an instant ceasing his fire. A moment later I distinctly saw the aviator as he was struck and in another instant he had plunged into space.

"Instantly I brought my machine to a horizontal position. We were then at a height of 1500 meters, and I at once started upwards after the second aviator. When still 40 meters below him we opened fire. He replied with an automatic rifle and the combat continued for 50 seconds. Then, struck by our fire, he began falling. I again charged vertically by means of a volplane, keeping our mitrailleuse at work, until with both of his wings pierced and crumpled by our fire, he too plunged into space."

Sergeant Paul Marchand, a reservist from Centille, is believed to have acquired the world's records for wounds. He boasts 197.

Marchand was first wounded in the head on September 17. He was badly hit but insisted on staying in the ranks. The next day he was fighting from the inside of the church at Caumont when it was bombarded. One of the first shells laid him out helpless and from then on till the close of the day he could do nothing but lie on his back with the shells bursting over him almost every moment. He has lost the sight of both eyes and one finger of his right hand but otherwise is still fairly able bodied.

German Prisoners Drown. BELLE ISLE EN MER, France, March 25.—Seven German prisoners of war were drowned here.

A severe storm was raging on the coast and they went down to the beach to watch the breakers. They took up a position on a large oscillating rock. The big waves started the stone swaying and the men were thrown into the sea.

Mouse Aids Police in Raid. MINNEAPOLIS, March 27.—When a little gray mouse, unaided, turned failure into success in a police raid on a house at 1111 Second street S., the police decided to have a corps of police mice and to drop the request for police dogs.

After Emil Lundberg of Oshosh, Wis., had reported that he was robbed of $5 in the house where he had rented a room, the south side police raided the place. Save for the furniture the house was vacant. A search revealed no persons who might be charged with an offense.

While the police took a last look at the basement a big pile of rags suddenly moved. Two women leaped out, screamed and ran to the police, imploring help. Then the little gray

Frye, the American ship which was sunk by the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, the United States government will send to Germany in a few days a note asking for reparation for the loss of the vessel and cargo and expression of regret for the occurrence.

The German government has not given the state department any intimation as yet as to the course it will pursue.

mouse darted out and scampered back of a pile of other rubbish. The women, still trembling when they were locked up at central police station, not because of the charge but because of the remembrance of the mouse.

Alice Stuart was charged with keeping a resort and Minnie Burton was charged with being found there. Both are colored.
