"OMAR, THE TENTMAKER"
There is every indication at the box office of the Oregon Theatre that a capacity audience will be in attendance Friday evening, May 7th to welcome Guy Bates Post in "Omar, the Tentmaker." This is the third play of an elaborate nature by Mr. Tully to score a sensational success, its predecessors being "The Bird of Paradise" and "The Rose of the Rancho," both of which are pleasurable recalled by all theatergoers.

Pictorially, "Omar, the Tentmaker" is an epoch-making achievement, and has established a new high water mark for lavish and picturesque stage adornment in this country. Nothing more beautiful than the succession of magnificent Oriental pictures disclosed during the performance has ever graced the local stage. With infinite fidelity the producer, Mr. Tully himself, has succeeded in reproducing the fascinating charm and allurements of old-Persia. The colorful life of the narrow streets with their huddled, silk-laden bazaars, quaint taverns and busy potter's shops has been faithfully depicted, while by way of restful contrast a rose-bowered, bird-filled garden at sunset is transferred intact to the stage.

In weaving a play around the life, time and Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, the beloved Persian poet of the eleventh century, Mr. Tully has laid particular stress upon the enchanting love episodes which play an all-important part in the engraving career of the "sweet singer of red-wine and the rose." With the interest in Omar's love-life constantly maintained, Mr. Tully has also introduced a compact series of thrilling escapades, sudden deaths, high sacrifices, deep plotings and poetic reveries that are calculated to evoke enthusiasm from even the most casual theatergoer. The lovers of the Rubaiyat—whose numbers are legion wherever the English language is spoken, note with delight that many of the most popular of Khayyam's quatrains are naturally introduced during the course of the play's dialogue.

Goshen Votes on Local Option.
GOSHEN, Ind., May 4.—The drags went to the polls today in an attempt to demonstrate that since 1913 they have gained more than thirty-two votes on the wet element. The election today followed the stiffest sort of a campaign on both sides, due largely to the close result in 1913 when the wets won by thirty two votes.

VERDICT OF MURDER IS FOUND AGAINST LAWSON

NOTED LABOR LEADER WILL SPEND REMAINDER OF DAYS IN PRISON.

TRINIDAD, Colo., May 4.—John R. Lawson, noted labor leader was condemned to spend the remainder of his life at hard labor in the Colorado penitentiary. He was found guilty of first-degree murder in connection with the death of John Nimmo, a deputy sheriff, killed in a strike battle October 25, 1914. Under the Colorado statute, making it the duty of the jury to fix the penalty at death or life imprisonment, the jury in the district court fixed the milder punishment.

Lawson sat immovable as the jury filed in the courtroom. There was only a sprinkling of spectators. Judge Granby Hillyer had announced luncheon recess until 2 o'clock, and it was not quite that hour when the jury reported.

Silence Tense as Jury Reports.
In the midst of a tense silence the clerk asked:

"Gentlemen, have you reached a verdict?"

The foreman replied, then handed the written verdict to the clerk, who passed it to the judge.

Lawson sat beside his counsel, his eyes fixed on the jury.

Judge Hillyer glanced at the verdict, then handed it back to Bowdery Floyd, the clerk. The clerk read aloud:

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree and fix the penalty at life imprisonment."

A picture was made at a mine near Charleroi, and shows several young women "trammers" running the laden cars from the mouth of the mine to the dump. It is alleged that every able-bodied Belgian man is either wounded, captured or with King Albert's army, and the Germans are forcing the girls to perform manual labor.

The Fool and His Money

That old proverb might be revised to read:

"The man who never reads advertising is soon parted from his money."

Of course, there are not many such—but such as are belong to the great army of the uninformed.

It is the man who knows what he wants and who sells it at lowest price that gets the most for his money.

He reads advertising in newspapers like this and is proud of it.

He likes to buy with knowledge.
