Rheumatism? Here Are Some Real Facts

How to Overcome the Torture Without Harmful Drugs.

A legion of people have used S. S. S. and have overcome the worst forms of rheumatism. This disease of the blood is little understood because of its strange symptoms, scarcely two people having it exactly alike. And yet, no matter what its form or how painful and distressing, S. S. S. seems to have almost a divine influence in driving it out, ridding the system from pain and clearing the joints and muscles so they work without restraint. The best explanation for this happy result is the fact that in S. S. S. are certain ingredients which act as an antidote. They are nature's providence to man. Just as the meats, fats, salts and sugars of our daily food provide us with nourishment, so does S. S. S. give to the blood the exact medicinal requirement to clear the stream, drive out impurities and reconstruct the body if destructive germs have gained a foothold. Go to any drug store today and get a bottle of S. S. S. It will do you good. But be sure to refuse any and all substitutes. And if yours is a stubborn case, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 100 South Ridge, Atlanta, Ga. This department is presided over by a physician proud of his name by virtue of his distinguished family and a foremost doctor on his own merits.

Husband 15 Years a Drunkard. Charging that for 15 years her husband, William E. Kemp, has been a confirmed drunkard and has contributed almost nothing to the support of his family and declaring his company is repulsive to her, Nettie Kemp has brought suit in the local court for a divorce and for the custody of their 17 year old daughter. The couple were married in Antelope in September, 1907. W. M. Peterson is plaintiff's attorney. The defendant is alleged to be in Marion county.

Bootlegger is Convicted. F. E. O'Neil was yesterday afternoon convicted in police court of selling liquor to Indians and was given the usual sentence of $50 fine or 20 days in jail. Like most bootleggers he had not the wherewithal to pay his fine. George Askey, the other alleged peddler of bad booze, has not yet stood trial.

In their lodge room they served coffee and lunches and extended an invitation not only to the visiting Masons, but to all of their friends.

Umatilla Ball Team Wins. The baseball diamond was the center of attraction during the afternoon. At 3:30 the Umatilla and Pendleton teams began a contest that sent the crowd into enthusiasm for it was close from first to last. As was fitting and proper however, the Umatilla boys pulled out a victory by the score of 8 to 7.

Shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening the flagship "Undine" and the U. S. engineer's boat "Asotin" have into sight from up river, the black smoke issuing from their stacks and their whistles blowing. Arriving off Umatilla they described some pretty maneuvers before tying up alongside the "Annie Cumings" which was waiting to take the Umatilla crowd aboard.

The distinguished visitors aboard the boats disembarked at once and were officially greeted and soon afterwards the celebrators were swarming over the boats on a trip of inspection.

The Pendleton special train, which carried nearly 150 people and a brass band when it left Pendleton and which picked up more people at every stop, arrived about 7:30 and was greeted by Mayor E. E. Starcher and the committee.

The most picturesque part of the Umatilla celebration was the attack on old Fort Umatilla by Indians. An old building, resembling an early-day blockhouse, had been built on the open land above town and about 8:30 the crowd gathered to witness the reproduction of pioneer warfare. Big brush fires illuminated the scene so brightly that a moving picture operator was able to grind out a film.

A lone sentry was first seen making his rounds, two creeping figures were descried approaching him, there was a short struggle before the guard was overpowered and this was followed by the dreaded warwhoop which was the signal for a general attack. On foot and on horseback the Indians appeared, their rifles cracking rapidly and being answered by flashes from the fort. There was more than one old timer present to whom the sound of those war cries and the sight of the attack brought back memories of thrilling moments. "I can remember when we didn't stand and applaud when we heard those cries," said one veteran who came to this country when it was young. There were several grizzled Indians, too, who watched the scene and who perhaps thought of the days when such attacks were real.

At the climax, the Indians set fire to the fort just as a band of cowboys appeared with swinging lariats and drove the redskins away. The spectacle was a very pretty one and was witnessed by several thousand people.

"On With the Dance." From 9 o'clock on dancing in an open air pavilion not far from the moored boats was the principal amusement and it was enjoyed by several hundred people. The United Orchestra from Pendleton furnished the music and were kept at their task until well long in the morning, waltzes and two-steps following one another in rapid succession with an occasional foxtrot thrown in.

At intervals throughout the evening skyrockets shot upward the sky and exploded myriads of beautiful fire-balls out over the broad Columbia and other fireworks helped to contribute to the celebration.

By 11 o'clock some of the celebrators began seeking their berths on the boats but some did not go to bed at all. In the cool gray morning at 5:30 o'clock the boats pulled out of the Umatilla harbor and the celebration at Umatilla was over. Today Umatilla is a deserted village, all of her guests departed and many of her own townspeople having gone on down the river.

The "Annie Cumings," which had been decked in green boughs, was filled to its capacity by the Umatilla county crowd and some had to be taken aboard the Undine. So enthusiastic did the celebrators become last evening that they engaged the United Orchestra at the last moment to accompany the Umatillas down the river.

Most Old People Are Constipated

The wear of years imparts the action of the bowels. With advancing age people are disposed to repress activity and exercise, which is responsible for the constipated condition of most old folks. The digestive organs are more sensitive to the demands made upon them and rebel more quickly.

A mild, effective remedy for constipation, and one that is especially suited to the needs of elderly people, women and children, is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.
