OPEN DAYS.
Now is the time when the cool, gray road, the open road is calling.
With the many sounds of the shady woods and music of water falling.
And the broad skies with the warm air and the birds on fall spread wings.
With the dark woods defiled with the melody of spring-time whispings.
Oh this is the time when the road's sifian with mellow, tender sunshine.
From the open bud to the fresh-plowed field, the air is like wondrous wine.
Ah, now the road calls for the long walks as the winter disappears.
And the heart sings with love of earth and the gift of these splendid years.
—Harold Hersey.

USING THE OPEN RIVER

Now that the Celilo canal is completed, make use of it," is the advice given the people of the northwest.
It is sound advice for the open river will not produce the benefits of which it is capable unless the proper efforts are put forth to build up river commerce.
In order to make the river effective as a rate reducer it will be necessary to have roads to the river and boats that can handle freight at low cost from here to tidewater.

There are people who think that with up-to-date methods of handling freight it will be possible to carry wheat from river points in this section to Portland for a cent a bushel. Such a reduction seems unbelievable at present but it may come to pass.

The subject is worthy of earnest attention. Every step towards bringing the river into effective use is a move for the economic prosperity of the inland empire and is particularly for the benefit of the producer.

The transportation tax is the heaviest tax we pay and the surest way to cut freight charges is to play the river against the railroad. Such competition is remorseless and sure. Rates that are reduced by such processes never go into the courts and they are never raised.

Yet the use of the river does not mean antagonism to the railroads. Not in the slightest. It is merely the application of common sense to a problem of general importance. It is following nature and no course could be sounder. Railroad dividends will not be hurt because our roads are transcontinental roads. If they don't make their profits where they have to compete with waterways they make their profits from other sections of the country less blessed than ours. We of the interior have for years been paying for the terminal rate privileges enjoyed by certain big coast cities. We are now in a more favored position and we will be dull if we don't do everything possible to secure what is open to us.
God helps those who help themselves.

FACTS AND COURT DECISIONS

EIGHT years ago the Court of Appeals of New York state decided that a law prohibiting night work for women was unconstitutional. The court then said that "an adult female is not to be regarded as a ward of the state, nor in any other light than the man is regarded when the question relates to the business pursuit or calling." The same court has now approved an act similar to the one it condemned eight years ago. The court now asserts that "it is a matter of vital importance to the state that the health of thousands of women working in factories should be protected and safeguarded from any drain which can reasonably be avoided." This is true, declares the court, not only for the sake of the woman workers themselves, but for the future good of the race.

This radical reversal of opinion by a high tribunal which has been severely criticized for its attitude in the past toward workmen's compensation acts and similar progressive legislation requires explanation. It is forthcoming in an article in the Survey by Abram I. Elkus. He shows that the opinion in the first night work case may be attributed to the lack of facts sustaining the act under review by the court. Prior to the enactment of the second measure there was a searching investigation by a state commission of facts and conditions relating to work by women. The legislature was thus put in possession of a mass of information showing the injury resulting from the performance of night work by women. The Court of Appeals took account of this situation when it upheld the second act.

Here is striking evidence of the facts that courts often may be unjustly criticized for the course taken by them with respect to legislation intended to relieve harmful conditions among unfortunate groups of society—so called "social" legislation. Pertinent facts are quite as necessary to establish the constitutionality of this type of legislation as they are in securing right decisions in any other class of cases. It is unfair to the courts—which find themselves hampered by many limitations—to censure them for adverse opinions in cases that have been improperly or insufficiently presented.—Chicago News.

The people who will gain the most from the open river will be Mr. Wheat, Mrs. Sugar, Mrs. Canned Corn and others of that large coterie.

Umatilla county helped the Celilo celebration by sending the fairest ladies and the most gallant admiral, J. F. Robinson.

Gosy Theatre News

Ship Dynamited for Picture.
In one scene of "The Quest," five part Mutual Masterpicture, a steamer is seen burning at sea. Dynamite in large quantities causes numerous explosions which set the ship ablaze and it is burnt to the water's edge. When all hope is given up Harry Pollard flings himself from the burning deck into the sea and swims to a broken mast. The floats him till he is washed ashore on an island belonging to a lost tribe. Then he has some astonishing adventures "The Quest" will be shown at this theater on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.—(As advertised in the Saturday Evening Post.)

The Last House.
A thrilling rescue from the roof of a burning building. A clever ruse of a wide-awake reporter; high power automatic rifles in action right in the streets of the city, are but a few of the many exciting scenes you will witness in this majestic master production. You'll love the beautiful heroine, Miss Lillian Gish. You'll hate the designing villains and you'll be glad you saw the picture. (As advertised in the Saturday Evening Post.) Written by Richard Harding Davis.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAM.
Winning Back.
Two part Broncho feature.
Your Baby and Mine.
A comedy number that is very amusing. Mrs. Mackley, Baldy Belmont and Mae Gaston figure in the cast.

His Return.
An exceptionally good one reel drama which has been developed with a pretty colonial atmosphere. Miriam Cooper, Elmer Clifton and Harold Gay play the leads.
Fatty's Chance Acquaintance.
Keystone comedy featuring Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle. A laugh producer.

Now for a library building of which Pendleton will be proud. You won't know Pendleton a year from now.

The next biggest town of its size in the world is little old Umatilla.

Japan and China may stage a war in the east so as to offset the big excitement in Europe.

The "midnight resolution" does not look so well when exhibited in the daylight.

Governor Withycombe says build roads to the river.

A DIFFERENT BOY.
An interesting event occurred in the household of a scientific gentleman who is a member of one of Uncle Sam's chemical bureaus in Washington.

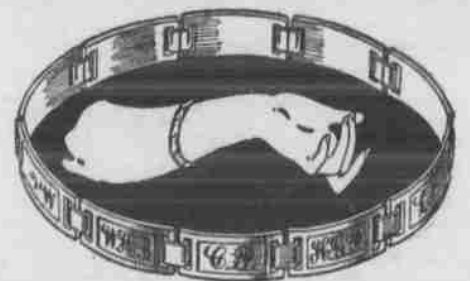

The gentleman himself was hard at work in his home laboratory when the news was brought to him.

"It's a boy," quietly announced the physician, as he stopped on the threshold.

"All right, all right," muttered the absent-minded chemist as he bent over his work. "Er—oh—ask him what he wants, won't you?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

A thornless rose would not impress one very deeply.
