Austrians Forced to Retire After Sharp Engagement---Austrian Port Shelled by Destroyer. TWO OF THE ENEMY KILLED

Much Damage Is Done by Italian Shells Which Wreck a Military Barracks—47 Prisoners Are Taken —Details Lacking of Naval Fight in the Adriatic Sea,

ROME, May 25 .- The first land engagement involving any great num-ber of troops in the Italian and Austrian war was announced by the war office today. Italian cavalry crossed the border in the Isonso district and attacked a strong Austrian outpost. The Austrians were forced to retire after a sharp engagement

An Italian destroyer shelled the harbor of Porto Buso, Austria, inflicting heavy damage. Two of the enemy were killed.

A motorboat flotilla was sunk and the quay and landing stage and a military barracks were destroyed, it was officially stated. The destroyer withdrew after taking 47 'prisoners, including one officer and 15 non-commissioned officers. The enemy lost two killed during bombardment. There were no casualties aboard the destroyer which carried the prisoners to Venice.

Unconfirmed reports were circulated of an engagement along the Adige river near Rivola. The Austrians were declared to have shelled Italian outposts without casualties.
