Senior Class Prophecy Takes Gentle Raps at Class Members

Humorous prophecies of the future of the members of the graduating class of the high school were made at the class day exercises in dialogue between Miss Lois Hampton (now Mrs. Carg Owen) and Charles Russell. Their dialogue ran about as follows:

C.—Well, for the love of mud, if it isn't Lois, I haven't seen you for 20 years.

L.—Well, Charlie, where have you been all this time? I haven't seen you since our graduation.

C.—And the time of the senior play.

L.—Oh, yes, that senior play. Wasn't it grand?

C.—By the way, what became of the ones that took part in that play? Hazel Wyrick for instance.

L.—Why, Hazel is a great suffragette. Her hunger strikes are more widely known than those of Mrs. Pankhurst ever were.

C.—And Hester Proctor, the leading lady?

L.—I was reading not long ago of her settlement work in Chicago. You know she has taken Jane Addams' place. But what do you know about Ruth Terpening? Why she became a great opera singer and is now in the Cosy theater.

C.—Well! Well! Ruth always did like to sing. That reminds me, I saw Gladys Brownfield on the stage in New York with a long string of admirers waiting for her at the stage door.

L.—That just suits her. But what became of that little white headed fellow, Russell Holder?

C.—Oh, he became a missionary to China after winning Carrie Ferguson from our great debater. She does the work and he takes the credit for it.

L.—That certainly was like him.

C.—But Clarence Bean, our student body president, what of him? Did he marry Helen Raymond?

L.—No, they were never married. He is now Justice of the Peace at Ukiah with Joe Coleworthy as his assistant.

C.—Well, well, I surely expected greater things of those two. But how about Irvin Mann, our class president?

L.—Do you remember how he and Fay Duff used to be always together and how it was rumored that they were to be married as soon as school was out?

C.—Yes.

L.—Well, they never did marry. Irvin was an old bachelor for a long time and then Edith Power, who had never succeeded in capturing any one else, led him to the altar.

C.—But Fay?

L.—Well, she was secretary to the governor of Oregon for a number of years and try as she might she never got married. But by any chance have you seen Leland Mentzer?

C.—He is in New York, professor of manual training. And do you know, while on a visit to him I saw Claire McDonald, chef in one of New York's largest cafes.

L.—Claire a chef? But not more surprising than Myrtle Ross and the boarding house she keeps in Walla Walla. They say she serves fine meals but no longer cares for her personal appearance.

C.—Strange, but I saw Vivian Ca-

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" For Tender, Puffed-up, Burning, Calloused Feet and Corns.

"Sure! I use 'TIZ' every time for any foot trouble."

You can be happy-footed just like me. Use "TIZ" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "TIZ" and only "TIZ" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "TIZ" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "TIZ" is grand. "TIZ" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

STANFIELD WINS 14 INNING GAME FROM PENDLETON 4 TO 2

There hasn't been such excitement at Round-up Park since Red Barker rode Long Tom to a finish. Imagine three hours and a half of baseball game with the unexpected happening every now and then and with every minute threatening to bring about a crisis such as might decide the neck-and-neck affair and you will get some idea of the nature of that 14-inning contest yesterday afternoon won by Stanfield, 4 to 2.

It was by all odds the most exciting game seen here this year. Even when it seemed all over, it took a new start several times. In the ninth with the score 2 to 1 for Stanfield, two down, none on and two strikes on the batter, the fans had almost deserted the grandstand when something happened that injected hope into the situation. And then something else happened that increased that hope and then something else that made it materialize into reality. This reality was a score that tied up the game and caused it to go into five extra agonizing innings.

The battle early resolved itself into a pitchers' duel with McGarrigle for Pendleton and Harlan for Stanfield twirling as well as their whole careers heretofore. Neither could be touched effectively for in-ning after inning and each pulled himself out of some desperate holes. Harlan, however, proved to have the more endurance, three hits in a row off McGarrigle in the fourteenth breaking up the long fray.

It was big Jim Campbell who came through with the deciding poke much to the delight of his rooting wife who was one of the features of the afternoon. She matched her voice and wits with a score of Pendleton men in the grandstand and she never lost in the exchange.

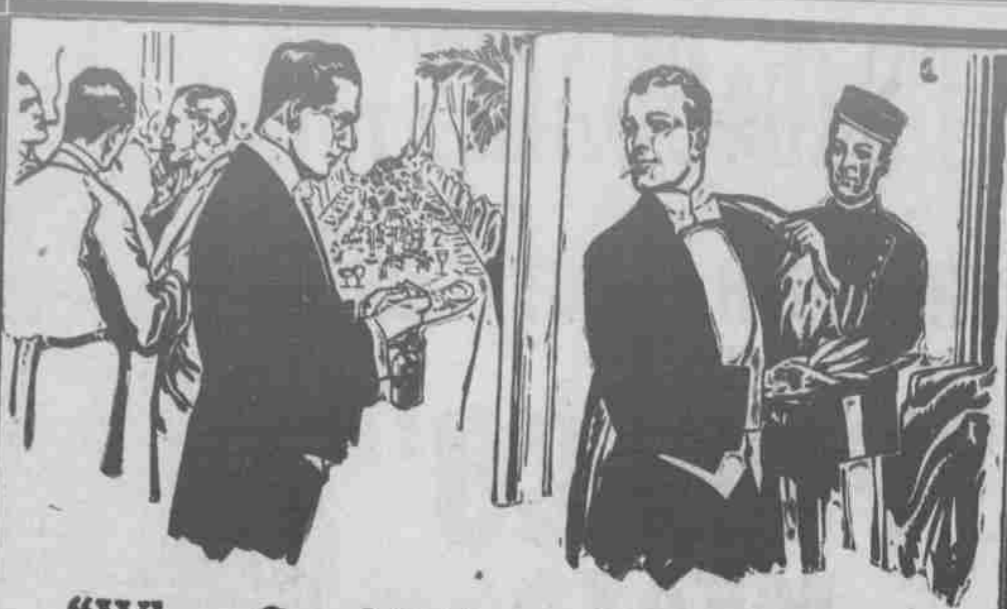

Both pitchers began with a wildness that almost spelled defeat. An error, a walk and a pitched ball in the slots filled the bases for Stanfield but McGarrigle was able to save himself. Harlan had not so much luck, however. He walked Nelson and Varian and, when Webb got on by the error route, the bases were filled with only one down. Dickson breezed, but Stranahan laid the ball down toward first and Fred Hoskins mused it up sufficiently to allow all hands to advance a base. This gave the Bucks a lead which they held until the sixth when Charlie Hoskins made the circuit and tied it up. He singled and stole second and, on an infield out, went to third, drawing a bad peg which enabled him to amble home.

It was still 1 to 1 when the ninth came up. F. Markham opened with a single and Stubbs followed with a two-sacker to right. Markham was cut off at the plate but Stubbs drew a throw in going to third, said throw being bad and permitting a score that seemingly was to give the westenders the game.

In the last of the ninth the first two men up were easy outs. Roscoe Vaughan was put in to pinch for Collins. After swinging vainly twice, the game seemed all over but the next ball connected with Vaughan's anatomy and gave him life at first. He started to steal second with the ball in Harlan's hands and was thrown out. The teams started to leave the field but Empire Cox called them back, ruling that Harlan had made a balk. This put Vaughan on second and, when Chuck McGarrigle, pounded the ball through third base for two sacks, Vaughan registered and then the real excitement started.

Several times before the fourteenth it looked like the end was at hand but each time sensational work staved off defeat. The Bucks got a single and a double in the tenth but it brought them nothing. Charlie Hoskins opened the eleventh with a hit that bounded through the wire fence. The ground rules permitted three bases but the runner reached home and his mates tried to argue Empire Cox into permitting the hit to go for a homer. Hoskins was put back on third and died there. In the twelfth, Pendleton filled the bases with none down but two little pop fouls and a strikeout killed the opportunity. In the first of the 14th with two down, Norman hit safely over third and then Campbell got his two-sack smash that put over the winning run. By way of making the margin safe, Lundwall singled and scored Campbell. Pendleton got two on bases in the last of the 13th but a double play by Lundwall ended the long game.
