

REPLY OF GERMANY ON WAY TO KAISER FOR HIS APPROVAL

Imperial Chancellor Leaves for the Galician Front With Text of Note to be Sent America.

MAY BE PRESENTED MONDAY

Reply said to reflect the sentiment of the German people with regard to the submarine warfare against the Allies—Concessions are said to be included.

BERLIN, July 2.—Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg left for Galicia with the completed text of Germany's reply to the last American note regarding the Lusitania. He will submit it to the Kaiser who is in the field. If the Emperor approves the note it probably will be presented to Gerard Monday. The reply is not a mere answer of German diplomats. It may be considered to represent the opinion of the German people regarding the use of submarines during the present war. Prominent bankers and business men of the empire were requested to voice their ideas and all unqualifiedly approved the government's stand. An official who saw the text was authority for the statement that Germany is willing to safeguard the passengers of neutral countries who cross the Atlantic, even if they take passage on merchantmen of the belligerents, provided the vessels do not carry munitions and do not misuse the American flag.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Germany's note will be handed to Gerard Thursday and be considered by the president and the cabinet on Friday. This is the program governing the negotiations with the Imperial government. No apprehension is felt in official circles over the contents of Germany's reply.

Poison Meant for Squirrels Eaten by Horse

SUIT IS FILED TO RECOVER DAMAGE FOR INJURY TO THE ANIMAL

Whether or not a man putting out poison for squirrels can be held liable for the injury to livestock killed by the poison is a question which the court will probably have to decide in consequence of the filing of a suit yesterday afternoon by George L. Wurster against W. B. Hamilton.

Both men are farmers on Butter creek and their farms are adjoining. Wurster alleges in his complaint that Hamilton put out squirrel poison in his own field but so close to the dividing fence that one of plaintiff's horses was able to eat some of it when reaching through the fence for grass. He claims damages in the amount of $200.

It is probable that the question of trespass will enter into the case. Whether the horse, being still in its owner's field, becomes a trespasser when reaching through or over the fence is a matter of dispute and the point will be an interesting one. Omer E. Smith is representing the plaintiff in the suit.

FORMER PROFESSOR AT CORNELL SAID TO BE ASSAILANT

Stranger Who Forced His Way Into Morgan Home Gave the Name of F. Holt, Teacher of German.

INVESTIGATION BEING MADE

Financier Was at Breakfast With the British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, When Assault Is Made—Physicians Declare Wound Is Not Very Serious One.

GLEN COVE, July 2.—Morgan was at breakfast with Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring-Rice of England when the assailant, who told the police his name was F. Holt and that he was a professor at Cornell, forced an entrance into the house. No explanation was made as to the presence of the British ambassador by Morgan's associates except that he was a guest. The prisoner reiterated that he shot Morgan because of the financier's alleged connection with the war. Dr. J. S. Connelly said the prisoner undoubtedly was mentally unbalanced.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 2.—Frank Holt was professor in the German department at Cornell University last year. He left here at the end of last year and was understood to have accepted an engagement to teach at Dallas, Texas, next year.

He was said to be of German descent but a native American and spoke with a German accent. He was married. University officials said they knew little about Holt before he came to Cornell as an instructor.

DALLAS, July 3.—Frank Holt has been engaged here to teach at the Southern Methodist University beginning next fall. Holt's wife is a daughter of Rev. O. F. Senebault, presiding elder of the Dallas district. He is said here to have been engaged to teach French.

GLEN COVE, July 3.—An ominous mystery exists about the extent of the injuries to Morgan. Reports differed. One said a bullet entered his chest and came out under his arm.

It was definitely stated that one entered the groin and came out through the thigh. The family reported the financier was "not seriously" wounded, but there was a well defined belief the report was designed to allay fears while the stock market was open.

After Dr. W. H. Seabrick dressed Morgan's wound, Dr. J. W. Markoe, a specialist of New York, was summoned. After an examination Dr. Markoe announced the wound was not serious and that no danger existed except from infection.

Morgan's assailant is being held for further questioning although officials and physicians said they were convinced his apparent weakness was not merely a pose.

Telephone and telegraph messages were sent to Ithaca, asking an effort to aid in establishing the man's identity.

FURLONG ON TO WEST COAST WITH PARTY

Noted Writer and Lecturer Will not be Able to Attend the Round-Up in Pendleton this Year.

EXPEDITION ALREADY SAILS

Sailing Vessel of the Gloucester Type Carries Noted Man to African Coast Where Important Researches Will Be Made—Trip Will Occupy About Four Months.

Because he has gone to West Africa with a scientific expedition and may be eaten by the natives, Charles Wellington Furlong will be unable to attend the 1915 Round-up. A personal letter received here today from Mr. Furlong tells of the big trip he is making.

He is the ethnologist with the "Kitty A" West African Islands Expedition in the interest of the museum of comparative zoology of Harvard University.

Among other things the expedition hopes to locate remnants of the ancient Gauchans, a tribe of white people who occupied the Canary Islands before the Moors or Spaniards went there.

Mr. Furlong's letter was written Sunday night and the Kitty A was then prepared to sail. During the day the cook had acquired "cold feet" because of the possible dangers to be encountered. Another cook had been secured and it was the desire to put to sea before he could change his mind.

"There is really just one thing that makes me regret going and that is not to be able to be at the next fall Round-up," writes Furlong. "But please remember, I'll be there with you every bit in thought. By the way, I just finished one of the best articles I've written on the Round-up and it is going to be published in Harper's Magazine. It may not be out until October. But it will be one (Continued on page five.)"

NEW YORK, July 3.—Rear Admiral Richard M. Watt, ex-chief constructor of the United States navy, testified as an expert in the suit of the Ocean Steam Navigation company—the White Star Line—to limit its liabilities for the loss of property and lives in the Titanic disaster.

Admiral Watt gave as his opinion that if anyone was to blame for what he termed the Titanic's inadequate construction, it was her owners, who, he said, were responsible for her limited safeguards.

He added that if the constructors had had a free hand they would have employed more safety devices.

Unidentified Man, Believed to be of German Extraction, Attacks Financier in His Home.

ASSAILANT UNDER ARREST

Assault Takes Place Early Today at Glen Cove, Long Island, When Stranger Forces His Way Into House—Declares Morgan Was Responsible for European War.

GLEN COVE, Long Island, July 3.—J. P. Morgan was shot at his home early today by an unidentified man, apparently of German extraction, who eluded the butler. Carrying a revolver in each hand the man rushed into the presence of the financier. After a brief exchange of words, he opened fire. Morgan is known to have been hit once. Servants, it was reported, declared that two shots were effective. One bullet entered the groin and emerged at the hip. Morgan grappled with his assailant. With the assistance of the butler, the man was overpowered and turned over to the police. The man refused to give his name, or an account of himself.

GLEN COVE, July 3.—"I'm willing to give my life for the service I rendered humanity. Morgan should have been killed. He started the war and could have stopped it if he wanted to."

This was the statement of the man who shot Morgan, according to Justice Luyter. Luyter said the man refused to discuss the shooting beyond saying he had no accomplices but God Almighty. The man has a distinct German accent, Luyter said.

Continuing the justice said: "The prisoner is about 30. He's tall, very thin and dark. He's very well dressed in dark clothing. I asked him if he was a Jew. He replied, 'No, I'm a Christian gentleman.'"

NEW YORK, July 3.—Morgan called his office by telephone from his bedside. He conversed with W. H. Porter, a member of the firm and assured him the wound was trifling.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The leading issues on the stock exchange fell from one to two points following the news Morgan had been shot. Within a few minutes the excitement subsided and the issues reacted from the decline on the reports that Morgan's wounds were not serious. Trading was light as the brokers waited for more definite news.
