Alden J. Blethen of Seattle Dead

PUBLISHER OF TIMES PASSES AWAY FROM COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 12.—Colonel Alden J. Blethen, for nearly 20 years editor and publisher of the Seattle Times, died at his home here late Monday afternoon of a complication of diseases.

Colonel Blethen is survived by two sons, Joseph, business manager of the Times, and Clarence, managing editor; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Meador and Mrs. Gilbert L. Duffy and a widow, all residents of Seattle.

Value of Estate Unknown.
The value of Mr. Blethen's estate is not exactly known. Several years ago he refused an offer of $1,000,000 for the Times.

In addition he owned considerable Seattle real estate, residence, business and tide land, with some bank stock. He also had made large investments in the east, the amount of which is unknown.

Colonel Blethen had been in poor health for several months and was confined to his bed for more than two months. His death had been expected hourly for the past week.

Egg Noodle Under Probe.
WASHINGTON, July 12.—The department of agriculture a few days ago sounded an alarm against "egg-egg noodles."

"If noodles were sold merely for ornament," says the department's official bulletin, it might make little difference to the purchaser whether the yellow in them came from an egg or from a dye, but when considered as food, whether or not they contain any eggs or enough egg to be of value as food, is important.

Hence the department is struggling with the problem of drawing the line between the "egg noodle" and the "eggless noodle." The result will be an answer to the question: "What is a noodle?"

Also the housewife is warned against "watered macaroni." (Wall street not guilty.)

"Water added in excessive amount and sold at the price of macaroni is even more profitable than dyed dough at the price of 'egg noodles,'" says the department.

Black Cat Hat Latest.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—Behold the feline hat! It has just made its appearance on the board walk and is the millinery curiosity of the season. Well does it deserve the name of "cat hat," for when worn it looks like a his, soft, jet black cat curled up on the top of a woman's head.

It is made of black velvet and fits close over the head. In front there is the cat's head, which stands out like that of a real feline. There are velvety ears, big yellow eyes and whiskers. Every feature is reproduced with the utmost care.

"What about the tail?" you ask. It is there, long and curling and black. It rises gracefully at the back and stands away from the hat portion like the appendage of a kite.

Railway Official Weds.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—Mrs. Arminia Rosengarten MacLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Rosengarten, was married recently to W. W. Atterbury, vice-president in charge of construction of the Pennsylvania railroad.

That such a union was contemplated has been rumored for more than a year, but it has been denied by both Mr. Atterbury and Mrs. MacLeod.

The wedding was a quiet one and took place at St. David's, Rev. W. A. Patton, of the First Presbyterian church of Wayne, performed the ceremony. There were no attendants and only relatives and close friends of both families were in view.

Mr. and Mrs. Atterbury left in Mr. Atterbury's private car immediately after the wedding for the Pacific coast where they will visit the exposition.

Mrs. Atterbury's first husband was Malcolm MacLeod, former junior partner of the brokerage firm of Norman MacLeod & Co., which failed several years ago. She secured a divorce from Mr. MacLeod in common pleas court No. 5 in December, 1913, on the grounds of desertion. Since then she has been living quietly at St. David's.

Mr. Atterbury was also married before, his first wife, who was Miss M. H. Hoffman of Fort Wayne, Ind., having died in 1910.

Fish Go on Water Wagon.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12.—"Drinking like a fish" is going to be stricken from the list of West Virginia's notorious similes. As a matter of fact, Frank Glenn, deputy game warden is about to take steps to safeguard the morals of the finny denizens of the streams of this state. He threatens to begin legal action against state prohibition officers who recently poured a quantity of whiskey into the Kanawha river at Parsons. Mr. Glenn asks:

"We do not let the coal operators pour the refuse into the stream and kill our fish; why should we permit the prohibition officers?" Besides, it is assumed that he finds too harrowing the case of a poor little fingerling tugging at his kipped parent and wailing, "Father, dear father, come home with me now!" On the other hand, Fred O. Blue, state prohibition commissioner laughs when he thinks of Mr. Glenn's threat.

"Whisky kill fish?" he exclaimed.

"Why that's the most popular bait that's used."

The act called the "Gilbert and Sullivan Review" with a cast of 60 people, a massive setting which represents historic H. M. S. Pinafore as a modern dreadnought.

The entire action takes place on the deck of the Pinafore which first appears in Japanese waters, where the mikado and his suite comes aboard. Later a change of scenery reveals the ship off Cornwall's coast, with the Pirates of Penzance imprisoned aboard her. The fourth opera included is "The Gondoliers," from which the "cachucha" dance and the song "Sparkling Eyes" are given.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE AND MAN WHO SHOT J. P. MORGAN

Erich Muentzer, Former Instructor in German at Harvard.

Frank Holt, Former Instructor in German at Cornell.

New York detectives are trying to develop the theory that Frank Holt, the former Cornell instructor in German, who shot J. P. Morgan and tried to blow up the Capitol at Washington is none other than Erich Muentzer, the Harvard instructor in German who disappeared from Harvard in 1906 following the death of his wife from poisoning.

Muentzer was of German birth; Frank Holt admits that he is of German descent, although claiming birth in this country. Where, he had not told.

The handwriting of Holt shown in the picture is from the long letter he wrote Sunday, July 4, to his father-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Sensabaugh, in Dallas, Tex. It shows a peculiar mixture of various styles, and may have been disguised to prevent comparison with the handwriting of Muentzer. Pictures of Muentzer, sent to Glen Cove from Cambridge, shows a close resemblance between the former Harvard professor and Holt. Attendents who looked at Holt, with a picture of the man wanted for the murder of his wife in 1906 in their hands, declared that with his beard shaven off Muentzer might be Holt.

P. W. Miller of 107 Oxford street Cambridge, the house in which Mrs. Muentzer died, who lived under the Muentzers while they were in Cambridge, said that Holt and Muentzer were the same, judging from the picture of Holt shown to him.

A. E. Long, the undertaker who prepared Mrs. Muentzer's body for the funeral, when shown a picture of Holt said that it was a striking resemblance to Muentzer.

A dispatch from Chicago said that two University of Chicago professors identified a photograph of Holt as a likeness of Muentzer.

A reporter showed a picture of Holt to Miss Bertha Muentzer, a sister of the missing Harvard professor. "I am unable to say whether this is a picture of my brother," she said. "He was tall like that, but the features don't seem to be those of the boy I knew."

Dr. H. B. McIntyre of Boston, the physician who was called to attend Mrs. Muentzer in 1906, and who refused to have anything to do with the case, said when a picture of Holt was shown him that it bore a strong resemblance to Erich Muentzer.

Edison to Head Inventors' Board

RESPONDS TO "CALL OF HIS COUNTRY"—NAVY DEPARTMENT ASKS AID.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., July 12.—Thomas A. Edison has accepted an invitation from Secretary Daniels to head an advisory board of civilian inventors for a bureau of invention and development to be created in the navy department.

His acceptance will go forward at once to Washington, where the new plans await word from the man "who can turn dreams into realities."

Prominent Men to Aid.
Mr. Daniels' idea of utilizing the inventive genius of Americans in and out of the military and naval service to meet conditions of warfare Europe is outlined in a letter written last Wednesday asking Mr. Edison whether, as a patriotic service to his country, he would undertake the task of advising the proposed bureau. The plan is to have several prominent men in special lines of inventive research associated in the work.

Among the great problems to be laid before the investigators the secretary mentioned submarine warfare, adding that he felt sure that with Mr. Edison's wonderful brain to help them the officers of the navy would be able "to meet this new danger with new devices that will assure peace to our country by their effectiveness."

Indians Stalked in C.P.
PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—With a prayer book hidden in his breast pocket and a revolver concealed in his blouse, between his shoulder blades, Paul Merrill, 12 years old, came to Philadelphia from Tamaqua, Pa., on his way to spread the fear of God among the Yaqui Indians, who have gone on the warpath. Lordly self-restraint alone kept Paul from shooting up the policeman who took him in tow at night.

Paul was found loitering in the neighborhood of Rittenhouse Square by a policeman, who took him to the police station. There it was found that he was carrying a razor in one of his pockets.

Paul looked on with a condescending smile as the detectives drew from his pockets four vicious looking knives, a pocketbook containing 16 some cards bearing pictures of the holy family and a prayerbook.

The detectives thought they had unearthed all the boy's arsenal, and were concluding their search when Detective Dich accidentally felt a curious lump between his shoulder blades. It proved to be a large revolver, fully loaded.

At the discovery, some 20 or 30 detectives who had crowded into the room set up a howl. They refused to believe that Paul had not hidden still more weapons on his person until they had examined the linings of his new suit, peered into his mouth, probed his ears and stood him on his head to see if he were sequestering any submarine torpedoes.

Paul was unflinching. He said that his father was a Hungarian laborer, who lived at Tamaqua, and that he had received the revolver from his father, who told him to go west and shoot the Indians, as they were no good, anyway.

Undertaker a Monopolist.

LA CROSSE, Wis., July 12.—J. D. Vaughn was excused from jury service because he is a monopolist. He is the only undertaker in town, and didn't want to serve on jury. Judge S. Higbee held that Vaughn's excuse for not wanting to serve was that he couldn't understand "high falutin'" words used by the lawyers.

Heat a Menace to Lives of Old Folks

SICKNESS AND MISERY ARE CAUSED BY CONSTIPATION IN HOT WEATHER.

People of advancing years should be very careful of their health during the hot months. One has only to follow the mortality record of elderly people as reported in the papers to realize that these are the hardest months of the year for them.

It is most important to the maintenance of health and vigor at this time to avoid constipation, with its accompanying headaches and muscular and blood congestion. This can be best accomplished by the timely use of a gentle laxative, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, an ideal remedy that is pleasant to the taste, easy and natural in its action and does not gripe. Its tonic properties build up and strengthen the system.

Elderly people should avoid strong purgatives, cathartics, purgatives, salts and pills as they afford only temporary relief and are a shock to the entire system. In every home a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin should always be on hand. It is inexpensive and can be obtained in any drug store for only fifty cents. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
