STOCK MARKET IS DIFFERENT FROM YEAR AGO TODAY

ANNIVERSARY OF "BLACK FRIDAY" FINDS STOCK EXCHANGE IN THRIVING SHAPE.

Last Few Months Have Seen Millions Made by Speculation in Stocks of Munition Making Concerns—Old Time Stocks Are Quiet in Market.

BY EARLE C. REEVES.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, July 31.—The anniversary of the Black Friday on which the war closed the stock exchange and the long drought began on Wall street finds millions again being made on the street in a very different sort of market. Today war stock is king; a year ago panic came very near to ruling.

Paper billions have been made through inflated values of companies furnishing war munitions. Actual millions, in tangible bank accounts have been made by the men who were on the inside and who have cashed in day by day as the war stocks jumped upward five and ten points at a time.

The market gave the first tip of the world war to come about a year and a week ago. While the general public knew only that another international situation was at hand, such a situation as had been passed without calamity many times, the money men saw further. Stocks tumbled one day and again the next—and the next; then the war cloud became visible to the naked eye and news came that troops were moving. Germany's ultimatum to Russia regarding the mobilization of troops along the frontier came on Thursday, the 30th. Friday morning, after divers rumors and reassuring statements, a meeting of the board of managers of the stock exchange was called and a statement issued just before 10 o'clock announcing the closing, temporarily, of the exchange.

There were few failures and Wall street braced itself for settlement. As the weeks wore on and Broad and Wall continued to be a deserted corner, brokers retrenched in their households an office expense, but hung on. Shortly before Christmas the grain market became active on the upgrade. May wheat was reaching toward $1.70.

December 3 the stock exchange was reopened on a restricted stock trading, minimum price basis and for weeks the tendency to slump continued. The minimum trading prices of stocks were lowered a few points at a time, preventing any panicky breaks. As the country gradually awakened to the fact that giant war orders were being quietly negotiated a change became noticeable. Steel stocks and certain industrial showed signs of life. The good old days were on their way back.

The real activity in war stocks has come in the past few months. The tendency of last fall to bury money in the ground has not been overcome entirely and it is a question just how much outside money has ventured into the street.

U. S. Steel, with its immense capitalization, probably has made the greatest total gain in value, though its common has advanced only a few points. Schwab's activities have made his Bethlehem Steel the spectacular performer. Its common stock reaching a figure six times that of the afternoon the market closed last summer. American Can, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, General Motors, Goodrich, Lackawanna Steel, Republic Iron & Steel, Studebaker and Westinghouse, of the stocks listed on the exchange, have all jumped to double their year-ago prices. Many stocks not listed have been equally spectacular in their advance.

Test Your Own Eyes

The above lines should look exactly alike to you with each eye separately when held at arm's length, and you should be able to read the fine print below with comfort when held at 14 inches.

Caution About Use and Selections of Spectacles

Persons having normal vision will be able to read the fine print at a distance of 14 inches from the eye with ease and comfort. If unable to do so, your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading or sewing, or if the letters are blurred or wavy, or if a new selection of spectacles is needed, the lenses and the shape of the eye should be examined and new lenses made to suit the eye. Continued use of these glasses will result in positive injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation to supply defects in the glass.

TEXAS FINANCIER ENDS LIFE AFTER HIS BANK IS CLOSED

Made Fortune in Cattle and Invested in Many Enterprises, But Recently Sold Interests.

PORT WORTH, Tex., July 31.—E. E. Baldrige, president of the Fort Worth Savings and Trust Co., which closed yesterday, was found dead early today from a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head. A verdict of suicide was returned by a justice of the peace.

Baldrige, rated as one of the richest men in Fort Worth, started life as a cowboy and after accumulating a fortune in cattle, entered the banking business. He was interested in many enterprises, but recently began selling his property and at the time of his death had disposed of almost everything.

It is now a topsy-turvy market. The old active stocks are for the most part idle, while issues hitherto speculatively unimportant monopolize the traders' attention.

IF YOU HAVE FREQUENT HEAD-ACHES WHICH MEDICINES DO NOT CURE; if you see distant objects more (or less) clearly, or need to hold printed matter nearer to or further from the eyes than formerly; or need more light. If you have observed any of these things, your sight needs the aid of correctly adopted glasses to assist as well as preserve it.

Accurately fitted glasses are only possible when the sight has been scientifically tested.

We have every facility for doing this and exercise the greatest care so that you may receive the utmost benefit from wearing glasses.

A thorough examination and explanation of your condition will cost you nothing.
