Pastor Traps Saloons.
NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Rumors reached the Rev. D. D. Irvine, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Bay Shore, L. I., last week that hotel cafes in Bay Shore were running after the legal closing time, holding cabarets and selling liquor to minors and intoxicated men. He decided to investigate.

Buying a false mustache and a set of bushy whiskers, he disguised the lower part of his countenance, which is ordinarily smooth shaven, smeared makeup around his eyes to make himself look disheveled, put on old clothes and practiced a lurch before the mirror. After satisfying himself that he would pass he left his home on Sunday morning shortly after midnight.

He scraped an acquaintance with a drunken man who had spent his last cent. The minister furnished the money and the intoxicated man the local knowledge and personal connections. In this way he was conducted through seven of the resorts of Bay Shore.

That day he wrote a sermon on what he had seen. He assembled in his study the proprietors of the places he had visited and read the sermon to them. He said he would deliver it unless they promised to close at the time fixed by law and to dismiss all their women cabaret performers. These terms were instantly accepted.

John Ross, a Walla Walla river rancher, is transacting business here today.

I. R. Lawrence, Ukiah merchant, was among the visitors in Pendleton yesterday.

S. Norton Robo, editor of the Stanfield Standard, is paying Pendleton a visit today.

Tom Monahan, brother of the late J. C. Monahan arrived today from Bellingham, Wash.

Judge J. W. Maloney, prominent farmer, returned this morning from a brief visit in Portland.

Peter Sheridan, well known Butter Creek stockman, returned to his home today after transacting business in the city.

Carl Cooley, bookkeeper at Alexander's, left during the week-end for Portland and Brownsville to spend his vacation.

Claude Sloan of Echo and Asa H. Thomson of the same place, were at the Hotel Pendleton last evening. Mr. Thomson and W. J. Farnish drove down from Lehman Springs during the morning.

AUTO GOES OVER.

The water was deep, but at his announcement that a woman was pinned beneath the car they hurried down to his assistance. Two automobiles came along and the occupants gave aid, too.

Mrs. Rothrock was lying on her back in the water with the front seat of the car resting across her chest. Nearly a half hour was required to rescue her and she was almost drowned at that time. She was placed in a car and taken quickly to St. Anthony's hospital where the man left her without giving the sisters any information regarding his own or the woman's identity.

This morning Chief of Police Kearney and Sheriff Taylor went to the scene of action and found the car still wheels upward in the race. The car was easily identified by its number as the Red belonging to Asa H. Thomson of Echo.

Mr. Thomson, who had come down from Lehman Springs yesterday and remained over night, did not hear of the accident until this morning and stated that the car had evidently been taken from alongside of the Hotel Pendleton by some friends.

An investigation by the police brought to light the fact that Orville Jackson had borrowed the car and had been driving it about for a time with Claude Sloan, also of Echo, as an occupant. Whether Mr. Sloan was in the car at the time of the accident is not known definitely although Britain and Cole declare he was not. According to the story told by the injured woman at the hospital this morning, she had met Jackson at the restaurant in the State Hotel and had asked him to drive her to Adams where her mother lives. She declares they both mistook the headlights for a bridge.

Jackson returned to Echo last night after leaving, it is said, a letter for Thomson telling of the accident. He returned to Pendleton this morning, however, but has been exceedingly close-mouthed about the accident. He has only a few bruises to remind him of his narrow escape.

A sack in which were several broken beer bottles was found under the car this morning and the woman is said to have showed evidences of intoxication. She is a mixed blood Indian woman and has a long police court record. The machinery and gears of the car were not damaged to any extent but the top part of the machine suffered considerably in the fall.

The road upon which the car was traveling leads along the city levee to a ford this side of the bridge site. The point of the accident is within the city limits.

Two hundred suitcases have been purchased by the city for use at Gordon and Edgewater park bathhouses, Frank Patterson, secretary of parks, announced yesterday.

According to the physician's statement this afternoon, Mrs. Rothrock is not seriously hurt. The left side of her face is badly bruised and skinned while her left eye is swollen almost shut. It was feared for a time she was injured internally.

Germans Help Bulgaria.
BERLIN, Aug. 10.—Among the news items given out by the Overseas News Agency is the following: "According to the Cologne Gazette a group of German bankers, headed by the Lisconto Gesellschaft, has made a contract with the Bulgarian government to take about 250,000,000 francs ($50,000,000) of the 5 per cent Bulgarian gold loan of 1914. The Lisconto Gesellschaft has been charged to redeem 120,000,000 francs ($24,000,000) of Bulgarian treasury notes due early in August at 81.25 marks per 100 francs."

Woman Killed by Train.
OREGON CITY, Ore., Aug. 7.—Failing to hear the warning whistles of the Willamette Valley Southern train as it approached Glenn Oaks Station, about 10 miles from here, Mrs. R. W. Clarke of Glodstone, was struck and instantly killed while standing on the tracks conversing with a party of friends.

With Peter Bluhm and Mr. and Mrs. John Laar, Mrs. Clarke, who was 51 years old, had been inspecting some real estate property in Glenn Oaks. So quickly did the accident occur that none of her friends could do more than call a warning. Mrs. Clarke is survived by her husband and several children, two of whom are Miss Ruth Clarke and Mrs. Homer Finney of Portland. Coroner Homestead left here to conduct an inquest.

CALIFORNIA PRODUCES COAL AS WELL AS OIL

Although California oil has to a large extent displaced the use of coal as a fuel in the Pacific coast states, two California mines reported an output of coal in 1914.

In order not to reveal the individual output of these mines their production is grouped with that of the one producing mine in each of the states of Idaho and Nevada, and the total combined production of the three states in 1914 is given at 13,974 tons valued at $39,821, according to the United States Geological Survey.

Coal mining and the coal trade generally in California lay claim to importance among the industries of the state, particularly since the beginning of the present century, when the production of petroleum began to exert so powerful an influence on the fuel consumption of the Pacific coast. From 1910 to 1912, inclusive, the coal production of the state was only a little more than 10,000 tons in each year. In 1913 work was resumed on the Stone Canyon properties in Monterey county, and the production increased to 24,839 short tons, valued at $84,973. The output of 1914, however, showed an appreciable decrease. The only other production in 1914 was from the tone mines in Amador county.

L4 Is On Lassen's Volcano.
The recent volcanic eruptions of Lassen Peak, California, the most violent and destructive of which was the outbreak in May, 1915, are reported by Geologist J. S. Diller, of the United States geological survey, to have reached their maximum. The mountain, though it will doubtless continue to be an active volcanic curiosity, will not, it is believed, develop into a devastating fury, after the manner of Vesuvius or some of the Alaskan volcanoes or other well-known foreign volcanoes. In other words, old Vulcan has clapped the lid down on Lassen.

For several weeks Mr. Diller has been studying Lassen Peak on the ground in cooperation with officials of the forest service and has reported to the director of the geological survey as follows:

"The great eruptions of Lassen Peak of May 29 and 25 spent the energy of the old volcano and put a lid on it. The effects of the flood on Hat creek are being turned to good account, while many visitors are safely climbing the peak. Although it is possible that Vulcan is simply conserving his forces for a future outbreak, the general indications are that he is closing up the Lassen peak branch of his laboratory for the season, perhaps with the intention of giving a small exhibit next spring when the snow melts."

Hickory Limb Displaced.
CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 7.—Hickory limbs will not be used as clothes hangers when Cleveland maidens go out to swim. At least not if they take their dip at one of the municipal beaches. They will deposit their garments in suitcases and check them at a park bathhouse.

Two hundred suitcases have been purchased by the city for use at Gordon and Edgewater park bathhouses, Frank Patterson, secretary of parks, announced yesterday.

FRANCE WILL FIGHT UNTIL GERMANY HAS BEEN THROWN BACK

WOMEN SHOW WONDERFUL SPIRIT AS THEIR MEN MARCH OFF TO FRONT.

Wife of Soldier Says Her Husband Must Stay on the Firing Line Until the Germans are Beaten and Her Attitude is an Example of the Spirit of France.

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS. (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, July 30.—(By Mail.)—"How long will the women of France let this war go on?"

Suddenly and without warning I put this question to the wife of a French soldier, a man 41 years old, who has been under the colors since the beginning of the war, a year this week. I deliberately surprised the lady with the question when she was most downhearted. Her husband had just been ordered into the front trenches at one of the hottest parts of the long line, north of Arras; yet her answer was immediate and unhesitating:

"Until the Germans are beaten." Her voice was low yet it seemed to fill the air, like Doom pronouncing judgment.

"But your husband?" I insisted. It was cruel, I know, but I wanted to get at something. "Wouldn't you like to have your husband with you now?"

"No," she said quickly, "the Germans are still in France."

"So you are satisfied that he shall remain where he is?"

"He must remain until the Germans are beaten. I would not have him back before that, even if I could."

The lady spoke as though inspired. Her eyes burned brightly, almost with fanaticism. To her—and she is an average Frenchwoman—the war is a Holy War, and to discuss peace with her on any terms other than the complete defeat of the Germans, is an insult. She is about 40 years old and there are no children. Her husband is her one great interest in life and should he die she would have to go out in the world and earn her own living. The couple have a costly furnished apartment but at most not more than a thousand or so dollars in the bank. There is no life insurance, at any rate the death of her husband would mean the breaking up of her home and the necessity of earning her livelihood.

I relate these facts because the women of France have always exercised great influence in the country's history and because one often hears the remark:

"The government and the army may be willing to continue a long drawn out war; and they may be perfectly able to do so from the point of view of men and money. But what about the women?"

The answer may be read above. The women of France have themselves under a sort of self-imposed discipline no less rigid than that which the men folk are subject to at the front. They are part of the "union sacrée" just as much as the men and they will see the war through.

It must be stated here that the government is doing its share aiding the army's women-folk. Each wife gets 25 cents a day and more if she has young children. Of course if the husband's salary at the start of the war was above a certain figure (about $800 a year) the wife is supposed not to need this allotment. The French lady quoted above gets only about $54 a month. She is compelled to live on her capital now which, thanks to years of thrift, is ample to see her through.

French effort for the past year has been universal. It had to be if the Germans were to be held in check, for most of German preparedness backed by 70,000,000 of people fell on France with her domestic unpreparedness and her mere forty million. And it was largely due to the women of the land that the French have been able to accomplish so much against her powerful enemy during the past 12 months.

At the front and throughout the army discipline is very strict, largely, it is true, because the individual French soldier chooses to have it so. I have seen a Prince of one of the oldest and richest families in all Europe stand at rigid attention for 20 minutes while a major was delivering a little lecture on army operations, the major being the son of a village school teacher. You say he did perfectly right and of course all agree that he did. He knew it himself and that is why he did it, which is precisely the point. Prince of a mighty family he was not above doing his duty scrupulously, standing straight as a ramrod when any sort of a salute might have answered considering the circumstances.

This discipline is universal in France and being in France it is one of the wonders of the war, for perhaps in no other country does the individual demand more personal freedom. This does not preclude, however, a spirit of comradeship between officers and men perhaps this exists in France to a greater extent than in any other army in the world, certainly more than in the American army. The idea is neither men nor officers take advantage of it all working for one thing—the defeat of their old enemy, Germany.

Among civilians and especially among the women there is the same spirit. Duchesses, countesses, princesses, wives of cabinet ministers and millionaires work hand in hand with the humblest and poorest women of France. Mme. Viviani, wife of the prime minister, is taking care of scores of babies so their poor mothers can earn a living. Mme. Poincare, wife of the president of the republic, is at the head of the French Red Cross and spends her days visiting the sick and wounded. And so it goes.

Alfalfa Rates Out.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 10.—A reduction of 10 cents per 100 pounds in the freight on alfalfa meal and alfalfa seed from California points to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston and other eastern points was announced by the Santa Fe.

The new rate will be 50 cents per 100 in carload lots with a minimum of 60,000 pounds and will go into effect about the middle of September.

Indian Workers Meet.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—To study conditions among the Indians with a view to remedying those things which retard progress among the Redmen, a conference of Indian workers and those interested in Indian progress, opened here.

Facts Wanted Regarding Crop Yields; Farm Reports Desired

So much doubt exists this year regarding the wheat yield that the East Oregonian will endeavor to secure much exact data from first hand sources. With this aim in view farmers are asked to fill out the blank below as soon as their harvesting has proceeded sufficiently to give them an accurate line on what the yield will be. By special arrangement the information gathered in this manner will be tabulated and given to the government crop reporting officials, thus helping them adjust their estimates as to the actual yield. It is desirable to get the exact truth as to the situation and the co-operation of farmers will be appreciated.

Please fill out the following blank and mail the same to the East Oregonian. If you prefer to phone, do so. The East Oregonian's number is ONE.
