Sorter Stir the Blaze: If you can't get your desire, Of joy for all your days— Can't see the world on fire, You can sorter stir the blaze.

NO TIME FOR HYSTERIA: SANE citizens will unambiguously endorse the calmness and deliberation of the administration in handling the Arabic case.

THE PRODUCER'S FRIEND: No man in public life has shown himself a more sincere friend of the producer than William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury.

THE RAKE: A small, henpecked, worried-looking man was about to take an examination for life insurance.

WHEN SOME ONE CARES: When you meet some disappointment, an' yer feelin' kind o' blue; When yer plans have all got sidetracked, or some friend has proved untrue;

WALSHP'S PLAN IS CONFISCATION OF BIG FORTUNES: NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the Federal Commission of Industrial Relations, and the three labor representatives on the board, have prepared a report after the two years work by the commission advocating that congress enact laws confiscating upon inheritance, all great fortunes in excess of $1,000,000.

laugh. There are a number of prominent politicians in this state who attempted at one time to make fun on this subject. Like the gentleman from Yale they are now enjoying private life.

Therefore the producers of the nation will do well to take note of Secretary McAdoo's attitude toward other subjects, particularly the ship purchase bill. It is a matter in which he is taking an active part.

Had this bill been promptly passed, there is no doubt that a very considerable number of ships could have been bought at that time; that others could have been chartered, and the company would have been ready by this time to begin rendering a substantial service to American commerce.

Of course this is cowardly and spineless according to jingo fanatics. To be brave we should have gone to war the first minute after hearing word from London that this country had been insulted.

Had the ship purchase bill carried northwest wheat farmers would not have to submit to offers of 82 cents for wheat worth $1.70 in Liverpool and probably more.

From the standpoint of the producer it is desirable in every way that the shipping bill be passed at the coming session of congress. There is a dearth of ships and unless the government takes hold of the matter directly, as desired by President Wilson, the growers will lose out again next season and may have to submit to extortion for several years to come.

A postmaster is wanted at Duncan. The job should be attractive during the grouse season.

If there is so much Russian wheat on hand over there why do they make bread from bark in Finland? Convicts are still paroled and Oswald West is not governor either.

At least we are not having any floods in this section. Some difference between Pendleton and Liverpool wheat prices.

Clature For The Senate

As the time approaches for the convening of the new congress increasing thought is being given to the question of clature in the senate. It is only a matter of time until the rules of the senate will be so changed as to permit the majority to rule; the only question is as to whether the change will be made now or later.

It is in the power of the majority of that body to close the debate whenever an attempt is made to obstruct the will of the majority. There is much remaining to be done—business which would have been completed by the former congress but for the minority obstruction, which the present rules make possible.

When you meet some disappointment, an' yer feelin' kind o' blue; When yer plans have all got sidetracked, or some friend has proved untrue; When yer tolling, praying, struggling at the bottom of the stairs, It is like a panacea—jest to know that someone cares.

Some one who can appreciate one's efforts, when he tries; Some one who seems to understand—an' so can sympathize; Some one who, when he's far away, still wonders how he fares; Some one who never can forget—Some one who really cares.

Oh! this world is not all sunshine—mine; dark dark clouds disperse; There's a cross for every job-bell, an' a thorn for every rose; But the cross is not so grievous, nor the thorn the rosy-hued weaver; An' the clouds has silver linin'—when some one really cares.
