Weed Bill Laws Passed.
PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 25.—Ordinances assessing against property owners a total of $1218 for weed cutting done a year ago were passed by the city council by unanimous vote.

The ordinances make the amounts spent by the city for weed cutting a lien on the property upon which the work was done. The 12 penalties imposed on each lot at first were remitted.

The assessments have been hanging fire for more than a year. Many complaints have been investigated and a few corrections made. The action of the council probably will end the trouble experienced ever since the assessments were proposed originally.

Navy Swindle Charged.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—George D. Will, a clerk in the bureau of navigation of the navy department was arrested on a warrant charging conspiracy in that he was concerned in a scheme to obtain sums of money from enlisted men of the navy for transfers.

Government investigators say they have found evidence of a conspiracy to collect payments ranging from $25 to $50 from enlisted men for transfers and promotions to which they were rightfully entitled.

Borah Starts Suffragists.
BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 25.—Local and national suffragettes have been on the trail of Senator William E. Borah with special vigor recently in an effort to induce him to alter his position on nation equal suffrage.

Miss Mabel Vernon, field secretary of the congressional union for women's suffrage recently interviewed the senator here and named a committee for the future. Senator Borah, in effect, declines to meet this committee. He says the proposed amendment is impracticable.

NEW BRITISH ARMY MAY HAVE ARMOR TO PROTECT ITS TROOPS

GREAT NUMBER OF CASUALTIES
HAVE THEIR EFFECTS UP-ON BRITISH.

Way to Minimize Deaths in Conflict Is Being Sought and Armor Has Been Suggested As Means to Protect Soldiers at the Front — Plan May Be Carried Out This Year.

BY WILBUR S. FOREST.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, Aug. 24.—(By Mail.)—The 1915 British army may be an armored army.

The great casualty list that filters through the war office every day from the front; the convalescent wounded and battered soldiers that are always on the streets and the overflowing hospitals are beginning to have their effect.

Many ask: "Isn't there a way to minimize this appalling situation?" Somebody has answered: "Armor."

And it's beginning to look like armor for the British soldiers of 1915. While the British war office is considering whether it shall slip back to medieval methods of warfare so far as the protection of the soldier is concerned, well known Britishers are telling the war office through the press that armor is a natural necessity in these days of machine guns and high-powered rifles.

Scores of suggestions for modern 1915 armor emanating from scientists have narrowed down to the practicability of a three piece suit of tempered steel that would protect the forehead, breast and abdomen—the three vital spots of the body. The favored headpiece will, if authorized by the war office, take the form of the highly tempered steel skull cap-like protector now worn by the French to minimize the danger of shrapnel. The breastplate would be a thin leather covered hardened plate of steel, curved to fit over the chest and held by straps that go over the shoulders and around the waist. The abdominal protector is suggested in the form of another curved sheet of steel fitting over the lower ribs and extending down to the bones of the hips.

The British war office four years ago experimented with a bullet proof breast plate at Aldershot where the device shed all the rifle and machine gun bullets that were fired against it at ranges of one foot to five hundred yards. The breast plate was rejected on the ground that it added too much weight to the equipment of the soldier and reduced his marching efficiency.

With a war of great proportions that will probably last many more months or perhaps years and with the thousands of dead and the tens of thousands of wounded the war office is believed to be reconsidering its objection to armor.

The men of the trenches at least probably will be thus equipped, according to information today.

One of Britain's leading advocates of armor is Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the noted author of "Sherlock Holmes."

In a lengthy message from his home at Windlesham, Crowborough, Sussex, to a London daily, Sir Arthur cited an action of the British in Northern France on May 9 when several brigades were decimated in an effort to rush across 300 yards intervening between the British and German trenches. He warned:

"You must either abandon such attacks or you must find artificial protection for the men."

Sir Arthur suggests three-piece suits of steel plates for the soldiers, but goes further in advocating a modern "testudo"—a cover used by the Roman soldiers in attacking a wall, former by overlapping their oblong shields above their heads. Sir Arthur's modern testudo, he would put on wheels to cover the men as they charge the German trenches. He says:

"These numerous armor plated bodies could rush with small loss over a space which had already been cleared as far as possible of obstacles, and so have some chance of reaching the enemy's line not as an exhausted fragment but as a vigorous storming party with numbers intact. Such apparatus would not necessitate a great addition to the impediments of an army. It would be a separate item like the pontoons or the sieges train only to be brought up on special occasions to the point where it is needed for the assault. The vital body plates, however, should be used in the every day equipment of a fighting soldier."

Armored shields on wheels such as Conan Doyle suggests were used by the United States Infantry during the last days of the Spanish-American war in Cuba, according to an English authority on armor. They were invented by General Roy Stone of the British army. Each shield lay horizontally and carried the impediments of marching soldiers when not placed vertically for sterner use.

Due to the rough character of the ground and the predominance of mounted forces in the Cuban campaign, the American experiment was a failure it was stated.

Whether the government will accept the "testudo" is uncertain but it is strongly whispered that armor will have to do with British armies of the coming year.

EXPLOSION ON LINER FOLLOWED BY FIRE

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 25.—Fire following an explosion aboard the British liner Anglo-California, a vessel of 7333 tons, in Montreal harbor, trapped 200 horses on board. Twenty firefighters were overcome by smoke. The Anglo-Californian was recently attacked by a German submarine in British waters, but escaped. The blaze was brought under control after the firemen had been taken to the hospital.

Freed Convict Loses Suit.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 25.—Penal institutions of the state, for the protection of society and regardless of the sensibilities of convicted persons, have the right under a supreme court decision, just rendered to photograph and measure convicts and circulate these records among police officers and sheriffs.

Wallim R. Hodgeman, convicted for grand larceny and sentenced to from 2 to 15 years in the state reformatory, sought by court action, after he was pardoned, to make the reformatory authorities destroy his likeness in the rogues' gallery and to enjoin them from circulating it and his description.

Lightning Starts Blaze.

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Aug. 25.—While the unusual electric storm-cloud was sweeping up the range of mountains to the west of Hood River lightning struck a pine tree near the base of Mount Defiance. A. A. Laumann, in charge of the property of the Stanley-Smith Lumber company, saw it and sent two men to the scene. Within five minutes a call from the Forest Rangers' Station at Lookout Mountain reported the fire. The flames, which probably would have spread rapidly in the dry underbrush from the old tree, were easily extinguished.

Henry Clay Ford is Dead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—H. Clay Ford, formerly of Baltimore, who was resident manager of Ford's opera house at the time President Lincoln was shot, died recently at St. Mary's hospital in Passaic, N. J., following an operation, at the age of 72 years. Mr. Ford, who was known as the "Nestor of Shakespearean managers," was associate manager with his brother, John T. Ford, in control of opera houses at Baltimore and Washington. His wife was Blanche Chapman, an actress. Recently Mr. Ford had lived at Rutherford, N. J.

Grangers Oppose Bonds.

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Aug. 25.—Hood River County Pomona Grange in regular session at Melzac Hall unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the proposed $10,000,000 permanent state highway bond issue. The grangers expressed a grave fear that the funds, when the time for distribution came, would lead to strife and community rivalry. The members of the grange by resolution also urged the county court to abolish the toll on the road leading through the forest reserve to the upper valley, and petitioned the county court to place complete and comprehensive signboards at all highway intersections.
