AVIATOR LANDS AT SEA; HAD LOST WAY

OCEAN CITY, Md., Nov. 1.—Bert H. Kendrick, who left Albany, N. Y., at 8:30 o'clock this morning in a hydroaeroplane in an attempt to fly to Cape Hatteras, N. C., lost his way in a dense fog after passing Seaside Park, N. J., and when overtaken by darkness was obliged to land in Assa-woman Bay, near here. The trip to Hatteras will be abandoned and Kendrick, with his machine, will leave for New York.

Kendrick followed the Hudson river from Albany to New York City and then flew down the New Jersey coast. Several stops were made during the day for gasoline and to adjust machinery, the last one being in the Atlantic ocean, 18 miles southeast of Cape Henlopen. Sighting a fishing smack off shore, the aviator alighted near by and replenished his supply of fuel from the fisherman. Other stops were made at Poughkeepsie, Dodds Ferry and Atlantic Highlands. Kendrick made the flight in competition for the Curtis marine flying trophy and a cash prize. He was accompanied by Frank Mills.
