

The Weekly Bulldogger

MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1915.

HAVE you ever heard men who use ordinary tobacco say anything in its favor? But nearly all the men who are today using W-B CUT chewing—the Real Tobacco Chew, new cut, long shred—were started by the suggestion of friends who liked it better than the ordinary kind.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste!"

But Foy Adopted His.
Stanfield, Ore., Dec. 12.—Editor Bulldogger, Dear Sir—I wish to suggest that Eddie Foy has nothing on Bob Fletcher as an entertainer. I saw Bob and his kids in a minstrel show once and they were good. Now I understand he can pull an advertising stunt like Foy, something like this, "Bob Fletcher and the Seven Little Fletchers." Yours, Alfalfa Ike.

Grounds For Divorce.
Holand Oliver says one of the best measures of home economy he knows of is to throw all catalogues and bargain sheets into the waste paper basket without taking them home.

A Man Is Just What He Feels.
The sense of security which the ostrich feels when he buries his head in a hole can be appreciated by Clark Nelson. Last Monday night when indications were that there might be a little artillery play down around the Hotel Pendleton, he scurried behind one of the big pillars in front of the postoffice and felt as safe as if he were in a bomb-proof fortress. He thought the pillars were of concrete at the time but next day someone told him they were not only wooden but hollow.

Oh, How Could You, Roscoe.
Roscoe I. Keator, assistant district attorney, likes a good cigar. He also likes to toast his shins around a good fire these cold nights. One of his friends, Harry Rimert, revise clerk for the O. W., is also an admirer of good cigars. In addition, Mr. Rimert always has a rip-roaring fire going in his room. Consequently he and Mr. Keator spend considerable time together and discuss ways and means of saving the nation. In the matter of cigars, however, the two never agree, for each seems to have no respect for the other's choice. But the other night Mr. Keator whether through intent or just luck, secured a brand which is a particular favorite of Rimert. The latter had been up town and during his absence the young attorney crossed the river to pay him a visit. Not finding him at home, he started up town again and the two met. A whiff of the good aroma from Mr. Keator's cigar brought out the suggestion from Mr. Rimert as to where it's mate was. "O, I only bought one," said the lawyer.

"Only one," exclaimed Mr. Rimert. "Why I thought you had gone down to the room especially to present me with one."

"I should say not," replied Mr. Keator. "I only went down to get a match."

As Others See Us.
Judge Phelps was called upon to marry a couple last week, and, as they had no witnesses, the judge summoned two reporters to witness the ceremony and fulfill the law's requirement. After the ceremony he apologized to the bride and groom for the character of the witnesses. "For you came in upon me so unexpectedly that I had to get what I could at a moment's notice," he said.

Priceless Poetry.
I was reading in the paper, Just yesterday, I think, About an eastern medico, A baby expert gink, He instructed all us parents How to raise our progeny, We must never kiss the baby, Never trot it on our knee; Jus' let the little duffer lie In its sterile basket, And keep our hands behind us, Lost by chance we should forget And put a tainted finger Upon the little pet, And I thought of daddy's kiddo, In our own most humble home, And I wondered if that doctor Had a baby of his own. —Peter Familiar.

Post-Election Paragraphs.
"Get better, Foy!" will hereafter be considered pretty fairly good grammar at Pendleton—Western Leader.

Now that the cat and dog fight is over at the county seat, the newly elected mayor will be certain to make good his oft repeated promise to guard carefully the best interests of Pendleton—Stanfield Optimist.

Talk about old Ross Tweed! Why, that Pendleton city election surely made the old fellow turn over in his grave, and scramble around to join the sirees at the county seat in their fight against the campaign ethics of Pricefighter Evans while the flower of physical manhood resounded in sleep at home. Be-l-i-eve-muh!—Mulligan Stew of Athena Press.

Fred Lockley, who is a keen observer and who knows advertising values, says, "Pendleton should by all means abandon the Round-up and stage an election once a year."

"Butte is a pretty exciting place and the excitement made my wife quite nervous," said J. E. Mulligan the day after the election, "so we decided to move to Pendleton. We came down town Monday evening and almost decided to go back to Butte to rest up a spell."

The north side was distinctly a Montgomery ward, but that doesn't necessarily mean that the voting was done by mail order.

Yep, She's Different, Alright. Soon after G. M. Rice had taken hold of the reins of the First National Bank some years ago, he made a visit to his old stamping grounds at Dayton, Bob Sayres, who is now in the mercantile business here, asked him what he thought of Pendleton, whereupon the banker undertook to describe this live little burg. Finally in despair he said, "I can't describe Pendleton to you, Bob. All I can say is that she's different."

Sayres has been here now going on two years and has been learning many things about Pendleton. Last Tuesday morning, which was the morning after election night, he put his head in the bank and called to Rice. "I know what you meant when you said Pendleton was different," he said.

Bribery.
In consideration of a good cigar we have agreed not to mention Judge Marsh's name in our column this week. We only refer to this to be perfectly fair to our readers and for the additional reason that we have not yet received the cigar.

A Friendly Tribute.
Milwaukee, Wis.—Clean minds and healthy result from eating peas. J. W. Hutchinson told the State Pea Packers' Association.

Whereupon we would recommend a pea diet to Colonel F. Billiken Boyd of the Athena Press.—Col. Wood in Western Leader.

No Apologies Necessary.
A whiskey-soaked individual stepped into the barber shop. To Barney O'Garra he said: "Give a dollar's worth of dimes." Barney looked into the till. "Sorry, old man, but I can't let you have them," he said. "O, thank's awright," said the stevedam. "I'm drunk myself."

An Explanation.
We received last week a letter referring to our recent item about Jim Bowler's champion corns. The writer suggested a remedy but we regret to say that we cannot run the letter inasmuch as it sounded like a paid advertisement from a druggist who sells "Get-It" and no remittance was enclosed.

Saloons Lack Business.
BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—There are now 1122 saloons in this city, or 15 less than licenses were granted for by the liquor board from May 1 last. Of the licenses granted five were not taken out and 11 were surrendered for cancellation because of lack of business.

The 25 hotels in the city are two less than the 27 for which licenses were granted in May. One was not taken out, two were surrendered for cancellation and one was granted for six months from November 1.

One club license granted for the year was not taken out, but the 15 clubs are one more than the 14 for which licenses were authorized in May. One club license was surrendered, but two were granted for six months.

SNOW FIGHTERS EXPELLED.
Six Wenatchee Students Punished for Attack on Sleighing Party. WENATCHEE, Wash., Dec. 12.—For participation in a snow fight with the freshmen while the latter were having a class sleigh ride, six upper classmen of the high school were expelled by Principal Eichelberger. They will not be allowed to attend classes until they apologize.

The suspended boys are J. P. Anderson, Keith Witt, Robert Sherrett, L. E. Cornell, Gilbert Pyle, Harley Farwell, four of them members of the football team. The attack was made in front of the library and ended in front of the Wenatchee General Hospital. It was at this time that Gilbert Pyle was poked through the nose with an umbrella.

DANCE SUNDAY LAW ISSUE.
Albany Officials Advise That Festivities Cease at Midnight. ALBANY, Ore., Dec. 12.—Does a dance which begins on Saturday night have to stop at midnight under the terms of the much-discussed Sunday closing law?

This is one of the many questions confronting local officers in the enforcement of the revised law. Officers here have advised the inspectors that if a charge is made for dancing, the festivities should stop at midnight Saturday. The law says that no place of amusement shall keep open on Sunday, and it was decided that a dance if conducted for profit, would come under that head.
