DEAL FOR GRIZZLIES IS ON.

Portland Zoo May Get Canadian Silver Tip Cub.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 6.—Washington Park zoo is to have a pair of fine silver-tip grizzly bear cubs from British Columbia if negotiations now on between Park Superintendent Conville and A. E. Christie, a gold miner in Victoria, B. C., are completed. Very few cubs in the United States have any grizzlies that close of the best family being scarce.

Mr. Christie has asked $100 for the pair, but Mr. Conville says he believes they can be bought for less. The animals were caught in northern British Columbia.

Jaunde or Yaunde, is a governmental station about 145 miles south-east of Duala. The Cameroons are a German colony.

The waste occasioned by coins rubbing together is said to cost the world a ton and a quarter of gold and 35 tons of silver annually.

Oves Her Good Health to Chamberlain's Tablets.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

When reading of the war in Europe, the stories of brave deeds by men on the field of battle take first place. Iron crosses for German heroes, Victoria crosses for the English heroes and crosses of the Legion of Honor for the heroes of France, are distributed with lavish hand to the men who offer themselves as food for the cannon. At home, however, is another class of brave, patient fighters for the mother countries but these are not mentioned in the orders or the day for valiant service. Their suffering is the more heroic for the silent agony and days of anxiety and the nights of unrest, wondering what has become of husband, brother, son or sweetheart who marched away with the regiment. These are the women of the lands now torn by war.

Marion Craig Wentworth wrote "War Brides" and it is doubtful if this classic of war has a better interpreter than Miss Olive Gwin. Her last evening gave a reading of this piece before a large audience at the Alta theater. There are seven characters in the story—four women and three men. One of the women is a war-bride, one has received a proposal to become a war-bride, one has a husband at the front, and the other woman is the aged mother who has given sons to the Fatherland. The setting is in a humble home, the time the present, and the place any war-stricken country. The struggle against war is the argument of the woman against her sons going to battle. The wedding ring of the war-bride is a ring of iron. Her place in the empire is to become the mother of men. She is influenced by the promise of a widow's pension. She does not weep for love but she weeps that the race may be replenished after war has taken its toll. Against this scheme of things—the edict of the Fatherland—the woman rebels. This, in brief, is what "War Brides" seeks to argue—that when the woman refuses to bear sons for war, war will cease. It is a story full of dramatic power and beauty.

Miss Gwin's first appearance before a Pendleton audience was well received. After several years of study she displays a marked ability as a reader, one gifted with the genius of making alive the characters of her story. For an hour, an audience of at least three hundred people listened to this story of "War Brides." It was an appreciative audience, as well as a critical one. The deep attention, followed by the generous applause at the close of her reading was the stamp of approval given this young Pendleton girl.

BIRD FOR ROOSEVELT OR HUGHES.

CHARLES SUMNER BIRD

Charles Sumner Bird, progressive candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1912 and 1913 will support either Roosevelt or Hughes for the presidency, according to an open letter which he sent to George W. Perkins, chairman of the Executive Committee of the progressive national committee.

In his letter Mr. Bird says: "There are two men, and two only, who have a ghost of a chance to defeat President Wilson next November—Justice Hughes and Col. Roosevelt. Either would be acceptable to the great majority of progressives, either would be satisfactory to the rank and file of the republican party."—Adv.

"GENERAL" COXEY TO RUN FOR SENATE.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 6.—"General" Jacob S. Coxey, wealthy manufacturer of Massillon, Ohio, who led the "Army of the Commonwealth" to Washington in 1894, has outlined plans for his campaign as an independent candidate for United States senator from Ohio, to succeed Senator Pomerenke next year.

He said he would run on a platform demanding that congress authorize the issue of one billion dollars legal tender currency, half of which is to be used to create a merchant marine and half for naval equipment or coast defenses.

EMBROIDERY TRADE DROPS. BERNE, via Paris, Jan. 6.—The French embroidery export to the United States in 1915 amounted to 37,400,000 francs, or about 2,000,000 francs less than in 1914. The record year for the export of embroideries to the United States was 1907, when value of exports amounted to 52,000,000 francs. Since then there has been a steady decrease. In 1912 exports amounted to 44,000,000 francs; in 1913 to 35,000,000; in 1914 to 39,000,000 francs. Especially remarkable was the decrease in machine-made embroideries, owing to the establishment of factories in America.

NUGGET FOUND IN GOOSE. DAYTON, Wash., Jan. 6.—A coin cleaner of the C. W. R. & N. living at Pasco, recently sent to Dayton for a goose for his New Year's dinner and it was purchased from G. Pratt, a commission merchant of this city. The purchaser was preparing the food for cooking when he noticed something unusually heavy in its crop and found a sizable gold nugget, valued at $13.50. It is not known from what part of Columbia county the bird came, but if there are more nuggets of that value along any of the creeks, the people here are going to find out about it.

Woman City Treasurer. HERMISTON, Ore., Jan. 6.—The newly elected city treasurer of Hermiston is Miss Maude Phelps, who is perhaps the youngest city treasurer in Oregon. She had just passed her 21st year when elected and will take office January 11. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Phelps of Hermiston, and a niece of Judge G. W. Phelps of the circuit court of Pendleton. Miss Phelps has given in the required bonds.

MRS. MAURY I. DIGGS. SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Maury I. Diggs and Marsha Warrington, two of the figures of the "white slave" case which caused a nation-wide sensation in 1913, have been married in Oakland across the bay from this city. Diggs is now under sentence to serve five years in a federal prison for taking Marsha Warrington to Nevada in 1913 and living with her there. His case, as that of his chum, S. Drew Caminetti, is now before the United States supreme court in review. Diggs and his wife will live in Oakland, where he has built up a business.

Stories From the War Zone

BY WILBUR S. FORBES.

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) LONDON, Dec. 2.—(By Mail.)—When a German torpedo destroyed the Lusitania May 7, causing riots and the subsequent wholesale internment of enemy aliens, England kept its solution of the difficult internment problem strictly secret. After seven months the United Press is able today, through the courtesy of the war office, to tell the story for the first time.

British leniency and German thoroughness have co-ordinated to make England's enemy internment business a positive success. Five London Bobbies and a ten foot fence of American barbed wire guard 750 of the Kaiser's clegibles at Islington, North London. Inside a great central building and auxiliary structures which in antebellum days composed a municipal refuge for the poor, is today a model system of self-government where 750 "citizens" have worked out their own restricted salvation for the duration of the war.

Take note of the Germans, you would meet on the streets of Milwaukee, St. Louis or Cincinnati and you would know the appearance of the personnel of Islington. Almost all these were business heads, clerks, bakers, butchers, barbers, cabinet-makers, bookbinders or tradesmen in London before the Lusitania fiasco. In May hundreds of them were bundled up and sent to Islington away from harm and mischief.

The 750 were placed in charge of Major Halladay, who has seen service in India. He divided the internees into units of between 20 and 40 and instructed each group to elect a captain. The captains met and elected a council of captains a wealthy Prussian business man of London before the war. Presided over by this dignitary, a council of captains is held daily to adjudicate disputes, consider claims and administer business. If judgment of this body is unsatisfactory the case may be passed to Major Halladay.

The wealthy citizen was forced to occupy regulation quarters. These quarters, in the main building, are ample. They consist of high walled, well ventilated rooms, where from eight to fifteen sanitary couches are ranged along the walls. On each is a mattress, blankets and pillow. These together with general lavatories, washrooms and bathrooms on every floor, make this internment camp more like a well-planned hotel. Large day rooms where visitors may be entertained, a commodious yard with a rain shelter, workshops, a tennis court, dining rooms and tea rooms, make it unnecessary for the men to occupy their sleeping quarters during daylight.

Afternoon tea is a daily event. Here is the routine: Arise at eight; breakfast at 8:30; work, study or diversion until noon (working is optional) but hundreds are busy at various tasks.
