LEAN ON THYSELF.
Faith cannot rescue, and no blood redeem
The soul that will not reason and resolve.
Lean on thyself, yet prop thyself with prayer;
It hope no more
Sends prayer footstool forth o'er weary wastes;
While he who calls it hope gives wings to prayer;
And there are spirits, messengers of love,
Who come at call to fortify our strength;
Make friends with him, and with thine inner self,
Cast out all envy, bitterness and hate,
And keep the mind's fair tabernacle pure.
Shake hands with grief, give greeting unto pain—
Those angels in disguise; and thy glad soul
From height to height, from star to shining star,
Shall climb and claim blest immortality.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

PENDLETON'S GOOD HEALTH

GOOD health to an individual is a big asset always and a community with a favorable health record has something of which to be proud. Pendleton has such a record and the facts as to conditions during the past year are set forth in the report of the city physician, read before the council Wednesday night. In his report Dr. Temple states some of the reasons for the fact Pendleton has been a healthful town during the past 12 months. He emphasizes the value of a good water system and of the sanitary precautions taken. These of course are factors in good health. Another factor too valuable to be unnoticed may be found in our bracing sunny weather which puts vigor into people and thus enables them to throw off disease.

REMEMBER THE CHINAS
INQUIRIES reach the East Oregonian as to whether effective steps are being taken to feed the China pheasants brought here from western Oregon and protected in various small reserves along the Umatilla.

The question is timely for of course it would be a blunder in more ways than one to allow these game birds to die of starvation while the ground is covered with snow.

The law protects these beautiful game birds from slaughter by hunters but such protection will not avail against King Winter.

If such work has not been done already will not the game department find this a fit place for activity on the part of the deputies.

A SAFE SUBJECT

A recent bulletin by the Geological Survey has the following to say about the country now included in the boundaries of Nebraska: Could the traveler in Nebraska restore the landscape of late Tertiary time, he would find himself surrounded by scenes greatly different from those of the present. The swampy lowlands were covered with vegetation similar to that now growing in moist climates farther south. Camels and llamas were abundant, and during the Pliocene epoch great ground sloths and glyptodonts, whose relatives now live in South America, inhabited western Nebraska. Mastodons with tusks on both upper and lower jaws much like those of the Miocene epoch, still persisted. Short-legged rhinoceroses remained abundant, and there was a great variety of wolf-like carnivora. Sabertoothed tigers and true cats, some of them considerably larger than the modern tigers were also abundant. Three-toed horses were still numerous, but the modern genus Equus was not among them. One of the most curious animals of the time in Kansas and Nebraska was a gopher-like rodent that had two large horns on its nose. Its enormous claws indicate good burrowing powers and its horns also may have been used in digging.

Very interesting and somewhat startling. But it is strange how our scientists are able to narrate so accurately about the mysteries of millions of years ago when present day problems are often too much for them to master. Is it because the prehistoric mastodons, llamas and three toed horses are unable to make denial?

That increase of 10 per cent in the wages of 240,000 men employed in the steel mills of the east has an optimistic sound.

But the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot bring about any reductions in the ocean rates for handling grain.

It looks more and more like conscription for England.

CURRENT THINKING

THE LATEST GARY DINNER.
New York World.)
It is easy to exaggerate the importance of the dinner given by Judge Gary to Col. Roosevelt which were ten years ago 'so friendly to the White House. In 1904 the trust gave bountifully to the Roosevelt campaign fund. In 1907 the president allowed it to absorb the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, contrary to law; and the prosecution of the trust under Taft was the first cause of the great republican schism of 1912.

The guests were in harmony with the men above the suit. Mr. Perkins was a generous contributor to the republican fund in 1904 and to the progressive funds in 1912 and he is still the almoner of the Bull Moose cause; he is prominent in the Harvester Trust, as well as the Steel Trust, and in Mr. Roosevelt's time both benefited by governmental favor. Mr. Cretion was successively President Roosevelt's secretary of commerce and labor, with jurisdiction over the bureau of corporations, and the chief fat-fryer of corporations as chairman of the republican national committee. The others are familiar figures in the offices of "good trusts," as distinguished from bad trusts.

vice a day, at 2:30 in the afternoon and at 7:30 at night.

Miss Caffray, the song leader, assists in all the services and leads the children's meetings.

Mrs. Danford assists in many of the meetings and leads morning cottage prayer meetings.

Dr. Danford preached last night on the subject, "There is no difference," and at the close called for seekers, when many came to the altar of prayer.

The crowds are increasing and much active interest is being manifested by the Methodists in the services.

Dr. Danford is one of the leading men in the church and by his unique and striking way of putting the truth before the people, is attracting many who have not heretofore attended meetings of this kind. The meetings are free to everybody and a cordial welcome meets you more than double the circulation of last year which in turn was larger than the previous year. In 1914 there were 22,234 volumes circulated so that the total of 47,963 books read this year shows a gain of 119 per cent.

LIBRARY REPORT.
This is an average of nine books per person registered and speaks well for the cultural tastes of the county's population.
Reference Work. Other valuable work done by the library is the reference work but the measure of its value can never be shown in figures. It can only be realized in those to whom it has been done. The calls for information on special subjects studied by clubs, debaters and students both of Pendleton and neighboring towns takes a great deal of the time of the library staff. All the help possible is given to members of study clubs, their programs being on file at the library and reference lists made for individual study as needed. Materials that can not be supplied from our own shelves is borrowed from the state library. There have been added to the reference library 263 volumes of bound magazines which clears the library of a mass of unwanted material that for years has been hard to keep in order and which in bound form now supplies one of the most valuable assets to efficient reference work.
The correspondence necessitated in sending books to and from the branch libraries, answering out of town reference questions and in carrying on the business affairs of the library system, is no small item in the day's work. Over one thousand letters have been written from the central library on individual subjects needing attention.
A picture collection has been started this year for the use of teachers and students. The pictures are being mounted on cardboard 11x14 inches on either brown, card or gray mounts corresponding to the tone of the picture. This gives a collection that appears well in any surroundings, whether in school room or woman's club and adds that much more to the esthetic value of the picture collection. Special filing cases for the picture collection have been designed in the loan desk of the new library where they will be easily accessible to all.
Budget. The library has adopted a budget system, though it is not required by law, in order that the greatest care may be taken in expending the funds wisely. Although it is difficult for most public libraries to receive as much as twenty per cent of the maintenance funds for book purchases, the Umatilla County Library was able according to its 1915 budget to place thirty-nine per cent of its funds for books and periodicals. This is largely due to the county system with centralization of administration and the consequent saving which follows all cooperative effort. Reduction of the ordinary outlay expenses and corresponding increase of book resources, places the growth where it naturally belongs in public library administration. A balance in maintenance funds has been carefully carried to provide for running expenses until the next tax funds are due.
Branch Libraries. There are now thirteen branch libraries throughout the county and fifteen stations in rural schools from which have been circulated 24,981 books during the year. The branch circulation has exceeded that of Pendleton by 4549 volumes. Athena leads the branches in the number of books read, 6769. Milton stands second with 5159 and Brewster third with 2425 in ranking the branches as to books read per capita population. Athena ranks first with 115, Adams second with 55 and Brewster third with 44. In ranking branches as regards to quality of reading Vincoast school (now Emaline) ranks first with 49 per cent non-fiction. The registration rank lists gives Adams first place with 81 per cent of population registered, Standley second with 59 per cent registered and Hely third with 53 per cent registered. Adams, Milton and Vincent also subscribe for magazines for the reading tables.

Miscellaneous. A list of donors of books, periodicals, etc., during 1915, is appended to this report and shows a good number of friends who have remembered the library in various ways. The East Oregonian and Tribune are constantly given valuable space in their issues to library news, book lists and matters of interest that help in putting before the public the opportunities afforded by the library. The Tribune gave full page space to the County Library in one of the Round-Up editions.
Seventy-six magazines and newspapers are being received at the central library, twenty-one of which are gifts. Expiration dates of purchased subscriptions have been adjusted during the year and all combined in one order to extend over the same period of time. This greatly simplifies the records.
Music. On account of the increased attendance on Sunday afternoons when musical programs are given and in view of the interest shown in the class of music we have furnished at the library, I recommend, as soon as the library can afford it, that a good Edison phonograph or Victrola be purchased for the library. Music of the greatest composers and musicians can be brought directly to us by means of the Victrola. Large groups of children and others can be entertained and educated at a very small comparative expense and in this way enjoy musical treats now possible only to the well-to-do. The new educational records being made for work with children would be fully as valuable to them as many of the books about musicians that they now find so interesting. The Victrola would be a great adjunct to the story hour or even take its place in libraries where special story hour preparation is impractical.
