

Coffee

If you had the time and knowledge, could pick from the world's coffee, and had the proper roasting and grinding facilities, you might roast your own coffee every morning before breakfast.

Still we should say, "If you don't like Schilling's Best better, your grocer returns your money."

Evenly ground, freed of chaff, its rich flavor safe—sealed in airtight tins.

BARRE OF 4 PUTS OUT FIRE.

Youngster Spanked for Using Milk to Save Family Home.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—"Take some new soap since the deeds of Becky, a fat and blue-eyed, who used yesterday the only fluid in sight when she took a hand in putting out the fire in the ancestral Rothschild flat at 38 Orchard street, New York. Thus the baby's milk was wasted and Becky became a heroine unappreciated, even spanked."

"Eight good cents wasted," sighed Mrs. Sarah Rothschild, the widowed mother of five children, all under 12 years old. "And I can get no more milk the while it's our holiday," she added, lighting the Sabbath candles. At this Eva, the baby, frankly unwilling to suffer deprivation to keep her home intact, set up a howl.

Meanwhile, Becky's 11-year-old sister, Sarah, is getting all the credit for playing the part of little mother and saving the home. She deserves some of it, for when she came home from public school to find a flame licking the kitchen wall she promptly carried her sick brother, Jacob, 7 years old, down three flights of stairs, returned for Baby Eva, and, lastly, cradled Becky from her self-appointed fireman's task. Then she turned in the alarm before notifying her mother, who keeps a bread stand at Hester and Orchard streets. "Was all very well but still she didn't pour milk on the fire, did she?" Becky asks now.

"Becky put out the blaze," she says, "using herself the dignity of the third person and serene in the consciousness of well doing, although spanked."

"Lots of men and women come with buckets, and they wanted to put the fire out. Then the engines came and made tools and they wanted to put the fire out. But Becky had did it with the milk."

The fire started from the ignition of some clothes which hung drying behind the stove.

Give Horse Square Deal.

ELIZABETH, N. Y., Jan. 12.—"Give the horse his share of the road and a chance to say and prosper." The New York State Association of Horsemen addressed this petition to the 1916 legislature here today. The object of the new organization is the improvement of the quality and the increase of the horse-breeding industry. The legislature is asked to reserve a part of all state roads and highways exclusively for horse-drawn vehicles. The great number of autos are causing the trotter and racer in the stable for safety first reasons, horsemen declare. Statistics give an automobile to every 41 persons in the state.

SEES GRAVE MENACE OF PRUSSIANISM IN PREPAREDNESS PLAN

PUBLICIST SAYS WE SHOULD GET READY TO PUT STOP TO ALL WAR.

Present Craze Leads Straight to Militarism, Says Speaker—Former Assistant Attorney General Hoar Declares We Should Hasten to Stop Present Conflict.

(By United Press.)

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—Speaking in Pausan Hall before the closing session of the conference of the Society to Eliminate Economic Causes of War, Raymond L. Bridgman, publicist, declares the most vital purpose of preparedness is not preparedness for war, but preparedness against war. He said in part:

"Not in our purpose preparedness for war, but preparedness against war; not that we may be able to fight successfully, if we are forced, but that we may not be forced."

"The present popular craze for preparedness for war leads straight to militarism. Prussian preparedness, the very root of modern militarism, was the direct cause of the exhausting armaments of modern European nations. Militarism inevitably perverts national moral sense. It breeds treachery, the policy of frightfulness, cruelty, slaughter, the trampling of treaties as scraps of paper, the sinking of Lusitania, the murder of the Armenian nations, the shooting of Edith Cavell. Human nature is the same in America as abroad. That is what preparedness for war will do for us."

"Let us waste no time trying to stop the present war. That question will be settled by the belligerents themselves. If we would prevent war we must eliminate the causes of war. Cause should be distinguished from occasion. The cause is what builds the pyre for a world conflagration, whereas the occasion is merely the match that happens to set it off. The monster we must blame for laying the foundation for the present war is a Jekyll-Hyde sort of deity, whose good name is Patriotism and whose bad name is Nationalism. A few score years ago we owed our allegiance to the state, today we owe it to the nation, tomorrow we shall owe it to the international."

Russian Attacks Heavy.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The Russians have resumed their heavy attack against the Austrian lines in eastern Galicia and in Bukovina, and in some places succeeded in penetrating Austrian positions, but are declared in the official statement by the Vienna war office, received here, to have been ultimately ejected. The statement says:

"The battle in Eastern Galicia and on the Bukovina frontier has been resumed. The Russians advanced under the protection of fog until our batteries on the Stripa and the Sixteenth and Twenty-fourth Honvéd regiments and the Fifty-seventh Galician regiment, by a counter attack ejected the enemy. Among 770 Russians taken prisoners were one colonel and 10 lesser officers."

"There has been bitter fighting near Toporovitz and east of Raranovsz on the Besarabian frontier. The Russians entered parts of our trenches, but were driven back by reserves in hand-to-hand fighting. One officer and 250 men were taken prisoners."

"The Russians attempted to retake the cemetery north of Chortoryski but failed."

POET, PLAYWRIGHT, BURGLAR DREAMED OF ROMANCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—Poet, playwright and author by day; burglar by night—that's how Frederick Glanz describes himself. Upon a lot of hard hearted editors he blames the combination. He didn't have the nerve to face the blue pencil, after several rejections, but he had the nerve to turn burglar.

"I dreamed of romance," he said, "but none came my way. I found my manuscripts turned down. Then something happened. But how, I can't explain. The poetry, the art was there, but a Frankenstein monster had overpowered me; I had been hotel clerk, gardener, bum; then I was a burglar. I hated to do it at first, but it didn't seem so bad after I'd done my 'job' in the San Quentin 'pen.'" Now he faces the prospect of another term. This is what he writes of Freedom: "For Freedom's song is better sung when prairie and mountain surround; 'Tis a theme comes tardily from the cage, in cities, where wrongs abound."
