Train Service Almost Normal.

The train service on the O-W. R. & N. lines continues almost normal, no fresh trouble being reported. No. 8 from Portland came in a little after 8 this morning and No. 17 from the east was scheduled to arrive early this afternoon.

Cattle Losses Light.

In the view of Ross Carney, manager of the Pendleton Meat Co., the cattle losses in Umatilla county have thus far been light. Aside from the cattle lost by the Indians there are practically no losses reported. The situation is serious, however, with many stockmen and they are praying for the snow to go so that there may be early grass for the stock.

No More Money to Loan.

At the last meeting of the city water commission, it was decided that no more loans will be made out of the sinking fund. The water department in three years will have to take up a $45,000 bond issue sold 17 years ago for the improvement of the old system. As the money from present loans comes in, it will be placed in the banks and four per cent certificates of deposit taken out so that the cash will be available for taking up the bonds when the time comes.

Special Assistant Librarian.

Owing to the illness of one of the library staff and also to the increase of work caused by the rapid growth of the Umatilla county library, Mrs. Vida I. Smith has been engaged for a six months period as special assistant at the library. Mrs. Smith has taken the course in the Portland Library training class and has since been on the staff of the Portland library from which position she is temporarily spared to help in the emergency in the county library.

Fire in Wagon House.

An exploding lantern this morning about 10:20 caused a fire in the covered wagon at 1407 West Court street, back of the Al Richardson residence. The family of Mrs. Stewart, a colored woman, is living in the wagon and a fire in a stove near which the lantern was sitting, caused the explosion. An alarm was turned in and the fire truck succeeded in making the run through the slush though the fire had been extinguished before the firemen arrived. The damage done will amount to approximately $50.

Snowball Battle Fought.

A hot battle in which cold snowballs were missiles was fought yesterday afternoon at the Main street bridge between two groups of high school students. The greater force occupied positions at the south approach of the bridge while a half dozen other boys, protected by snow trenches in front of the Brown furniture, replied to their fire. For a half hour they held their own against big odds and, when reinforced by a number of spectators, charged and routed the enemy. The chief casualty was a swollen eye received by one of the bridge battlers.

Mrs. Frank Swaggart Dies.

Mrs. Anna Swaggart, wife of Frank Swaggart, died last Saturday at her home near Enterprise according to word received here, and the body is expected to arrive this afternoon. It will be taken to Athena where funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Deceased was a former resident of Athena and her husband is a son of Link Swaggart, prominent farmer of Athena who is here today to meet his son. Owing to the snow blockade of the railroad into Wallawa county, the latter was forced to bring the body out by sleigh. The mother of the deceased, Mrs. Thomas, lives at Sunnyside, Wn.

Clean The Sidewalks.

Considerable complaint has been made during the past few days because residents have not been cleaning off their sidewalks. The thaw has reduced the snow to a soft slush underfoot and children have difficulty in getting to school with dry feet.

Petition for Administrator.

Charles P. Collins this morning filed a petition in the probate court, asking to be appointed administrator for the estate of Herman Schmeil of Milton who died in Jan. 27. The estate consists of two houses and lots in Milton valued at $1500 and personal property valued at $405.41. Deceased is survived by a divorced wife and four children.

Students to Beautify Grounds.

This evening at a board meeting plans for the improvement and beautification of the high school grounds will be discussed. The plans, when adopted, will be turned over to the agricultural department under Principal L. P. Gambee, and the students will work them out. Principal Gambee has been conferring with the landscape architect of the Oregon Agricultural college. The regular board meeting was held last evening but, aside from the allowing of bills, the only business transacted was the authorization of the purchase of 27 new hat and cloak lockers for the high school.

Snowshoe Party is Back After Rescue of Man in Cascades

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 9.—A snowshoe party reached Portland this morning after saving James Templeton, a homesteader, from starvation in the Cascades near Larch mountain. Four men battled through the snow from Sunday morning until Monday noon, reaching Templeton, who was so weak from lack of food, just in time to save his life.

LOCAL MAN INVENTOR.

Kellenberger's invention, if it operates as confidently expected, will eliminate this feature of "Fording."

Mr. Kellenberger has never had any claim to being an inventive genius. He declares this is his first invention and will be his last. The idea was born of a recognized need and he developed it quickly, he states. The actual designing of the model took more time. He went to Spokane last week and had his model cast.

This morning he fitted it on to one of the oldest Fords in the city and made a demonstration. With six men in the car he traveled easily through the slushy streets on the new gear and, with the compound gear, climbed the south Main street hill without difficulty. In fact he stopped dead still half way up and then started again. Evidencing the great power the compound gears give the machine, he butted the car up against a post in the garage and, with chains on the back wheels, spun them around and around on the floor.

Mr. Kellenberger has not yet definitely formulated his plans for marketing his invention. He has had offers from several companies but has refused them all. A number of local men have money ready to put in the venture. He has had no negotiations with the Ford company and declares any proposition must come from the company. His rights are fully protected by patent. The chief difficulty in manufacturing the gears results from the fact that steel factories are rushed with wartime orders. The device is so simply constructed that it can easily be attached to any Ford at a low expense, probably not more than $25.
