SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

A beautiful success of the week was the reception given yesterday afternoon for Mrs. James Alger Fee, a recent bride, by Mrs. James Albert Fee at the Judge Fee home on Post street. Despite the inclement weather a large number of smartly gowned matrons and maids took advantage of the occasion to meet Mrs. Fee junior.

Spring flowers were used as decorations. The reception room was in yellow, great quantities of yellow roses, tulips and daffodils carrying out the color scheme. Long-stemmed Killarney roses but their beauty to the dining room and about the punch bowl was a mass of Cecil Brunner roses.

The guests were met at the door by little Miss Marjorie Best in a dainty lace dress and she took their cards. Mrs. Nesmith Ankeny received the guests and ushered them to the receiving line in which were the two Mrs. Fees and Mrs. Kalla Waldo of Syracuse, New York, the mother of the younger Mrs. Fee.

Serving punch were Mrs. James S. Johns, Mrs. William E. Lowell and Mrs. Merle R. Chouman and assisting them were Mrs. Lester Hurst, Miss Margaret Lowell and Miss Eleanor Vincent. THEDA BARA, AS "VANIA" IN "THE SERPENT" AGAIN SHINES IN VAMPIRE ROLE

The Grand Duke sees for the first time Vania, who is in love with Andrey Sobol, a young peasant. Vyaloff is enraptured with her charms and decides that he will see her again. To further his purpose he leaves his gold cigarette case in the serf's cottage when taking his departure. The case is found by Ivan, who, fearing that he will be accused of theft, sends Vania to return it to its owner.

The Grand Duke's plans have worked as he expected. He greets Vania joyously and makes ardent love to her. Following her seduction, he maintains her in style and lavishes upon her every gewgaw that her heart desires. The sudden change in station is almost beyond the comprehension of the daughter of the poverty-stricken serf. And yet she likes her new life. It is so different from anything she has known.

Vyaloff, ultimately tiring of Vania, makes an effort to conceal the fact that his infatuation has waned. Despite her pleadings, he casts Vania off, and devotes his attention to some new charmer. It is the turning point in Vania's life. That she ever would be separated from the Grand Duke has never been conceivable to her. She analyzes the cause of her plight, and she resolves the cause into one word—Man!

Vania arrives in Paris. The war is in progress. As she watches one of the long lines of wounded soldiers pass by she notices a face which awakens memories. She makes inquiry and discovers that the wounded officer is Prince Vyaloff, son of the Grand Duke. She helps nurse him back to health, and he, too, falls victim to her charms.

Shortly after their marriage the Grand Duke, who is ignorant that the Prince is wed, sends word that he is coming to visit his beloved and only son. The prince is called away before his father's arrival. Vania greets the Grand Duke, who does not recognize her. He makes love to her after she has turned him on. The Prince returns at the appointed hour, known to Vania, and finding his wife trapped in the arms of his own father, commits suicide. The last drop of venom from "The Serpent" fans has found its mark.

Dulcine Frederick at Alta Tomorrow. Pauline Frederick, the beautiful emotional star, famous for her great work in "Sold," "Zaza," "Bella Donna," etc., will appear in her latest great success "Lydia Gilmore" at the Alta theater tomorrow and Saturday. In addition there will be two new vaudeville acts.

Sunday, the world famous prima donna of Carmen fame will be offered in her latest success, "Temptation."

Those who saw Geraldine Farrar, the noted prima donna, as the half-wild, wholly fascinating gypsy in the lasky photo-dramatic production of "Carmen," will have an opportunity to see her in a totally different role in "The Temptation." In "The Temptation" Miss Farrar is seen as a struggling young singer, who refuses to sacrifice her love for a penniless young composer, for fame on the operatic stage.

The Belasco and Robson Men (The Co.) will come one of its most successful engagements ever played at the Alta theater this evening. They have appeared in a succession of crowded houses that has taken the seating capacity of the theater. Tonight First

BIG DOUBLE BILL

Henry Woodruff and Tsuru Aoki In "The Beckoning Flame"

Suppose it was the custom to burn American wives alive on the death of the husband, and that a chivalrous foreigner tried to save the bride of a high official. What do you think the populace would do?

There's a situation something like this in "The Beckoning Flame," the weird East Indian story of the romantic adventures of an English Army Officer.

Told in a true TRIANGLE way, brings your heart to your throat as you fear for the life of the dainty Indian maiden.

And best of all, in addition to the daring of this great production is a pretty little love story and an exhibition of sacrifice such as you have seldom seen.

This marvelous picture is a real treat that you cannot afford to miss. Everyone loves it, everyone appreciates it, and everyone talks about it. Come to-night.
