As in the past so in the future will Pendleton's location prove an important factor in connection with local growth and development. At times new blessings will come to us almost in the nature of surprises. The freight terminal was located near here without effort on the part of the city. Six weeks ago no one knew we were soon to have a harvester factory in course of construction. But we have it underway and it will soon be in successful operation giving employment to many people.

There will be further opportunities open to us in the future beyond question. "Unto those that hath, shall be given' is a motto that covers our case. We have a live and busy town and business begets business. People see that we have a 'place in the sun" and that is the sort of town they seek.

The only essential is that the town maintain an open door policy toward worthy new enterprises and be ready to get a rope on all good chances that come our way.

CONNECT WITH THE CO-LUMBIA

FROM a host of people the ing congratulations on the stand it has taken in favor of road connections with the open Columbia river. People are able to see the economic advantage of getting in position to make use of the great transporation artery that has brought us freight rate reductions in the past and will do so to an even greater extent in the future if we take intelligent action. They are aware that we must assert ourselves if we are to get the benefits from the
