WILLIAM FARNUM IS PECULIARLY FITTED BY BRAIN AND BRAWN

Physical Powers As Well As Dramatic Art Required in Role of GIPSY.

Few actors, granting that they possessed the requisite histrionic talent, would have been qualified to play Daniel Esmond, William Farnum's role in the William Fox photoplay masterpiece, "The Broken Law."

This stupendous feature has to do with the destiny of a gypsy lover, and necessarily calls for an artist skilled in romantic acting. That is not all, however, for it takes one other requirement—brawn.

Were not Farnum the physical culture enthusiast that he is, he would never have survived the fight scene in "The Broken Law." The play is cast in England in 1850, and the fight between Farnum, as Esmond, and Gaspar, who also aspires to be chief of the clan, is with bare fists, in accordance with the boxing rules then in force. And the fight is real—thrillingly real—in so far as the weight of the blows is concerned.

While Farnum's physical prowess is also called into play when he rescues his sweetheart from drowning, the photoplay makes its principal appeal through its tender, underlying love story. It is Farnum's best vehicle since he has been a screen star, and it is one of William Fox's greatest achievements since he invaded the picture world.

In addition to the above, chapter seven of the Vitagraph serial featuring Anita Stewart and Earle Williams will also be shown. Pastime today only.

"The Ragamuffin" Tense Photoplay. In a worn blue swathed and a dilapidated boy's cap, Blanche Sweet, the beautiful Lasky star, will make her appearance at the Alta theater today and tomorrow in the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Ragamuffin," which was written especially for her by Wm. C. De Mille, the distinguished American dramatist.

That Miss Sweet is more charming than ever in this slim costume goes without saying and her millions of friends who have seen her in evening gowns and the latest fashions will be more than delighted with her as the cute little "tough" in her forthcoming release.

In addition to the above there will be presented two big time vaudeville acts. Emill Checriel comes highly recommended as a comedy violinist. Le Vere and Palmer in a quick change comedy musical act have a novelty offering that is sure to please. They will be seen at the Alta theater today and tomorrow.

Vaudeville Makes Big Hit at Temple. Miller and Rainey in comic oddities kept the house in an uproar last night. We can cheerfully recommend this show to our patrons. The great Salvador in his cannonball act is a rare treat. This is two of the best acts we have ever staged. In addition "The House of Fear," a Gold Rooster play in five parts, and Helen Holmes in "The Girl and the Game" Temple today.

Oregon produces over two million feet of lumber, approximately 160 million lath, and 275 1-2 million shingles. Of this quantity, she consumes nearly 23 million lath and over 115 million shingles. Of the amount of lumber produced, Oregon consumes 15.3 per cent, or 411 million board feet, over half of which is used for building purposes. Nearly half of the building material of the lath and of the shingles is used in Multnomah and Clackamas counties.

Notice. To all who are interested in helping to beautify and those who have relatives buried at the cemetery, we earnestly ask of you to look over deceased graves and where you find sunken ones to haul dirt and fill them up. We find many graves in bad condition.

Machine Out of Gasoline Forced to Land; Motor Train Finds Him Using Plane As Shield Against the Scorching Sun; Flight Is Resumed After Tank Is Refilled. COLUMBIA, N. M., March 24.—Lieutenant Edgar S. Gorrell, of the United States Aero Corps, who has been missing since last Sunday was found three miles south of Ascension by a motor truck train under Lieutenant J. L. Parkinson, Twentieth Infantry, according to reports made to military headquarters here. Lieutenant Gorrell was uninjured, but was out of gasoline and had lost his way. Lieutenant Gorrell had been alone for 48 hours in the middle of a sand-swept, uninhabited plateau on the borders of Lake Proterico, formerly used for a watering place for stock, but suffered only slightly from exposure. His plane was intact. Gasoline Leak Is Cause. All of the eight army aviators who left Sunday to fly to Casas Grandes have been accounted for. The flyer said that shortly after the start he lost sight of the other planes and missed his way. After flying for miles over the surrounding country in an effort to determine his whereabouts he was forced to alight on the plateau because of a leaking fuel tank. The gasoline ceased away and he was unable to find the leak in the darkness. There were no signs of human habitation and no vegetation on the height except burned clumps of bunchgrass. He finally made his way to a recently abandoned American camping place on the wagon trail about six miles southeast. There he placed a note telling of his whereabouts and conditions on a stick which he firmly drove in the ground near the trail. Man Foodless 24 Hours. Being unwilling to leave his plane unprotected, he made his way back to the lake, with the realization that if he attempted to find a village he probably would wander in the hills at the risk of encountering bands of wild animals. He said he was confident his note would be found before the three days' rations with which he was supplied gave out. When he was rescued he had been without food for 24 hours and said that he had about determined to attempt to find his way to success. Aboard the trucks which reached him were several barrels of gasoline, and, with the aid of some tools obtained from the truck men, Lieutenant Gorrell soldered his tank and resumed his flight, which he predicted would end in Casas Grandes in a hour. He left the earth with a wave of his hand to the soldiers on the truck train as he shouted, "I'll get there this time, boys." Death Regarded Possible. The party from the motor found Lieutenant Gorrell sitting under the shade of his plane in an attempt to shield himself from the intense glare of the sun. "It was a long, lonesome wait," he said. "One in which I could not help but feel that I was face to face with death. But I was comforted by the thoughts that some of the American troops on their way to Casas Grandes could not help but find my note. Yet, there were times when I was about ready to give up." For several days aeroplane scouts and cavalrymen from Casas Grandes have been searching the hills of northern Chihuahua for some traces of Lieutenant Gorrell, or of his plane. When he failed to report today army men practically gave up hope of his safety.

ern part of town and another further east on the south side and the city property in the east end be cleared and made with little expense into a beautiful natural park, and camp ground conveniences should be provided for automobiles and other travelers. We hope to carry on a vigorous fly campaign during all the season. We are anxious that all bill boards be eliminated and other unsightly places be improved and a few places near Pendleton's front door, the depot, need attention. This is only a vague outline of what we hope to accomplish during the year. Some of the work will be done, more perhaps remain undone, for as most of us are housewives our time is necessarily limited for interests outside the home. However, we are trying to do only the lesser things. Things which men with their busy lives have neither the time or inclination to do. Small betterments which in community life, as in the home add materially, we believe, to the sum total of human happiness. We have promised to assist in beautifying Olney cemetery and have made an effort to respond as far as possible to every call. It is our ambition that Pendleton shall be known and noted for its cleanliness, purity and beauty, as it is now for its commercial supremacy. And if in the past the Civic Club has been, in a measure successful in its undertakings, it has been principally due to the loyalty and generosity of the Pendleton men.
