STANLEY JEWETT IS AUTHORITY ON BIRD LIFE IN THE STATE

MEMBER OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY IS AUTHOR OF SEVERAL ARTICLES.

How many people of Umatilla county have any idea of the number of different species of birds in this part of the state? How many can recognize more than a dozen birds when they see them? How many know what birds are common and what are rare in these parts?

Pendleton is now the home of one of the foremost authorities in the northwest on bird and animal life. He is Stanley Jewett of the biological survey, author of many articles on the fauna of the northwest and who has worked for the government and state for many years gathering biological data.

Sunday Mr. Jewett took a walk up the river and noted 54 different species of birds. This is only about a third of the different species that are to be found here, he estimates, and he expects within a few months to have a complete catalogue of the bird and animal life of Umatilla county.

Mr. Jewett doesn't have to see a bird to tell what it is. He knows it by its song or call and can give its common or scientific name without consulting any book. He has something over 1200 specimens in his own collection and has gathered several thousands for the government and state while out Sunday Mr. Jewett discovered a black-headed grosbeak dead on its nest, evidently having been killed by a hawk. He skinned the bird and stuffed it to add to his collection.

Of the 54 kinds of birds, Mr. Jewett saw Sunday the rarer in these parts were Bacheider's woodpecker, ash-throated flycatcher, slate-colored sparrow and house-finch. The following is a list of the various species he encountered and also of nests that he located:

Cassins vireo, western warbling vireo, Bacheider's woodpecker, Lewis' woodpecker, Red-shafted flicker, Ash-throated flycatcher, Traill's flycatcher, western kingbird, eastern kingbird, western chipping sparrow, slate colored sparrow, Merrill's song sparrow, spurred towhee, Lazuli bunting, black-headed grosbeak, mourning dove, ruffed grouse, western crow, western meadow lark, western robin, long-tailed chickadee, long-tailed chat, belted kingfisher, maspie, yellow warbler, western yellow-throat, killdeer, spotted sandpiper, Brewer's blackbird, desert sparrow hawk, Pacific nighthawk, house finch, American Meranser, Bullock's oriole.

Nests found—Red-shafted flicker, western kingbird, slate-colored sparrow, Lazuli bunting, black-headed grosbeak, western crow, western robin, magpie.

Death Ends Life Hope.

KANSAS CITY, June 20.—For 12 years Julian Derenski, 36 years old, a theological student, looked forward to the time when he would be ordained in the priesthood and conduct his first mass. He was ordained at the Redemptorist Chapel Tuesday. Today he died of pneumonia at the South Side hospital.

Mr. Derenski's parents lived in Chicago. He took his vows in Kansas City five years ago before going to the Redemptorist Seminary at Oconomowoc, Wis., to study for the priesthood.

He came to Kansas City May 19 to be ordained and was taken ill shortly later. Tuesday was the day set for the ordination ceremony and though weak, Mr. Derenski insisted on being ordained. The excitement of the ceremony weakened him. He wished to be allowed to officiate at one mass before he died, but was too ill.

Writer Seeks Scarcion.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Letters indicating that Mrs. Annette Ewart, Schwarz Fleischer, traveler, lecturer and public schoolteacher, is an extremely temperamental person and even now is writing a book about herself which is to make her "noted or notorious"—she hasn't quite decided which—were submitted to Justice Callaghan in Brooklyn in opposition to a motion for $25 weekly alimony and $500 counsel fee, pending trial of her suit for separation. Justice Callaghan reserved decision.

"My coupe," she wrote from Paris, "has been such a comfort. I love to run it myself. I adore the reckless, transcendent flight through the streets plunging into sudden openings, and striding sudden, hair-breadth stops, rounding abrupt corners, tossed and buffeted; skimming into new ugliness! It all seems something of myself. Yes, of my reckless, daring, danger-loving self."
