All Records are Found Correct on Books by Experts

COMPREHENSIVE REPORT IS FILED COVERING DETAILS OF COUNTY OFFICES.

Grandall and Roberts, expert accountants who have been experting the books of the county clerk, recorder, treasurer and sheriff, have filed a comprehensive report covering the records of these offices from October 1914, until December 31, 1915. They make no criticism of any of the officials.

Aside from a general report indicating the work done in each office, the bulk of their report consists of schedules showing such minor discrepancies as were discovered.

In checking over the clerk's records, they found all fees accounted for. They report that some of the papers were out of the office but were found in the hands of attorneys interested. The fees in connection with those papers were verified and the report states that the system of official records kept in the office makes it comparatively safe.

The report states that, in checking over the treasurer's items of receipts etc., they found the records to agree with the report filed by him on Jan. 3 with the exception of a small amount.

In the recorder's office they state they compared the items of receipts with the items as recorded and found the same very carefully computed with all discrepancies adjusted. They also point out that Recorder Burroughs has turned over $56.65 to the treasurer for copies of records, something he is not required to do under the law.

The report states that the accountants had found that the sheriff had turned over to the treasurer all money collected by him for taxes. It points out that under Section 32683 of Lord's Oregon Laws the mileage fees are retained and that, under a written opinion of the district attorney, the fees for issuing deeds for the foreclosure of tax liens are also retained. They point out that for certain years the
