Wolves Attack Ranger. HOQUIAM, Wash., June 29.—Chris Morgenroth, district forest ranger for the Ellwah river district of the Olympic Peninsula, was forced to seek safety in a tree by a pair of big timber wolves while on a trip in the Ellwah valley about three weeks ago.

He shouted at the wolves and threw pebbles at them, expecting to be able to frighten them off, but they paid no attention to his attempts, but began to draw in close to him. He finally escaped, but was forced to fight his way for two miles along the trail until he reached the Grand House ranch. The wolves pressed close on him all of the time and three times he was compelled to back against a tree and fight the brutes off with a club and stones.

Word of Morgenroth's adventure was brought to Hoquiam by Forest Supervisor R. L. Froome, in charge of the Olympic national forest. Morgenroth, whose headquarters are at Port Angeles, has been employed as a ranger for many years and is one of the best woodsmen on the Peninsula. In the past he never has carried a gun, declaring there was no danger in the woods of the Olympic Peninsula.

Wolves have been noticeable numerous the past season in the Olympics and lately have been coming down unusually low.

Fruit Juice Plant Ready. ALBANY, Ore., June 29.—Albany's new plant for the manufacture of fruit juices will begin operation. Practically all of the machinery has been installed, and, with the exception of some minor matters which can be arranged later, everything is in readiness for operating the plant to full capacity.

The Albany Fruit Juice company, which owns the new plant, has established a record for quick work. Organization was begun only a few weeks ago, but the stock was sold quickly and machinery ordered. The machinery has been installed rapidly so that the plant could take care of the bogberries as soon as they became ripe. The company is composed largely of local men.

Benotene is a clay which is used to give body and weight to paper in the preparation of a dressing for inflamed hoofs of horses and a constituent of antiphotogenic and as an antidote of candies and drugs.

SPEAKER POINTS WAY TO BETTER CITY

unsightly wires overhead? No modern city tolerates these things on their business streets any more, and you don't have to tolerate them. All that is necessary is that you stand together and make a community demand for their removal. Your ornamental post lamps give a good impression by night but the sight of these poles gives another impression by day.

In speaking of the approach to the city, he complimented Pendleton on the beautiful depot grounds but asked why the first view should be spoiled by the sight of the ugly Happy Canyon grandstand.

He strongly urged the city to take advantage of its level by beautifying them and making of them a picturesque promenade. Pendleton has a beautiful location between hills, he stated, but declared the city should have parks on the hills and should beautify some of the bald, ugly spots that show prominently, by planting trees and shrubs.

He commends Pendleton for her Round-Up, of which he has heard a great deal, and he advocated that, in the event that this city should give up her front-line show, to get some other distinctive celebration. He also praised the city for the beautiful natorium but asked why more provision has not been made for public playgrounds.

He had good words for the new library and its location and for the new federal building but his remarks about the city hall were not very complimentary. He asked why some provision has not been taken for the grouping of public buildings in a community center.

Dr. Zischold declared himself in favor of municipal ownership of light and water plants as a means of giving citizens better and cheaper service and he predicted that it would only be a matter of time until Pendleton adopts the plan of a business manager for the administration of the city.

He contrasted the country of today with that of thirty years ago, showing the big advances being made in every line of human endeavor and activity. Incidentally he told of striking instances of cities over the country developing a community spirit and of the results.

"Twenty years ago there were but three avenues for the citizens who wanted to be of social service—the church, the school and charity," he began. He continued:

"These were dismal to the man who really had a love for his fellow-men. Respectable people thirty years ago were not supposed to be interested in politics. For today no right minded person feels that a citizen is placed upon him by entering politics. One who wishes to serve his fellow-men most effectively and immediately should not let his public life. Any man who holds himself too good to go into politics is not fit to go into the church. Today there is a new civic spirit also in the church. It too, is beginning to talk about the vital things of life.

"In 1852 a woman organized the first village improvement society in Stockbridge, Mass. Today there are 2500 of them. In 1877, Central Park, New York, was established amid wild protests. Now the city without a park and boulevard system doesn't lift its head. In 1866 bathing in the ocean at Boston was no longer prohibited. Not until 1909 did Milwaukee establish the first public bath in the country. In 1872, Brookline, Mass., established a playground, but Boston did not have one for ten years. Now every city has them. In the same year a vacation school was recommended in Cambridge, but Boston established the first one several years later. In every case the original impulse was dormant for twenty years and only within the last ten or fifteen years has it become a 'line and dominant force.

"The town begins at the ford or bridge or lake or railway station where people arrive. There must be only one railway station, until the population reaches half a million. From this station the progressive town makes an approach by a park or dignified, well lighted street to the business section. In the business area the town cannot afford to have poles or wires in sight, except the post to support its display lighting. The streets must be paved and clean and free from obstructions if the town is to prove that it has five business men. This street is where the character of the town is read. When there are dirty streets, there are dirty people. Refuse must be disposed of by the municipality—garbage, ashes, streetsweepings, sewage—all being handled collectively. Pure water, pure milk, pure food must be presupposed. Flies, mosquitos, smoke, and other pests are no longer necessary. It is cheaper to require people to take care of their own poultry and cattle than for the whole town to have fences. It is cheaper to stop the breeding of flies and mosquitos than for the whole town to have screens. It will soon be as disgraceful to have a fly in the house as a bedbug. A fly is not nearly so particular about her associations.

"America's chief contribution to city making is the tree-lined, lawn-lined, fenceless residence streets. These streets should open out at frequent intervals into parks and playgrounds. The schoolhouses should be surrounded by playgrounds. All the public buildings should be grouped for convenience and beauty and be used by the public as often as possible. There can be no adequate public spirit without public recreation and public meetings. Everybody ought to vote. The man who doesn't vote is a traitor to his town. The woman who doesn't vote is a traitor to her town.

"Do improvements cost money? The nations of Europe are spending over 50 million dollars a day digging graves. If we become involved we should appropriate at once a thousand millions for murder. Can we not spend freely for life? Are love and science not so powerful as hate and greed?"

VOLUNTEERS ENLIST IN A NEW COMPANY

ROSEBURG, Ore., June 29.—Acting with Colonel C. L. Gantenbein of Portland, Dr. F. W. Haynes, a lieutenant with the Second Oregon troops in the Philippines, on Wednesday began the enlistment of a volunteer company of infantry for Roseburg, which will be ready for duty in case of a call for volunteers.

According to Captain J. A. Buchanan of the Coast Artillery company here, there are a number who will enlist either in the Coast Artillery or a company of volunteer infantry, and Dr. Haynes expects no trouble in securing enough men for a company of volunteers.

A number of recruits have already been secured for the Coast Artillery company.

BARBERS CLEARED OF GIRLS

St. Paul Police Start Campaign and Increase Detectives. ST. PAUL, June 29.—Augmenting St. Paul's so-called purity squad by two additional detectives, police began the other night what is said to be a determined move to clean up city streets and wine rooms frequented by young girls.

Six detectives started the crusade. Detective Joseph Beaubien and Patrick Smith were transferred from the Prior avenue district and assigned to work with Detectives Herman Vall, Henry Cummings, Joseph Pogueless and Thomas McMahon.

Early that night they were called in conference with Henry McGill, commissioner of public safety, and John J. O'Connor, chief of police, and were assigned "beats" in the downtown district.

The campaign, it is said, first will be one of warning, but failure to observe the letter of the law will mean quick arrest.

Dotty Thorne was arrested at 422 North Franklin street for selling liquor without a license. Several women were arrested on charges of vagrancy.

"The increase of the purity squad has no significance of particular import," Commissioner McGill said. "We intend to enforce the law."

LICENSE CLERK MISSING

At Same Time $2300 of Dayton, O., Funds Disappear. DAYTON, O., June 29.—Harry A. Maganizer, 26 years old, city license clerk, has disappeared and the police of several cities have been requested to look for him.

Maganizer is alleged to be short $2300 in his accounts. Maganizer has not reported for duty and Finance Director Hugh Wall has begun an examination of his books.

Mrs. Maganizer called on Finance Director Wall, having been mystified by her husband's absence. She declared that he had kept her in ignorance of his alleged wrongdoing and she almost collapsed when informed of the alleged shortage.

DEAD SOLDIER HONORED

Detail Takes Charge of Body of Man Who Dies in Philippines. CHICAGO, June 29.—"He was a soldier of the United States."

With this explanation Lieutenant Kennedy, of the recruiting service of the Army in Chicago, ordered a detail to do military honors over the body of Charles A. Thompson, private of the Fifteenth Cavalry, who was killed by being crushed under a horse at Fort William McKinley at Rizal in the Philippine Islands. May A. Thompson's body arrived from San Francisco and was to be sent on the Grand Trunk to Goodells, Mich., his former home. The tier was draped here with the American flag and a car has been placed at the disposal of the army by the railroad.

Thompson was the nephew of F. W. Ruby, of the Thomas Cusack Company, and the first of a family of 19 children to die. His mother is a widow. Before enlisting about three years ago, Thompson was a member of the Michigan national guard.

BACON AND CORNED BEEF WILL BE DIET

CHICAGO, June 29.—Corned beef and bacon will be the steady diet of the American soldiers at the border if orders placed here by the quartermaster's department of the army are a criterion. So far, 1,000,000 pounds of bacon and 500,000 pounds of corned beef have been ordered from local packing firms for the government for emergency delivery.

Two Boys Save Friend

WILLISTON, N. D., June 29.—Harold and James Ogland, 14 and 11 years old, respectively, sons of N. J. Ogland, are the heroes of Williston as a result of saving the life of John Townsend, 10 years old, who was drowning in the Little Muddy river near here.

Attracted by the Townsend boy's cries, James Ogland went to his assistance. The drowning boy caught Ogland about the neck and the two disappeared. The elder boy then rescued both.
