268 SEALIONS ARE KILLED.

Bounty for Seals Obtained by Hunting Party Refused.

MAINSFIELD, Ore., July 21.—William Hunter and a number of friends went to the rocks in the Rogue river reef, which extends offshore from a point three or four miles up the beach from Wedderburn, to a distance of five miles to sea, and in two days slaughtered 268 sealions, adults and pups. They presented the scalps to the county clerk at Gold Beach and demanded from him $1 for each one. The claim was made that the sealions were seals. County Clerk Stuard refused to pay the bounty demanded and has communicated with the state officers at Salem and also with State Game Warden Brownaker.

PARENTS OF YOUTH WHO MET DEATH AT FREEWATER, SOUGHT

CORONER BROWN IS TRYING TO LOCATE RELATIVES OF TRAIN'S VICTIM.

Coroner J. T. Brown is making efforts to locate the parents of the 17-year-old boy who was killed at Freewater, Wednesday, when a train passed over him. The only clue to any part of his name is the fact that when the youth with his two companions reached Milton, the boy remarked that this was the first time he had ever been in a town which bore a part of his name. He told them his middle name was Milton. The other name, Weston, which was assigned to him by the boys, was given him because they had just walked over from Weston to Milton.

The three boys had been together for several days, although none of the three knew the other's name. When they reached Pendleton from Baker and North Powder they went into a grocery store to get a sandwich. The proprietor upon learning that one of the lads was from the Willamette valley asked him in what section he lived. The boy who was the one killed told him his parents lived on the old Miller place in Benton county.

Coroner Brown telegraphed the Assessor of Benton county to attempt to get in touch with the residents of the Miller place but he has received no reply.

The boy was 18 years of age, weighed about 125 or 140 pounds, had brown hair and brown eyes, good teeth, wore a pair of heavy tan shoes, dark brown trousers, a gray cotton shirt, blue coat, a bluish gray

cap. A seven-jewel Waltham watch and merchandise pipe were found on the lad. He was about five feet and four inches in height. Since the accident Coroner Brown has received letters of inquiry from Anity and Salem.
