KID CARSON PREDICTS BIGGEST CROWD YET

"If even a fifth of the people come to the Round-Up," said W. J. "Kid" Carson today, "who are planning to make the trip now, there will be the greatest crowd which ever attended this great frontier exhibition." Mr. Carson has just returned from a trip to eastern and central Oregon and southern Idaho and is aglow with stories of how much enthusiasm the Round-Up is creating all over the northwest.

All along the line people are getting up automobile parties to come to the show. One old gentleman of Boise who has passed his allotted three score and ten years told Mr. Carson that for years he had heard of the Round-Up, and this year he had just purchased a new automobile, and had promised to bring a bunch of kiddies. This is merely an incident to show the manner in which the show is being received.

Carson leaves in the morning for Waisburg, Pomeroy, Dayton, Wash., on to Lewiston, Idaho, Grandville, back to Spokane and will then work to Montana. He is at present two days ahead of his schedule.

The highway between here and the Boise country is reported to be in good condition and there will be just one long line of cars from Idaho to Pendleton, September 20, 21, 22 and 23.

Library News

New Books.

Lowther—Encyclopedia of practical horticulture. 4 vols. This addition to the reference library is one of the most important of the year. The four volumes furnish over 2900 pages of well indexed information on subjects of special value to this county. The Oregon agricultural college recommends this as the best work for our state.

Cornu—Meaning of dreams. A non-technical, unpretentious exposition of the Freudian theory of dreams, omitting the features of Freud's own book which make it of use only to special students. The many examples that are analyzed and explained are taken from cases that have come under the author's observation.

Dawson—Money making entertainments for church and charity. A book offering suggestions for dances, dinners, fairs, socials and theatrical entertainments which can be carried out by various organizations. The author's other books of parties and pastimes, etc., are well known. This one is just as full of live suggestions for good times, with the money making element added.

Dench—Making the Movies. Reveals some of the inner workings of the motion picture making in the studio and out, the difficulties in taking some of the thrilling scenes, tricks that produce the thrills but offer no danger, even gossip about some of the favorites, all briskly told in the vernacular, addressed to the movie fan.

Hamilton—On the trail of Stevenson. "Mr. Hamilton has himself been a traveler along the trail of Stevenson, has seen the places he saw and talked with the people he knew. In dealing with Stevenson the hero, he is very frank, with no desire, he says, to diminish the popular conception of his heroism," but "merely to define the nature of that heroism."

Hunt—What shall we read to children. "Friendly readable chats with parents about children's books—what to buy and read to the child for the first seven or eight years, and what not to buy and read and why. A very practical book for mothers and all who are interested in children's reading."

Langton—Just for two. A useful and popular little book designed to help the housewife in a small family, simple in arrangement and well indexed.

Longstrech—Reading the weather. "Explains in a very popular, lively manner the atmosphere, the storm cycle, the barometer, the weather lore, and what the weather flags mean. Gives a chapter on 'sky signs' and discusses popular superstitions and the value of signs. A book that boy scouts will want."

McFarland—My growing garden. "A chatty, familiar, attractively illustrated record of the author's success in transforming a rundown house and two acres of abandoned vineyard, in five years' time, into a charming garden home. Admirably written, good to read aloud, and brimming over with love of flowers and vegetables and trees. For suggestiveness and the inspiration of joy in the garden, this book cannot be surpassed in the long list of garden books."

Macrie—National humor. "A book about humor written by a Scotsman, consisting mainly of the characteristic jests chosen at random from various parts of the English speaking world, with some popular comment on the various national types: Scotch, English, Irish, Welsh, Cockney, American."

Men and things—A reprint from the same plates but without the name of the compiler of a book edited by Mark Twain. Readable selections from the writings of thirty-six well known authors which will appeal to the patrons who wish something short and funny.

Palmer—My year of the great war. "Deals with the human elements;

ONE good turn deserves another—one good chew of W-B CUT Chewing gives a man the tobacco satisfaction he's been seeking for years. A good chew of W-B CUT, long shred, means a small chew. The salt seasoning brings out the rich tobacco flavor without grinding and spitting—that's what makes it a gentleman's chew. Get a 1 lb. pouch at any business-like dealer's. Give W-B CUT the quality test—and learn the biggest surprise of your tobacco experience. Made by WETNAM-BRUTON COMPANY, 50 Union Square, New York City

RICHARD BENNETT IN "DAMAGED GOODS" A MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE IN SEVEN PARTS MADE BY AMERICAN AT THE TEMPLE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

The chapters on the trenches give little that is new but those on the British navy are especially interesting. Author was the only official representative of the American press with the British army in France. Frankly sympathetic for the allies, and optimistic about their final success.

Shaw—Story of a pioneer. "A vigorous, direct, unusual recounting of facts worthy of the telling. Undoubtedly the portions relating to suffrage, its growth as a movement, the author's connection with it, and her description of noted people likewise associated, will prove of special interest to many; the narration of the less familiar facts of her unusual childhood and youth, and the vein of humor running through it all, however, will win the attention of those not attracted."

Walton—Peg along. "Humorous, pointed little talks, with many illustrations from experience and observations, in each of which Dr. Walton projects a maxim to aid invalids, fretters, and fussers to overcome care, anxiety, fretting fear, etc., and thus to 'peg along' more happily and healthily."

GOVERNMENT TRAPPERS DOING SPLENDID WORK

R. L. Smith Declares Coyotes Becoming Very Rare in Central and Eastern Oregon.

Great work is being accomplished in central and eastern Oregon by government trappers, according to Government Trapper R. L. Smith of Harney county, who is visiting in Pendleton today. Smith is on an automobile trip home from Seattle where he has been visiting relatives.

Mr. Smith says that he has seen only one evidence of rabies among the coyotes in his section and that three varminas are becoming very rare. The Harney man relates an interesting experience that happened at Denio, Oregon, the last week in June. A freighter from Winnemucca put up his eight horses in a Denio barn over night. They were out of hearing distance and during the night one of the horses contracted rabies.

During his rampage the mad animal bit three of the horses so badly that it was necessary to kill them at once. Several of the other steeds were bitten but it was not heard whether they had contracted the disease. Neither was it known where the first horse was hit.

The first railroad to the Harney valley territory was run from Ontario July 4. The railroad, it is thought will be a wonderful help to the country as wheat farming is being engaged in successfully in Harney valley, and up to the present time they had

The Most Popular Chew for a Third of a Century

PURE, RICH, FRUITY-SWEET

Spear Head is the choicest of all red Burley, hand-stemmed and made into mellow-sweet plugs in a perfectly clean, most sanitary factory.

You can't chew the flavor out of Spear Head, because it's a part of the tobacco. That rich, ripe, red Burley taste keeps on pleasing you as long as you keep on chewing.
