PERMIT IS ISSUED TO GRAZE GOATS ON FORESTS

1200 Animals Will be Ranged on Crater National Reserve—Room For More.

PORTLAND, Aug. 15.—A permit has just been issued for the grazing of a band of 1200 goats on the Crater National Forest, according to an announcement made today by the District Forester, Portland, Oregon. This is the first permit issued for a large band of animals, and is apparently the result of the recent study made by the forest service to develop areas suitable for different kinds of stock, especially goats.

The service announces that there is room for about 3000 more head on the Crater forest, for two bands on the Siskiyou and Siuslaw national forests—all in Oregon. These areas have been examined by grazing experts and pronounced suitable for goats. Furthermore, this range is all easily accessible from railroad points.

It is stated by forest officers that they are anxious to have these ranges used, but they are not suitable for sheep, as they contain more underbrush than grass. The goats are more agile and courageous, the succulent underbrush is well suited to their needs, and a rough country is no obstacle to a goat. The damage done by goats to young conifers is slight, and, it is said they are often a real benefit in keeping down inflammable brush and thus aiding in fire protection.

of some technical violation of traffic regulations. One officer who stopped the president's car and then recognized its occupant, very nearly suffered a collapse in consequence. Good-natured Mr. Wilson comforted the distraught officer, and complimented him upon the impartial performance of his duty. However, the policeman is said to have suffered from nervous chills for many days. Quite recently another policeman up in Connecticut stopped a car for the purpose of arresting its occupant for speeding, but when the speedy stranger invented the claim that he was Mayor Mitchell of New York, the abashed policeman, gulped several times, and assured the occupant of the car that his interference was not an arrest at all, but simply a warning. Imagine the humiliation of the policeman when later in the day he found that he had been imposed upon, and that the stranger was not New York's chief executive. And so it is with the poor policeman. He gets into trouble for doing his duty and for not doing it—just the same.
