The Weakly Bulldogger

MONDAY, AUGUST 21, 1916.

Out of the Mouths of Children.
"Is this the road to Pendleton?" asked an auto tourist of two small boys whom he met between this city and Echo.
"This is the way to Pendleton," answered one. "There ain't any road."

Something of a Curiosity Himself.
Col. Ledwith, the Carranista officer who lectured here last week, claimed the rather odd distinction of being the father of four sets of girl twins and the grandfather of three other sets. During his stay here he called at the office of Major Leo Moorhouse.

"I'd like to look at your collection of curiosities," he told the major.
"Make yourself at home," said the major, choosing his language.

He Should Have Turned Loose.
Ever since he was arrested and fined for taking more than eight steps without reversing on the dance floor, Arthur Gibson has been living in fear of being caught again. This he accounts for his failure to bag a deer when he was out with his gun last week. "I saw a big duck," he said, and was stalking him, gun ready for action. After taking eight steps toward him, he obeyed the impulse of habit and turned. While he was turning the deer disappeared.

What's in a Name.
"I'd like to meet the man that named that creek Grouse creek," said Lawrence Frazier after spending several days in the south end of the county in futile quest of birds.

The Moving Spirit.
Joe Wilkins, Heppner hotel man was here last week and he paid a tribute to Pendleton's "go get 'em" spirit. He said that one day W. B. Barrett of Heppner was walking down the main pike of that town when he saw the post office building on wheels.

"Where you moving that to?" he asked.
"Down the street three blocks," was the answer.

"Darned if I didn't think you were taking it to Pendleton," he said, having in mind the recent transfer of the forestry office to this city from Heppner.

One Way to Boost Us.
Again Judge Marsh and Roland Oliver have threatened to dynamite our plant. We say, dynamite and be damned. Our plant is a weakly one and slow of growth. We have tried to raise it to a high standard and what we have failed to accomplish perhaps dynamite.

Hark, Hark, The Lark!
The Commercial Club wants a song for use on junket trips and the Bulldogger has been commissioned to supply the need. We, therefore, call upon the native poets to tune up their lyres. We submit the following as a sample. It may be sung to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland," providing that state does not get out an injunction against it.

PENDELTON, OH PENDELTON.
In a land by nature blest
Lies the town of Pendleton,
Lovest place in all the west
Is the town of Pendleton.

(Refrain.)
Then let'er Buck for Pendleton,
And whoop'er up for Pendleton,
We'll chant the glories of thy name,
Pendleton, oh Pendleton.

No. 2.
Fields of wondrous golden wealth
Girt the town of Pendleton.
And we have the boon of health
In the town of Pendleton. (Refrain)

No. 3.
And the greatest show on earth
Has the town of Pendleton.
Millions know the Round-Up's worth
To the town of Pendleton. (Refrain)
P. S.—We have an unlimited supply of verses but we doubt whether any audience would stand for more than three.

Burbank vs. Harrison.
RIETH, Ore., Aug. 21.—(Special.)—We have all read in the past of the wonderful feats performed by the now famous Burbank, but it devolved upon our own Birch creek rancher, Mr. J. M. Harrison, to go him one better and accomplish the unbelievable in propagation. Mr. Harrison is a very modest man and has kept his secret well, but we will vouch for the statement he has progressed 23 1-2 per cent perfect so far. Mr. Harrison sells eggs to various housewives in Rieth, guaranteed strictly fresh, etc., and one lady last week, out of the dozen eggs delivered, found 2 1-3 per cent of the eggs were hard boiled all ready to be served. Very convenient, indeed.

What's a Horn for, Anyway?
Earl Sawyer, well known tonsorial artist and musician, has added several gray hairs to his head as a result of an experience last week. While peacefully resting on the ground in the mountains Tuesday awaiting the coming of the day and incidentally the opening of the hunting season he felt a something moving underneath his downy couch. Calling his mates, an inspection was made and a large horned toad was discovered. Sawyer is now mad that the animal did not look so as to make its identity known.

Harry Says It Was His Sister.
The Portland society columns mentioned that among the Pendleton people visiting at Seaside were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray. We claim Harry, alright, but his wife is a stranger here.

The Bear and the Bull.
A constant reader suggests that George Baer be selected to ride shabby at the coming Round-Up so that those New York millionaires coming out for the show may see the western version of the great Wall street game.

WASHINGTON PIONEER IS CALLED BY DEATH

Judson W. Himes, Who Crossed Plains in 1853, Passes Away at Elma—Leaves 9 Children and 15 Grand Children.

ELMA, Wash., Aug. 18.—Judson W. Himes, pioneer of 1853, died Monday night at his home in Elma. He was a brother of George H. Himes, secretary of the Oregon Pioneer Association, and came to this country in the same year, crossing the plains with their parents in 1853.

The parents took up a donation land claim five miles east of Olympia, during the Indian war of 1855 the family lived in the stockade fort on the old Ruffell place.

Mr. Himes was married in 1857 to Juanita Chipman. Their family consisted of four girls and one boy. The wife died in April, 1891, and in November, 1895 he was married to Mrs. Annie Nixon. To this union four children were born. Six of his children live around Elma. The three other daughters are living, one in San Francisco, one in Brewster, Wash., and one in Raymond, Wash. Mr. Himes had 15 living grandchildren.

Mr. Himes was justice of the peace for the Elma precinct for 13 consecutive years. He was elected for another year, but refused to qualify. He was born in Illinois in 1859. He was a veteran Jeweler, holder of the L. O. O. F., having joined the order in 1887.

An Historical Fact

Even before the days of our Forefathers, extracts from the same kind of roots, herbs and bark, now used in compounding the ingredients for S. S. S., were well known and extensively used among the Indians.

Science and modern methods have only changed the Indians way of handling the material, the essential features are still in evidence in S. S. S.—Nature's Greatest Blood Purifier—and a natural sequence of the Indians' favorite medicine.

CABINET OFFICER LEARNS HOW TO SHOOT

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the Interior, believes in being personally prepared. He has taken rifle practice very often on the rifle range at Winthrop, Md., where he has been taught by army officers. When he is on the range he slips into a pair of overalls, like others who take an interest in the practice.
