KEEPING THE HOUSE COOL.
Our great-grandmothers practiced many things we have discarded, which science now shows should be revived. Our grandmothers—now known to be the best method of sterilizing them.

In our enthusiasm for fresh air most of us have abandoned the closed houses during the summer daytime. We throw everything open and then we complain how hot the bedrooms are at night. Thermo-dynamics is a deep and hidden science, but it teaches some things that we all may use. Heat is transmitted in three ways—by radiation, by conduction and by convection.

Shutting blinds and pulling down shades reduces the transfer by radiation. The factor of conduction depends on the construction of the house and is beyond most of us. Correcting convection is, however, within our reach. In lay terms convection is the carrying of heat upward by the movement of a liquid or gas. It is the principle used in kitchen heaters and hot air furnaces, for instance.

If we keep doors open throughout the house, the heat rises with the air and warms by a secondary radiation the upper stories. The less we allow the air to move, the less heat is carried up. Time was when the walls of ice houses were ventilated, but today refrigerating plants and ice houses have "dead air" spaces for insulation, small, cell-like compartments in the walls, reducing the operation of what engineers call a "thermo-siphon."

So, in these hot days, if we keep doors shut and shades down, the house will be cooler. Our great-grandmothers may not have had our theoretical training, but they certainly seem to have known how to apply effectively what they or their forebears had learned by practical observation.

BUTTERMILK PIE.
Cream 1 cup of sugar, 2 tablespoons of butter and 1 tablespoon of flour together. Add 4 well-beaten eggs and a cup of buttermilk. Beat well. Line the pie tin with a crust and pour in the mixture. Sprinkle the top with cinnamon. Bake slowly. This is enough for two pies.

JERUSALEM PUDDING.
Cover one tablespoon of gelatine with a quarter cup of cold water and soak a half hour. Wash two tablespoons of rice, boil rapidly in salted water for twenty minutes, or until tender, then drain and spread out on a plate to dry. Stone and chop fine twelve dates; whip one cup of cream and, when stiff, add the rice and dates, then a half cup of powdered sugar. Dissolve the gelatine over hot water, add it with a half teaspoon of vanilla to the cream, and stir the whole. Set in a pan of ice water until it begins to thicken and the rice does not settle to the bottom. Turn into a wet mold and put in a cold place until set. Serve very cold.

FASHION NOTES.
A blouse of white tulle is trimmed with embroidered white muslin. Practical hats for motoring and plain service will be of velvet.

Hats of soft velvet have shirred brims and Tam o' Shanter crowns. Dainty crepe collars are trimmed with tucking or a fine pleated edge. Add a touch of color to your parasol by running ribbon through it.

There is a tendency to introduce a little military touch in coats, and the Russian influence is still strong. No material makes a prettier dress than Georgette crepe. It can be effectively trimmed with satin of the same shade as the dress material.

CORN PUDDING—SOUTHERN STYLE.
Six ears of corn, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 1-2 cups milk.

Grate the corn, beat eggs with a spoon and mix all the ingredients together.

Butter a deep earthen dish and pour in the mixture. Bake in medium oven an hour or more. Serve hot. If corn is old, use more milk.

THE SEPARATE SKIRT.
The separate skirt situation is rather an interesting one at the present time and it is causing no little wonder to decide just what is responsible for the growing popularity of this garment. It would be curious to suggest that economy prompts the designer to meet the increased demand in view of the fact that at no time have financial conditions been at so top notch a mark. It is fair to assume that the separate skirt has at least come into its own and instead of being confined to use for sport wear, the office and informal occasions, it is now to be worn on all occasions—informal and formal. This is a most interesting state of affairs and will naturally seem at first to be an impossible suggestion; however, if one will analyze the statement it will be found that the separate skirt suggestion is not so serious a bugbear as one would judge. Distinctive, dressy skirts are shown developed in taffeta or faille, with smart distended hem. These are to be worn with soft frilly and lace trimmed bodices for afternoon or reception wear. In each some detail or color note being carried out in both skirt and bodice.

GOOD WORK FOR SICK WOMEN

The Woman's Medicine Has Proved Its Worth.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies were first introduced, their curative powers were doubted and had to be proved. But the proof came, and gradually the use of them spread over the whole country. Now that hundreds of thousands of women have experienced the most beneficial effects from the use of these medicines, their value has become generally recognized, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard medicine for women.

The following letter is only one of the thousands on file in the Pinkham office, at Lynn, Mass., proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an article of great merit as shown by the results it produces.

Anamosa, Iowa.—"When I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered with a displacement, and my system was in a general run-down condition. I would have the headache for a week and my back would ache so bad when I would bend down I could hardly straighten up. My sister was sick in bed for two months and doctored, but did not get any relief. She saw an advertisement of your medicine and tried it and got better. She told me what it had done for her, and when I had taken only two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my head began to feel better. I continued its use and now I don't have any of those troubles."—Mrs. L. J. HANMAN, R.F.D. 1, Anamosa, Iowa.
