"UNDER TWO FLAGS"

6-ACTS-6. THE SEASON'S TRIUMPH

VIVA LA FRANCE!

Was the dying cry of Cigarette, the mail girl of the army in Algeria.
THEDA BARA
puts all the fire and passion of her art into the characterization.

A SANDSTORM

sweeps across the desert, as Cigarette makes her wild ride to save the life of the man she loves.
This is the Most Realistic Sandstorm Conceivable.

SOME VITAL MOMENTS IN "UNDER TWO FLAGS."

- 1. Bertie Cecil assumes the guilt for his brother's forgery of a check. He saves his brother but ruins his own life.
- 2. Cigarette, at the head of a troop of Frenchmen, marches to the rescue of Bertie and his followers, almost mastered by the Arabs.
- 3. A court-martial condemns Bertie to die for striking his superior officer when the officer had insulted him.
- 4. Cigarette takes a leap on horseback across an enormous chasm, then braves a terrific sandstorm, to bring the reprieve which must save Bertie's life.
- 5. Cigarette is killed by the bullets intended for the man she loved, but she arrives in time to save him from death.

Mexican situation and a few days ago he was the sole republican senator to vote with the administration forces on the strike legislation. Following the republican national convention La Follette harshly criticized the republican platform and those who managed the convention.

But despite this lack of "regularity" La Follette is renominated by the republicans of his state by an overwhelming majority. It is evidence to the effect that thousands of republicans, not only in Wisconsin but elsewhere as well, share the La Follette views. Progressive republicans are really closer to Wilson than to Hughes. They have faith in the president, they know he has been heart and soul for the public—not for privilege—and they will vote for him regardless of party affiliations.

The renomination of La Follette and the nomination of Hiram Johnson for senator in California show how the tide is running this year. The tide is strong for progressivism and independent political thinking. It means a Wilson victory and another downfall for the old guard.

THE GRAIN INSPECTION LAW

THE grain inspection law just passed by congress would be of particular benefit were it in operation at this time. One of the difficulties in shipping wheat east by rail arises from the fact the eastern and western standards as to grain differ materially. Last year western buyers complained much against the treatment accorded them on the Atlantic coast. The eastern men were in doubt as to the grade of the western wheat and being in doubt took advantage of that doubt. The ultimate loss of course was upon the farmer. This will always be the way. When there is doubt the producer loses because the buyer is in position to safeguard himself.

The principle of the grain inspection law is good and when the machinery is once in operation the results should be satisfactory to all sides.

REMOANING THE SUNSHINE

THE Evening Telegram is worried over the fact congress stopped the railroad strike. If congress can pass an eight hour law and adjust wages of a certain percentage of trainmen what in the world is the country coming to, says the Telegram, or words to that effect.

It is exactly the same plaint that was heard when the idea of regulating railroad rates was first taken up. The same moan was heard when the minimum wage law was established in Oregon. The complaint is as applicable to the child labor law as to the eight hour law. It was just as applicable to the 14 hour law as to the eight hour law.

The success of legislation to advance the welfare of those who toil is a blessing, not an evil. It is economic sunshine and it will hurt only the bugs that thrive in darkness.

It is particularly untimely for any northwest newspaper to complain about the settlement of the strike. The northwest has a great crop to move and did not want a transportation tie-up. Congress settled the issue and should have credited, not complained. Is the Telegram in favor of repealing the eight hour law and of yet forcing a nationwide strike?

PLANNING MORE TROUBLE

EUROPE'S present troubles are not sufficient and it is necessary it seems to plan wars for the future. There is some discussion on regarding the development of aerial fighting and the possibility that it should be barred by international rule because of its destructiveness and the fact some nation might violate a treaty and take another by surprise.

This has brought forth the following from the London Observer:

The conquest of the air is too splendid in its promise to be abandoned through fear of the mad dogs among the nations. That is a counsel of weakness. Besides, not yet is the time when nations can lay down their arms without losing their souls.

But the remedy is simple for all to see. The nation that committed the crime of surprise and unprovoked aerial attack would lay itself open to instant and terrible reprisals by the aircraft of its victim; while London, for example, was being "destroyed," our fleets of aircraft would be winging their way to the enemy's cities.

Even with millions slain and more to die the European view is that it would be weak to plan for the avoidance of destruction in the future. If that idea is followed to the end what will the answer be?

President Ackerman of the Monmouth normal school says the passage of the measure for a school at Pendleton is imperative if the needs of the state are to be met; he is a first class authority on the subject and looks at the matter from an educational not from a local standpoint.

The wheat market is itself again.

Now that the fruit canning season is about over the price of sugar begins to drop.

28 Years Ago Today

(From the Daily East Oregonian, Sept. 7, 1888.)

Portland, Ore.—Several days ago there arrived in Portland one T. V. Ayres, proprietor of the townsite of Heppner, accompanied by his daughter, who came here after medical treatment. Yesterday evening Mrs. E. J. Smith, a well to do widow, also of Heppner, arrived in the city. She was met by Mr. Ayres and together they repaired to the office of an official invested with proper authority and were there and then spliced.

election, is in Walla Walla today. He will be met tonight by a large number of Walla Walla county people in an effort to get his support of the road. It is possible that several Pendleton men will go to Walla Walla also.

According to Mr. Alexander there is $10,000,000 federal funds which have been set aside for the building and maintaining of roads in forest reserves. It is planned to have some of this money appropriated for the old stage road.

Mr. Alexander and County Judge Charles Marsh will hold a conference today to discuss the best way of getting at the proposition.

SQUILCHUCK CREEK TIMBER IS SOLD

Forest Service Approves Sale Agreement Executed by Morris & Blackstone of Wenatchee at $2.00 and $1.00 Per M.

PORTLAND, Sept. 7.—Acting District Forester F. E. Ames has just approved a timber sale agreement, executed by Morris & Blackstone, of Wenatchee, Washington, for the purchase of 6,725,000 board feet of saw timber, located on Squilchuck creek in section 12, T. 21 N., R. 19 E., W. M., on the Wenatchee national forest, Washington.

The stand includes over six million feet of western yellow pine, 450,000 feet of Douglas fir, and 195,000 feet of western larch. The sale prices are $2.00 per M. for yellow pine and $1.00 per M. for each of the other species.

Evidently the sun also is beginning to tire of getting up an hour before day.

BOOSTS BUILDING OLD STAGE ROAD TO UNION

A. F. Alexander of the Up-To-The-Times Magazine Holds Conference With County Judge Marsh.

A. F. Alexander, one of the publishers of the Up-To-The-Times Magazine of Walla Walla, is in Pendleton today in the interest of the proposed rebuilding of the old stage road to Union county via Blinham Springs. Mr. Alexander declares that Oregon and Washington through their representatives in congress must strive together if this work is to be accomplished.

THE PASSING OF SUMMER.

- Upon September's dawn
 - The cry of Summer's gone!
 - Is sounded everywhere
 - With sad and solemn air.
 - Not so is it with me;
 - I rather sing with glee;
 - "The Summer's tasks are done;
 - Her prizes rare are won;
 - Her fields and pastures tilled;
 - Her promises fulfilled
 - By Nature's own command,
 - To Autumn's outstretched hand
 - She passes on the toil
 - Of garnering the spoil.
 - The while with smiling zest
 - She turns herself to rest.
 - Not gone, as some have grieved,
 - But all her tasks achieved,
 - She joys in the content
 - Of full accomplishment."

HOW THE TIDE IS RUNNING

BY a majority of 75,000 Senator La Follette has been renominated by the republicans of Wisconsin. It is a significant victory because the standpatters were claiming they would defeat "Fighting Bob" this year because of his virtual championship of the Wilson administration and repudiation of Hughes.

Thought a republican in politics Senator La Follette has been with Wilson on almost all important legislation. He voted for the new tariff bill. He has been with Wilson on the
