The Hughes view is that for the administration to take the only practicable step possible to check this plundering means "disaster for the shipping interests of Maine." He preaches calamity to Maine and he preaches falsehood at that because the new law specifically says that after normal prices have been restored upon the ocean the government shall retire from the business. The law is to operate but temporarily and will not hurt the legitimate shipping business. It merely checks extortionate rates and they should be checked.

From the standpoint of the northwest wheatgrower the merchant marine subject makes an issue that comes close to home. It is conservative to say our farmers have been losing from 25 to 50 cents per bushel on wheat because of the extraordinary ocean charges. President Wilson and his cabinet long ago saw the injustice of the situation and they began working to improve affairs. They have enacted a law that will do so.

Candidate Hughes criticizes this law on the ground it will injure the "shipping interests of Maine." In other words he feels it will give our farmers relief by cutting down the exorbitant profits of the ship owners and he has appealed to the people of Maine to vote against Wilson upon this ground. He has openly championed the interests of the shipping monopoly and is using President Wilson's service to the producer as an argument against the man in the White House.

How do the farmers like this line of action by the republican nominee?

THE AMERICAN-MEXICAN COMMISSION

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the withdrawal of the Oregon regiment and other regiments from the border the American-Mexican commission has taken up the problem of working out a satisfactory adjustment of affairs in the southern republic. It is an effort to solve a perplexing question by sane methods, rather than by conquest and bloodshed.

Speaking of the commission and the work before it the New York World says:

The American-Mexican joint commission approaches its task in a friendly and confident spirit. It is an exceptional body of men summoned into conference on matters of first importance to both countries. The three American members are all known internationally for their high personal attainments and public services; the three Mexicans are admirably fitted for their duties. It is a commission that should be productive of great results.

The United States earnestly desires not only the adjustment of the differences that have arisen between the two countries but the speedy rehabilitation of Mexico. Aside from any benevolent intentions that it may harbor toward its stricken neighbor, self-interest alone must prompt it to contribute by every means in its power to the establishment of conditions beyond the Rio Grande that shall insure stable government and peaceful progress.

Certain elements in this country, in a spirit of jingoism and greed, have sought to promote intervention in Mexico. They have failed in their purpose, and the meeting of the American-Mexican joint commission at New London makes doubly certain their failure. Out of its deliberations we may hopefully expect not merely a settlement of difficulties between the United States and Mexico but an understanding as to measures that will put Mexico upon its feet politically, financially and economically.

If the task of the commission is successful it will not only produce a result agreeable in the extreme to the United States but will prove the salvation of Mexico—a land where there has been too much of rule by bullets and not enough rule by brains.

The Oregonian declines against the teaching of political economy in the public schools. No wonder, the ignorance of the people is the only hope of the protectionists.

Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock James Huffman, a young man well known in Pendleton and esteemed by all his acquaintances, was the victim of a runaway. He is attended by Dr. Vincent at the residence of Mrs. Swearingen.

IS CHIEF WITNESS FOR PROSECUTION AND THE LAWYER FOR DEFENCE

W. C. E. Pruitt Acts in Unique Double Capacity in Case Before Justice Parkes—Hunting Without License Charged Against Charlie Saunders.

Acting as chief witness for the prosecution and attorney for the defense, Attorney W. C. E. Pruitt freed Charles Saunders of Meacham Saturday of the charge of hunting without a license. The jury before which the case was brought in the justice court of Judge Parkes returned a verdict of not guilty after a short deliberation.

It appears that Mr. Pruitt and a young Pendleton man went hunting in the mountains last week. Saunders wished to accompany them and was permitted to carry part of the hunting paraphernalia.

The prosecution contended that Saunders aided, abetted and assisted in hunting without a license and therefore was guilty of violating the game laws.

Mr. Pruitt, attorney for the defense, is a former deputy game warden.

BIBLE DID NOT SAVE HIM FOR HIS DRINK WAS BEER

Prisoner Quoted Timothy, But Police Captain Found the Verse Prescribed Only Wine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—An inebriated individual stood like the Leaning tower of Pisa, swaying a bit in the wind, at the busiest corner in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., last evening. Capt. Patrick Costello of the local police took him by the arm.

"My friend, lemme read to you," said the illuminated one. He drew from his pocket a bible, and stammered through this quotation from I. Timothy, 5-23:

Such a shape!

Know this square-end OWL. Then get this about cigar shapes!

An even-burning cigar, like this, gives you its best. Of all cigar shapes the square-end cigar is your surest even-burner. The Owl proves it.

Shape alone will never make a cigar. But add to this square-end shape, 18 months of curing, long leaf filler, and hand workmanship—all features of the Million Dollar OWL, and you see why it is such a smooth-and-even-burning, satisfying smoke.

LAFAYETTE

When Freedom in new lands beyond the seas
In new-born strength and vigor first awoke,
While yet the clouds of war that later broke
Were gathering strength and might, when every breeze
Told of the storm, he left his home of ease
In youth's first strength, and bared his breast to stroke
In battle just, to free from tyrant's yoke
A people brave who scorned to bend their knees
And bow unto that tyrant's lordly will.
But made their patriot stand at Lexington
And checked his power and pride at Bunker Hill;
Then grandly to the side of Washington
Came gallant Lafayette and fought till right
And victory crowned their cause at Yorktown Height!

OPENLY FIGHTING THE FARMER

An associated press report from Brunswick, Maine, under date of Sept. 9 said that in a speech before a large audience in the town hall at that place Justice Hughes attacked the administration shipping bill, saying it would mean disaster for the shipping interests of Maine.

The statement by the republican candidate is in harmony with the shipping plank in the republican platform. That plank denounces the administration merchant marine bill and urges the ship subsidy plan instead. The platform is a play to the ship owners who are already making fabulous profits for the transportation of American products across the ocean. It completely ignores the needs of the producer who desires lower freight rates on the sea because the extortionate rates now prevailing interfere with the producer's profits.

The Hughes view is that the administration is wrong in trying to put a regulatory hand on the operations of the international ship combine. He considers that President Wilson is wrong in working to protect the producer and the business man of the nation. The Hughes view plainly is that the government's first consideration should be for the ship owners, in which he includes "the shipping interests of Maine." He takes this view even though it is a fact that there are ships now operating in peaceful waters and earning their value at one trip. He takes this view despite the fact that for two years past the ship men have been charging as much as wheat is worth to carry it from this country to Liverpool—thus making larger profits from the wheat business than do the farmers who raise the grain.
