FROM A PROGRESSIVE LEADER

President Wilson's administration of achievement is drawing to his stand and republicans of prominence in all parts of the country. Among the most distinguished of these is Stephen H. Bashor, present progressive candidate for governor in Iowa.

"I am supporting President Wilson for reelection," Mr. Bashor stated in a recent speech, "and I find that 95 per cent of Iowa progressives occupy the same position. Mr. Hughes is not a progressive, either with a capital or a small 'p'. His tendencies are all reactionary. He is socially and intellectually an aristocrat. His first consideration is property, his second people. Throughout his life, he has been terribly afraid that something he might do would hurt property, but never at all afraid that he might injure humanity.

"The insurance investigation, in which he made his reputation as a lawyer, sources of these companies. To get control, they had to show corruption, and having shown corruption, they drove Hyde to Europe, McCall and McCurdy to their graves, and took the property they left.

"Iowa and other states adopted a two-cent fare law, of the kind that Hughes vetoed as governor, because he said it would be confiscatory. He vetoed the five-cent car fare bill to Coney Island—the people's playground—for the same reason. Today he derides the eight-hour law.

"I favor Mr. Wilson because he is the author of Mr. Hughes—because of his great work for humanity, because he has kept his people out of war, because, under him, the country has enjoyed an unprecedented era of prosperity. Why change?"

man knows that Teddy stuff in the White House just now would soon have the nation at war with some country or several of them, in which case the men would all be digging trenches instead of picking out new fall suits and the women would be busy making cotton bandages with which to patch up those coming back from the front.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR 308

TAking a stand in behalf of the initiative measure for the Eastern Oregon Normal school at Pendleton the Portland Oregonian this morning carries an editorial in which it says:

A well-organized and well-supported movement is under way to establish a state normal school at Pendleton. It has the approval of educators prominent in the service of the state and of the leaders in social, welfare and institutional work in all parts of Oregon.

It is impossible to deny the force of the argument for properly trained teachers in the schools of the state. It has been shown that the equipment at Monmouth is quite inadequate to meet the demands upon it; and it is likewise true enough that a great area of Oregon is but poorly served by a single institution. That is not at all the fault of the monmouth normal, which has proved its worth. The condition is responsible. Western Oregon gets 50 per cent of Monmouth's graduates, while eastern Oregon gets but 5 per cent.

The situation is not overdrawn by the Oregonian. The maintenance of a single normal school located as at present at Monmouth is very unjust to eastern Oregon. To provide this east of the Cascades region with normal instruction it is absolutely necessary to have a school in this section. Furthermore it must be located in a natural geographical center and in a town with sufficient population to provide all the grade pupils needed for the practice training work.

The standard set by the United States bureau of education is such that no town with less than 5000 people is suitable for a normal school location because of the lack of an adequate number of grade pupils. Weston with only 125 grade pupils is wholly unsuited as the location for a standard normal school. Hence none of the educators of the state are favorable to reestablishing the school there though they are enthusiastic over the prospect of a normal school at Pendleton.

As stated by the Oregonian the need of a normal in eastern Oregon is generally recognized by educators and others informed on such matters. The prospects for the adoption of 308 are bright if eastern Oregon people, led by the Pendleton spirit, make their wishes known in emphatic manner between now and Nov. 7.

When a large part of the Hughes "committee" forsake the old guard candidate, as they have done in this county, and come out for President Wilson it is time for the "boys" to revise their lists.

If you have not written those normal school letters do so at once; let no friend escape if he or she has a vote in Oregon.

Alcohol may some day become proper fuel for autos but it will never be worth anything at the steering wheel.

Eastern Oregon was probably too crude to draw a visit from the Golden Special.

28 Years Ago Today

(From the Daily East Oregonian, Oct. 17, 1888.)

It is surely an aggravation to run and follow an officer a half mile or so to answer a police whistle, expecting to find a large fire, a shooting scrape or something of the kind—only to find in some dark corner a slumped over individual sleeping the sleep of innocence. Such last night was an East Oregonian reporter's sad experience.

Miss Minnie Buzzell, the young lady who has been engaged in Chinese missionary work, and lectured on her experiences in Pendleton is, now lecturing at Albany, Ore.

An ordinance was passed by the common council granting the Pendleton Electric Light & Power Co. the right to erect, establish, maintain and operate an electric light plant and system of electric lights in the town of Pendleton, with the privilege to construct all the necessary paraphernalia. This looks like business.

THE KNOCKERS

I know he must be doing well, I know he's getting on.
His work has now begun to tell, His struggle time has gone.
He now is treading better ways, For folks are knocking him.
His skill has caught the eye of men.

His worth is seen at last, He's left the throng that knew him when.
His skies were overcast, He's won the laurel for his brow.
By toil and pluck and vim, And he is doing real work now.
For folks are knocking him.

The Knocker is a curious case, He never starts to whine, Or fling his envious shafts at us, Until our work is fine.
It's only men with skill to do, Real work he tries to block, And so congratulations to The man the knockers knock.

THEY ARE NOT SHEEP

EVIDENTLY trying to line the sheepmen up for Hughes a story is circulated that sheep will be worth $1 more per head if Wilson is defeated and Hughes elected.

But the wise woolerower is satisfied with the fortune he is now making every year. He also has some doubts about this Hughes business. He knows for instance that if Hughes should be elected and should repeal the federal reserve law there might be some eight cent wool, like we had under Taft, instead of the 40 cent wool under Wilson. He knows that if Hughes should repeal the eight hour law and precipitate a nationwide labor war there would be calamity for the wool business as well as all other industries. The sheep-

KRUPP WORKS ADD MANY WORKERS

(CARL ACKERMAN.)
ESEN, Oct. 17.—Twenty thousand new workers this week joined the several thousand employed at the Krupp works manufacturing shells and guns.

The step was taken under Hindenburg's direction, who is renewing the efforts to win the war. Skilled workmen were recalled from the front to aid in speeding the production of supplies.

Conversation with the Krupp directors indicated that Germany plans the following changes since Hindenburg has assumed leadership:

They plan to increase the supply of guns and ammunition to maintain Germany's artillery supremacy.

To renew submarine efforts to stop England from receiving contraband, stop Canadian transports and American munitions ships.

An offensive against Russia and Roumania while maintaining an iron defensive wall on the west.

To visit the gun plants indicates that Germany is making gigantic plans. Essen feels secure against air raids. Anti-aircraft guns have been removed. The plants were growing like mushrooms.

Director Von Vodenhausen said he saw no chances for peace now. He declared that if the United States stopped ammunition shipments the war would end. He said he believed England's food situation would be uncomfortable next spring.
