"Where Love Leads" William Fox Feature Today.

Orin Hawley has the difficult part of acting young sweetheart, aging mother and then returning to act young sweetheart again in the William Fox photodrama "Where Love Leads." But she stands the test well.

An Marion Barstow she is influenced by her parents to marry Sir Rankin Chatsworth (Charles Craig) an English earl, although she was in love with a younger man.

Seventeen years later Marion has been neglected by Sir Rankin, who tired of her soon after the honeymoon. She now has as her only consolation, her two daughters, Kathleen (Ileen Hume) and Rose (Pauline Carley). Sir Rankin brings a household of disreputable guests who drink and carouse all night. Marion realizes that her daughters must not be brought up in such an atmosphere and has as a scene with Sir Rankin, but he refuses to mend his ways.

Marion's mother has written, begging her to send the girls to America for a visit. She then takes the girls to the steamer, and while bidding good-bye to them, is approached by Camille Dore (Dorothy Rogers), known as the Gold Queen in the Ten-derlein. Camille is traveling under an assumed name, and as she is very respectable and aristocratic looking, Marion does not hesitate to entrust the girls to her care. Camille sees that she has made a find in the two girls and cables a confederate to prevent the grandparents from meeting the steamer on the arrival.

The girls are rescued by Richard Warren, a newspaperman who had been Marion's sweetheart before she was forced to marry the English nobleman. The former lovers are united in the strangest sort of way which ends the picture with a happy laugh.

Miss Hawley makes as good a mother as a sweetheart schoolgirl, which in the same production is a difficult test.

Coming to Alta Thursday, One Night Only.

"Thelma," a dramatization of Marie Corelli's Famous Story of The Land of the Midnight Sun.

"Thelma" is a wholesome novel and has been read by all tongues and can be found among the books in the libraries of those who love good, clean fiction. If you have read the book you will be surprised to find how well the story has been written into dramatic form and you will see the characters apparently step from the book to act out the story, surrounded by the atmosphere of Norway and England.

You will see the Echo Cave, the Midnight Sun, the Rainbow of Death, and the burning ship in which the old Viking makes his last sea voyage. This attraction is from Chicago and the characters of the story have been placed into the hands of an exceptionally strong company of artists who portray their respective parts true to life as the story goes and Richardson & Talbert, who are bringing "Thelma" to the Alta have mounted the play with beautiful scenic and electrical effects and guarantee it to be one of the best shows that will visit the local play house this season.

This is not a moving picture show, but real live, walking, talking, experienced actors.

Large crowds are greeting this play everywhere and in order that you secure good seats it is advisable that you come early.

At the Cosy.

"Love Never Dies," a romance of the Parisian Grand Opera, will be shown in Bluebird Photoplays at the Cosy theater tonight with Ruth Stonehouse, then appearing for the first time as a star in that popular output of pictures. Inspired by Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," the story deals with the fidelity of a famous violinist and a beautiful premier dancer to their childhood love. The violinist and the little girl would spend the hours other children were at play, with the girl dancing to "Spring Song," as her boyish sweetheart would play it upon his instrument. They parted, grew up, and in strange circumstances met again to renew their childhood love—and then began the unfolding of a gripping romance that led the sweethearts through bitter disappointments to the ultimate and much desired happy ending. The whole atmosphere of the play is aristocratic, beautiful photography, skillful acting and a sumptuous production marking the attraction as usual even among Bluebirds.

Pavlova at the Temple.

One of the greatest events in the history of the motion picture art will take place at the Temple three days, starting today, when Russia's dancer, Anna Pavlova, will appear on the screen in a massive spectacle entitled "The Dumb Girl of Portici." Although the stage stars are capitulating to the motion picture screen almost daily, one may not name one celebrity who has so far been enticed from the speaking stage who is in a class with Anna Pavlova. None of the famous singers, such as Geraldine Farrar, can bring to the screen all of their gifts, such as gave them fame. The voice of the diva cannot be heard in a motion picture theater, but in the case of Anna Pavlova, she will be expected to reveal herself as the greatest living dancer, as the greatest living exponent of pantomime, and as the greatest actress as well. Those who have idolized Pavlova at the Metropolitan opera house and who paid $5 a seat for the privilege will see a far greater Pavlova when they witness her triumph in the screen spectacle based on Auber's "Masaniello."
