"THE COUNTRY GOD FORGOT"

A Play of Western Wastes at the Pastime Today. Manager Mallock of the Pastime takes pleasure in announcing the presentation of the Selig Red Seal Play, "The Country That God Forgot," on Sunday and Monday. This thrilling drama of the western desert was written and directed by Marshall Neilan and features Tom Santschi, who is ably supported by such well known stars as Mary Charleson, George Fawcett and Victoria Forde. Helen Brant, wife of Steve Brant, a miner much older than she, longs for the pleasures of the world beyond the country that God has heinously forgotten. It is a lonesome, deserted country, and the only thing that it produces is virgin gold. Finally there comes the tempter, a paymaster in the government reclamation service, who softly whispers in pretty Helen's ears. She agrees to fly with the tempter. And then her husband discovers her intention. He does not interfere, but hides a sack of his gold, the fruit of years of labor, in her effects. He wants the girl to be happy. And after Helen leaves it is discovered that her companion is a thief, that he had stolen the government payroll. Steve Brant leads the pursuit. Helen and the stranger are overtaken, but not before the woman realises what a terrible mistake she has made. Finally a great punishment comes to the tempter, and a great joy to Steve Brant. A big, smashing drama, beautiful photography, impressive scenery, and a plot carried to its exciting denouement by experienced artists aid in making "The Country That God Forgot" a noteworthy film drama in every detail.

In addition the Katzenjammer Kids in Zululand. Special music on the pipe organ. Adults 15, children, 5c.

ALICE BRADY in "LA VIE DE BOHEME"

ON THE SCREENS IN CITY THEATERS

N. Y. Evening Sun: The third dramatic version of Murger's "La Vie de Boheme" to be seen here in a photo play, with Alice Brady as the star, was shown last night at Leow's New York theater to a crowded house. It has its points of superiority over either the drama that held the Empire stage for a season or the opera that is so great a favorite at the Metropolitan.

It is fuller in its story than either of them and makes more of Mimi's great sacrifice of her love for her lover's sake. Miss Brady makes the scenes in which she twice runs away from Rudolph rather than ruin his career bring tears to the spectators' eyes. The pathos of the death scene is accentuated by a natural handling of it. It brings more tears.

Once assured of a proper production "La Vie de Boheme" was bound to prove one of the great plays of the screen. W. A. Brady has given it that production and the illusion of life and even of Paris life is splendidly maintained; the settings whether of garret or inn or street, are remarkably fine and the general performance reproduces excellently the atmosphere of the famous story.

Albert Capellani, the director, achieves mastery in this result. It is quite the best photoplay from a regular program shown here in months. Its excellence is ample proof that the photo play producers need is a plot, even if it costs high. At Cosy Tuesday and Wednesday.

JEWEL CARMEN AGAIN SEEN IN NEW FAIRBANKS

PLAY AT THE TEMPLE. Other Faces Familiar to Triangle Patrons Seen in Cast of "Manhattan Madness."

Appearing with Douglas Fairbanks in "Manhattan Madness," his latest Triangle-Fine Arts starring vehicle, is a supporting company numbering several players familiar to Triangle patrons through their appearance in prominent roles in previous plays shown at the Temple.

Fairbanks' leading woman, Jewel Carmen, has come to the front rapidly since joining the Triangle forces several months ago. Her first appearance was with De Wolf Hopper in "Sunshine Dad"; then she played the siren in the Norma Talmadge feature, "The Children in the House," and since has appeared with Fairbanks in three successive plays, "Flirting With Fate," "The Half-Breed" and "Manhattan Madness."

A strong character part is in the hands of George Beranger, whose remarkable portrayal of "Automatic Joe," the comedy bandit in "Flirting With Fate," must be remembered by all who saw it. Beranger also appeared with Fairbanks in "The Good Bad Man" and "The Half-Breed."

Macey Harlam, long a recognized performer of villains on the speaking stage, seen with Fairbanks in "The Habit of Happiness" and with Dorothy Gish in "Betsy of Graystones," has a role of much mystery in "Manhattan Madness."

Pendleton was much surprised yesterday to learn of the elopement and marriage of Miss Muriel Peringer, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Peringer of this city, and Jack Dolph, yell leader of the University of Oregon and son of the late Senator Cyrus Dolph. The news of their elopement was brought by the following story in the Sunday Journal.

"While his alma mater was defeating Washington State college yesterday afternoon, Jack Dolph, until this week yell leader at the University of Oregon, and Miss Muriel Peringer, one of the university's fairest co-eds, were at Vancouver being married.

Dolph, who is the youngest son of Mrs. Elise C. Dolph and a son of the late Cyrus A. Dolph, is 22 years of age and left last night with his bride to take up an important post with the Firestone Tire & Rubber company of Akron, Ohio, of which relatives of his are managers.

Miss Peringer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Peringer of Pendleton, Ore., the Peringers being rated as among the wealthiest of eastern Oregon's wheat growers. She was a freshman at the university and a pledge of Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Dolph's absence from the game at Multnomah Field was remarked by several of his college mates. While he had left school suddenly upon receiving word of the position awaiting him, it was expected that he would appear at Multnomah Field and lead his schoolmates in their yells at the big annual battle.

"Investigation by some of his brothers in the Beta Theta Pi fraternity disclosed the fact that he had been married while they were yelling their lungs out in encouragement to their victorious team.

"Young Dolph's marriage is the second in the Dolph family within the past few months. His sister, Mrs. Edward W. Clark III, was a bride at White Temple Baptist church. Her husband is a son of the principal stockholder in the Portland Railway, Light & Power Co.

"The young couple had planned on marrying next summer when Dolph had intended going east on the mission to which he was hurriedly called this week. When the decision came his bride readily agreed to accompany him."

Amusements

What the press agents say about Pendleton's present and coming attractions.

Comus Players Excite the Utmost Admiration in Every City in Which They Appear.

The tremendous hit scored by the Comus Players at Chautauqua last summer is fresh in the minds of all Pendleton. These clever people, without scenery or stage setting and in the open in a tent, gave a capacity audience the most picturesque evening entertainment a Pendleton audience had enjoyed in many a day. But as thrilling and enjoyable as was their appearance in "Carson of the North Woods," it in no way superceded in enjoyable features, real art, and genuine heart interest their new comedy drama in three acts, "Where Heaven Begins." This time they will have the advantage of stage settings, orchestra and the comfort of the theater to enhance the enjoyment of their audience.

These clever people will appear for one night, Friday, November 17, at the Oregon theater in the three act comedy, "Where Heaven Begins," under the management of the Ellison-White Locomotive Bureau. (Same management as the Chautauqua.) McDONALD'S ORCHESTRA.

Today and Tomorrow Douglas Fairbanks

'Manhattan Madness'

Douglas Fairbanks' new Triangle play, "Manhattan Madness," is a baffling mystery, so far as plot is concerned, till the very last five minutes. Then it clears up with a big surprise.

Douglas Fairbanks jumps from the roof of a three-story house into a tree during a lively episode in "Manhattan Madness," his latest Triangle play. Neither the tree nor Fairbanks suffers injury.

IF you want to see Fairbanks at his best. IF you want to enjoy his "pep." IF you want to laugh with him. DON'T FAIL TO SEE THIS TRIANGLE PLAY. A Good Keystone Comedy "THE LADY DRUMMER."
