KOLB & DILL IN "THE THREE PALS" AT PASTIME TODAY

Mike and Louis are poor farm hands on an Illinois hayranch. When Mike discovers that he is the heir to a fortune. He and his pal, Louis, hasten to the city to acquire the money with celerity. But the lawyer in the case, one Philo Markham, sells them a ranch for all save $500 of their fortune and allows them to depart for the west to look at their acquisition, a tract known as "El Reposo."

It just happens that on the same train Markham's daughter, May, elopes with a no good gambler. The gambler rapidly loses all his money and seeks to take his wife's money from her. She eludes her husband by dropping off the train.

But Mike and Louis find that Markham has robbed them, that "El Reposo" is an arid, barren waste. The two pals are consoling when Mar thrusts herself upon them as a charge and then there are three little pals. May is pursued by her rascal husband, Chester, who is aided and abetted by Pedro, a Mexican person of low degree. The scheming pair is put to rout by Mike and Louis.

Mike and Louis go to work for a farmer. May gets a job in a dance hall. Plotters make her rescue necessary. Mike and Louis plan to kill each other and leave her their insurance. The plan fails but succeeds by a strange twist of fate. At last they all return to Chicago. There is restitution, forgiveness and all kinds of happiness, after many dramatic entanglements and curious situations.

In addition the Columbia River Highway, Oregon's scenic marvel, and a clever cartoon comedy.

Dorothy Green in Novel Vampire Role.

"The Devil at His Elbow" a strong and gripping five-part Metro wonderplay, in which Clifford Bruce and Dorothy Green are starred, is the next big feature attraction at the Alta theater on Tuesday and Wednesday.

In this feature, which was produced by the Popular Plays and Players, Mr. Bruce has the role of a mechanical engineer, who has a contract with the government to complete plans for a new type of submarine. He fails, when he indulges in heavy drink, in order to get out his plans on time. Miss Green plays the part of a girl of the street. How both are instrumental in reclaiming the other, and the unusual twist in the finale, makes one of the most dramatic stories of its kind ever shown on the screen. There is a strong supporting cast, which includes Edward Martindel, Mary Sandway, J. K. Roberts, Adolph Menjou, Frank McDonald and others. Burton King directed the production of "The Devil at His Elbow," and Harry Hevier supervised its direction.

OF BOTH EAST AND WEST IS "DOUG" IN NEW PLAY

Fairbanks Appears in "Manhattan Madness," Which Concerns a $5000 Bet and Some Lively Doings Which Follow.

In the new Triangle feature, "Manhattan Madness," to be seen at the Temple theater for the last time tonight, Douglas Fairbanks appears in a role different from any of the previous parts he has played since he made his screen debut.

He has appeared as an easterner in "The Lamb," "His Picture in the Papers," "The Habit of Happiness" and several other pictures; as a westerner in "The Good Bad-Man" and as a far westerner of mixed descent in "The Half-Breed." In "Manhattan Madness" the athletic star is of both east and west. Born and reared in New York, educated at an eastern college, he goes west after his graduation becomes a cow puncher for sheer love of the outdoor life and eventually invests his money in a ranch.

After several years on the plains he returns to the east for a visit, finds life in Manhattan extremely tame and borrows the members of his club nearly out of their senses by telling them what a dull hole they live in. The outcome is a wager in which one of the club members agrees to show the rancher a real thrill in Manhattan or lose $5000. The picture then reveals what happens to the young plainsman who loses his bet, but is well content because he has the thrill of his life, including the capture of a bride.

Fairbanks is equally at home in chaps and sombrero or "soup and fish." His gymnastic capabilities are called on to the utmost after he en-

Douglas Fairbanks

'Manhattan Madness'

Douglas Fairbanks' new Triangle play, "Manhattan Madness," is a baffling mystery, so far as plot is concerned, till the very last five minutes. Then it clears up with a big surprise.

Douglas Fairbanks jumps from the roof of a three-story house into a tree during a lively episode in "Manhattan Madness," his latest Triangle play. Neither the tree nor Fairbanks suffers injury.

IF you want to see Fairbanks at his best. IF you want to enjoy his "pep." IF you want to laugh with him. DON'T FAIL TO SEE THIS TRIANGLE PLAY. A Good Keystone Comedy "THE LADY DRUMMER."

ters upon the adventure which follows the wager, and, despite some pretty tight situations, he never loses the "Fairbanks smile."

In the star's support are Jewel Carmen, George Beranger, Macey Harlan, Eugene Ormonde, W. P. Richmond and Deth Darling.

At the Oxy.

Alice Brady, the petite emotional actress who played such a charming role in "Tangled Feet" will be the attraction in another World Film feature at the Oxy theater on Tuesday and Wednesday, when "Mimi," a play vitally Bohemian in all its entirety, will be the vehicle used to bring Miss Brady back to the city.

Her success in opera, on the stage and in the silent drama proves her to be a natural born actress.

AN EXPERT ON COLDS

Comparatively few people realize that a cold is a signal of physical weakness.

To treat a cold with weakening physics, alcoholic syrups or drugged pills, may smother the cold but they also reduce the body powers still further and invite more serious sickness.

Scott's Emulsion has always been an expert on colds, because it peculiarly enriches the blood, quickly tones up the forces and strengthens both throat and chest. Try Scott's. Refuse Substitutes. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 16-27
