the reconstruction days and since the republican party, guided by New England prejudice, sought by intolerable methods to force black supremacy upon the southern people.

It was not merely by accident that this year the south and west joined hands politically. The south is a region where agricultural production is the foundation of prosperity. So with the west. The federal reserve system, the rural credits law and other measures for the benefit of the producer have been as welcome in the south as in the west. Both south and west have been freed from the dominion of Wall street by the Wilson administration. Given their economic independence they have asserted their political freedom from the north Atlantic and New England states where manufacture holds sway and politics goes hand in hand with special privilege.

The western farmer has more in common with the farmer of the south than he has with the steel trust or with the New England woolen combine. These farmers have a joint concern in seeing that legislation for the nation is dictated not by New York but by the people who really make up the bone and sinew of the republic.

If this new alliance of the west and south is strengthened by southern hatred of republican rule New England but reaps the just fruits of a post bellum policy that was founded on stupidity and ignorance of the laws of man and God.

SUGGESTION VS. MEDICINE

CARRYING out the theory as to the influence of suggestion in connection with illness is the story of a successful Maryland sanitarium wherein the patients are forbidden to talk to each other. The idea of the management is that a sick person may be made worse by hearing of the diseases or ailments of others.

That illness is partly mental is not a new notion. The principle was set forth many centuries ago. There is a very old story of a witch who asked the king of a certain city for permission, in return for favors granted, to be allowed to kill one person in the city. The wish was granted but thousands died instead of one. Reproached by the king the witch replied that she had killed but one, that the others had died of fear.

In opposition to those who lay great stress upon suggestive influences are many orthodox folk who say that mental treatment is alright when there is nothing wrong with the patient. It is very easy to point to innumerable cases where medical or surgical treatment saves the day when nothing else could suffice. Yet it is well known that the most skilled doctors give serious attention to the mental conditions of those they treat; then there are cases where suggestion wins when medical science fails.

The facts indicate there is merit in both schools of thought and if so the wise are they who draw upon both as the occasion demands.

THE NORTHWEST AFTER THE WAR

THE question as to what this country, particularly the west, will receive in the way of European immigration following the war offers a fertile field for speculation.

It is to be borne in mind that the Panama canal, promising new trade and new people for the northwest, was opened simultaneously with the outbreak of the war. Therefore we have had no chance as yet to see what the canal can accomplish. When the war is over the canal will come into play, though it may be years before the shipping business gets into such shape as to permit the full advantages of the canal to be reaped.

Another factor in the immigration problem arises from the probable desire of Europeans to seek a land free from war and war debt. Life will not be pleasant on a continent where war graves are numbered by the million. On top of this it is estimated, according to Prof. Irving Fisher, of the chair of economy at Yale, that the European interest charge on war loans will after the war equal or surpass the total national budgets prior to the war. If so it means double taxation and for men of wealth it means much more than that. The income tax may reach as high as 50 per cent. Wont that feature of the situation cause many to bring their possessions to the new world where no such burdens will await?

The after-the-war problem certainly offers many interesting features.

The election occurred two weeks ago today and yet the official count is not yet completed in some California counties; are they slow down there or looking for a good chance to steal something?

The Pendleton boys on the border would enjoy getting back home; why don't some of our war loving gentlemen enlist so as to take their places?

General rains are predicted for the coast this week; they will be more welcome than General Frost or Colonel Fog.

Mr. William Savage, well known all over Oregon, is in town on a visit to relatives and friends. Mr. Savage has four daughters living in this county, namely Mrs. George Clark, Mrs. Tom Caplinger, Mrs. William Caplinger and Mrs. J. D. Peck.

Carpenters are said to be very hard to obtain in Pendleton, the many improvements now in progress keeping every worthy craftsman in employment. Good men are seldom idle in Pendleton.

Mrs. Ben Morgan is recovering from her late spell of sickness. John Owens, a resident of Bear creek, received a gold watch at Despain & Howards, he having held the lucky number.

This Simple Laxative A Household Necessity

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN SHOULD HAVE A PLACE IN EVERY HOME

Constipation, or inaction of the bowels, a condition that nearly every one experiences with more or less frequency, is the direct cause of much disease. When the bowels become clogged with refuse from the stomach, foul gases and poisons are generated, and unless the congestion is quickly relieved the system becomes weakened and most susceptible to attack.

Various remedies to relieve constipation are prescribed, but many of these contain cathartic or purgative agents that are harsh and violent in their action and shock the system. The most effective remedy is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

The Hon. John D. Keister of Brandywine, W. Va., who has represented his district in the state legislature for six years, writes that he uses Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and finds it a splendid laxative, easy to take and mild, yet positive, in its action, and that it should be in every household for use when needed. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists in all parts of the United States and costs only fifty cents a bottle. It contains no opiate or narcotic drug, does not gripe, and is recommended as a family laxative, mild enough for the tiniest babe, yet sufficiently powerful to act easily on the strongest constitution.

To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.
