

O! Grandmother

Exclaimed a young married woman: "Do go to the Bee-Hive. It is all rearranged and looks altogether different, with wide aisles and plenty of room. That certainly is the most attractive store in town and is full of lovely gifts. I just wish I could find a little camping place there and spend the day."

PRETTY FIREBUG ADMITS HER GUILT

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth McCowan, a beautiful young woman who conducted a private kindergarten here, confessed that she set fire to her school building October 8 and burned it to the ground. Worry over the high cost of living and the loss of pupils through the infantile paralysis scare were assigned by her as the reasons for setting the house afire.

MERU CHORUS MAIDS AND BURLESQUE QUEEN BARRIED, GOSH DING IT!

COLFAX, La., Dec. 13.—Colfax is the showiest town hitherforth. Musical comedies, burlesque shows, circuses, minstrels and vaudeville are included in the fun passed by the council, seven to two, and effective today. Sixteen youths of the town recently took as many chorus girls on joy rides and "painted the town red" on the jaunt. The ordinance is the sequel.

Cost of Boarding Hired Help.

It costs $128 per year to board a hired hand, according to estimates furnished to the department of agriculture by 1,000 farmers representing widely separated sections in 14 states. The averages derived from these estimates are embodied in Department Bulletin 410, recently published, entitled "Value to Farm Families of Food, Fuel and Use of House."

It was found that the total annual cost per person of board for hired help varied from $104 in Vermont and Pennsylvania to $142 in New Jersey, and that the percentage of this cost paid out in cash varied from 15 per cent in North Carolina to 49 per cent in California. This percentage is about one-third in the eastern section studied, about one-fourth in the corn-belt states, and still less in the southern states.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—After being for three days, imprisoned in a box car, without food or drink, Nicholas Hranick, nineteen years, was rescued in a delirious condition from his rolling prison early yesterday in the freight yards at Nine-sixth street and North river.

Detective Klausman of the New York Central, passing a line of "empties" just in from Chicago, heard muffled cries in one. He unlocked the car and brought out the youth.

After he had been fed the traveler was arraigned in the West Side court. He said when he boarded the train in Chicago, intending to come to New York to seek work, he did not realize how long the trip would last. When his hunger grew great he beat on the car door, but nobody came to release him.

The youth, who said he had worked on farms, was held in $500 for examination tomorrow, charged with disorderly conduct.

Red tape continues to be the most costly of all known commodities.

Farmhand in a Locked Box Car for Three Days Without Food or Drink

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—After being for three days, imprisoned in a box car, without food or drink, Nicholas Hranick, nineteen years, was rescued in a delirious condition from his rolling prison early yesterday in the freight yards at Nine-sixth street and North river.

Detective Klausman of the New York Central, passing a line of "empties" just in from Chicago, heard muffled cries in one. He unlocked the car and brought out the youth.

TWO VIEWS OF OLIVER OSBORNE

Here are two views of the mysterious "Oliver Osborne" and a photograph of James W. Osborne, the prominent New York lawyer, whom Miss Rae Tanner accused of being "Oliver," which resulted in her arrest and prosecution for perjury. "Oliver Osborne," whose real name is Charles H. Wax, has confessed to the federal authorities that he is the man sought, and that it was he who made love to Miss Tanner, causing her to sue James W. Osborne for breach of promise. "Oliver" is alleged to have confessed having made love to scores of women. Secret service agents who followed him 26,000 miles before catching him, say he is married to at least four women without having divorced any one.

The property boy at the motion picture studio, universally known as "Props," is one of the few remaining actors in this great industry whose activities, ideas and experiences are seldom chronicled. Still, much depends upon him. Whenever there are signs of life at the studio "Props" will be found not far away, for he is ever on the job in behalf of the amusement seeking public.

A most sophisticated sort of a being, he misses nothing and gets an angle on studio doings that is generally as amusing as it is interesting. To hear him tell his friends about little "inside" incidents in connection with the life of a star or the production of a photoplay is usually a treat and discloses information that would otherwise remain obscure.

Commencing with this issue we will reveal the wisdom, secrets and general prattle of "Props" as he presents it in a daily interview. We selected a typical member of his profession to supply us with material for this department, a freckle-faced youth on the sunny side of twenty, a knight of the overalls and jumper, a human with fear for but one person—his director. Our initial talk with his nibs immediately convinced us of the fact that he had picked a live one. A master of the studio vernacular, and—in this instance—blessed with a glib tongue and a keen sense of humor, he proved a most willing collaborator.

"Say," commenced our hero, "dere is lots of jobs wot's easier dan working as 'props' in a moving picture studio. Believe me, feller, it's no cinch! When you look at pitchers you only think about de big things, but if you stop to figure how some of de little things were got you'd soon know dat de prop boy ain't a no account feller at de moving picture studio.

"F'instance, de other day de director yells at me: 'Hey, git me a big spider quick as you kin!' Well, one of de

PERIN, SQUANDERER OF $1,000,000 ARRESTED

Thought Insane, He Was Caught in Lumber Camp After Flight From Physician

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Dec. 13.—Lawrence Perin, eccentric son of Mrs. Nelson of Baltimore, whose heritage of $1,000,000 from his father was mostly consumed in alcohol, was arrested in a lumber camp thirty-eight miles from here, following a flight last Friday from a physician who was to take him to a sanitarium.

Perin will be arraigned here tomorrow morning and examined as to his sanity. When he was brought to Lewisburg he made several wild speeches and should he be declared insane, he probably will be sent to the state asylum at Huntington, W. Va., thus bringing to a tragic close the efforts of his devoted mother to have him cared for in a private sanitarium of her own choosing.

Until two months ago it seemed that the young man—he is between thirty and thirty-five—was rapidly recovering from the abnormalities which caused his incarceration in New York state several times early in his youth. He became interested in the presidential campaign, taking the side of Mr. Hughes, visited the lumber camps, speechmaking, and then to New York, accompanied by his second wife.

Returning to the south, he went to the Greenbrier Hotel at White Sulphur Springs. His mother, widow of the former traction magnate of Ohio, sent her physician, Dr. G. Albert Brunner of Providence last Friday to the Greenbrier to bring Lawrence to a private sanitarium. But with word of Dr. Brunner's coming, Perin jumped into an automobile and made for the woods. Detectives trailed him but got no clue until last evening.

Some men think they are doing a great deal toward righting the wrongs of the world by continually fussing with their neighbors.

Also, in many a household in the land there is a diet squad.

YOU W-B CUT chewers know all about tobacco satisfaction. You feel sort of sorry for users of the old kind. There is so little tobacco satisfaction in tobacco with excess of sweetening, no matter how big a chew they take. It's sort of difficult to make beginners understand how much satisfaction there is in tobacco if it's rich tobacco. They will know when they get to be regular W-B CUT users.

COUPLE ARRESTED ON BADGER GAME CHARGE

Eugene, Oregon, Real Estate Man Says He Was Trapped; Forced to Pay

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 12.—J. E. Jennings and his wife, Taletia B. Jennings of this city was arrested here this afternoon on a warrant charging them with attempting to extort money from O. H. Skotheim, a prominent realty dealer.

Jennings and wife appeared before Justice Wells immediately after their arrest and arranged to give bonds, which were placed at $3000 each.

The crime is alleged to have been committed on the afternoon of November 25, when the woman asked Mr. Skotheim to call at her home on business. Upon entering the house, Skotheim says, Mrs. Jennings embraced him and spoke in endearing terms. Before he could recover from the embarrassment, Mr. Jennings appeared with a revolver and demanded $1500.

Mr. Skotheim agreed to pay them $500 and gave them a check for the amount, he claims, receiving a receipt for the money. He claims to have a witness to what occurred when he paid over the money.

Jennings is a son of A. C. Jennings, a pioneer of this section and former county clerk.
