What the Picture Theaters Have to Tell You.

WAR SPIRIT IS CLEARLY REGISTERED

The understrain of enmity which existed between the north and the south just prior to the civil war is clearly depicted in the quaint, romantic story of "Rose of the South," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature starring Peggy Hyland and Antonio Moreno, which is the attraction at the Pastime Sunday and Monday.

Scenes of the northern college are shown with the students lounging about on the grass of the campus. Then "Big Randolph" with his dusky slave and faithful dog comes to the school from his southern home and slowly the strained relations make themselves manifest and result in no end of quarrels.

Finally "Rose of the South," played by Peggy Hyland appears, and the desperate struggle for her love between Randolph and Watkins, a man of the north ensues.

When Commodore Blackton, of the Vitagraph Company, induced her to join that company, a number of other offers were refused and immediately Miss Hyland started work as Mr. E. H. Sothern's leading lady in his first film production, "The Chattel."

Wherever this picture was shown, Miss Hyland's work won commendable comment, and she was immediately cast in a number of other pictures the first of which is "Rose of the South," the Blue Ribbon Feature.

Although the newest arrival at the large Vitagraph studios, Miss Hyland could by no means be called a stranger for she had not been under the great glass building twenty four hours before everybody knew and loved her, from stars to the scene shifters.

This little star is in love with her work and reports at the studio bright and early every morning always ready when her director calls her—a most unusual record for so prominent a personage.

Pastime today.

"THE MICROSCOPE MYSTERY" AT THE TEMPLE

The conjunction of two favorite stars gives brilliancy to the new Triangle-Fine Arts feature, "The Microscope Mystery," which will be shown Monday with Wilfred Lucas and Constance Talmadge in the leading roles. The kind of a screen play that a Poe or a Conan Doyle would enjoy having written is unfolded in this unusual drama. Lucas, whose work in "Rummy" and "Hell-to-Pay Austin" is remembered with joy, takes the part of a whimsical country doctor who solves an absorbing murder mystery with the aid of a microscope and thus clears an innocent girl, to whom the circumstances seem to point unmistakably. Miss Talmadge lends her well known sincerity and charm to the girl's part.

Amusements What the press agents say about Pendleton's present and coming attractions. Barbara Worth, one of the most interesting types of all the stellar roles of the stage today, is the central figure in the dramatic version of Harold Bell Wright's widely read novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," which will be the attraction at the Oregon theater next Friday, January 5. The character will be assumed by Virginia Hardy, who in the past few seasons has attracted the attention of prominent managers through her ability and distinctive charm. She is the ideal Barbara and has been delighting theater goers everywhere she has played. Those who have read this interesting story who, have in their mind's eye their ideal of this character will not be disappointed in Miss Hardy. The author, himself, was delighted with her performance. She gives to the character a western atmosphere and this coupled with a distinctive magnetism makes her all that could be expected.
