SOCIAL PERSONAL

Mrs. Albert Cook was a delightful hostess yesterday entertaining the Hungry Seven at her home on Cobble street. Sewing and conversation provided interesting diversion with a dainty luncheon rounding out the affair. Those present were Mrs. E. J. Green, Mrs. E. L. Brown, Mrs. Otto Nelson, Mrs. Cecil Hampton and Mrs. Frank Sullivan.

Stanley G. Jewett of the biological survey arrived from Portland Thursday evening where he had spent two weeks with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Burke of Pendleton, are registered at Hotel Portland, Portland, Oregon.

Members of the Beta Pi fraternity met last evening at the dinner hour at the Hotel Pendleton. Those present included James S. Johns, Edmund Mable, Alger Fee, Merle R. Cheseman, Lyman G. Rice, Harold Young, Clyde Phillips, Bert Jerard, Ned Fowler and Donald Robinson of this city, Arthur G. Means of Rieth and Irwin G. Brooks of Athena.

Miss Mary Watson of the extension faculty of the University of Oregon, is to speak in the County Library auditorium on Monday afternoon, January 8, on "The Social Problems of the Modern English Novel." The lecture is given under the auspices of the Current Literature Club and is entirely free. All who are interested are cordially invited, especially the members of the other literary clubs in the city. Miss Watson has gained considerable fame as a clear thinker and delightful speaker and her appearance is sure to arouse much interest. During her stay in Pendleton she will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. James Johns Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ash.

UNION PICKETS CHARGED WITH ASSAULTING MAN

PORTLAND, Jan. 5.—Reports of the first violence of the ship-yard strike was made tonight to the police, when L. S. Gill, a non-striking boiler-maker, obtained warrants against D. H. Guy and C. E. Wyman, union pickets, on charges of assault. Gill said he had been accosted and knocked down by Guy and Wyman near the Willamette Iron & Steel Works, where he is employed.

The school board directors and their wives together with Superintendent and Mrs. A. T. Park and Professor Drill were guests at a charmingly arranged dinner party last evening at the Pastime House for which the advanced class in Domestic art were hostesses. The dinner was planned, cooked and served entirely by pupils and proved a decided success from every standpoint.

Last evening Mrs. J. T. Richardson of 212 Lewis street, assisted by three members of the Pendleton Research club, were charming hostesses to the club members and their husbands. Each member represented their hobby and was the cause of much merriment.

Mrs. W. H. Burnett captured first prize while Mrs. C. Penland, Mrs. Chas. Norris, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hatch each won a prize for different "stunts" performed during the evening. A two course luncheon was served and at a late hour the guests departed, feeling that they were several years younger and wiser.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Alexander of Montavilla, Montana, who have been the house guests of Mrs. Alexander's father, J. H. Bentley for several days, left this morning for their home.

MENAMARA ORDERED TO SAN QUENTIN DUNGEON

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Jan. 5.—J. B. McNamara, serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary here for dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building 1916, was ordered into the disciplinary dungeon for refusing to work in the jute mill.

According to the prison officials McNamara had been doing unsatisfactory work in the laundry where he had been assigned for three years and a half and today Captain of the Guard Samuel Randolph ordered him to the jute mill. McNamara refused and persisted in his refusal when taken before Warden James Johnston. Johnston ordered him to the dungeon for three days when the warden said, he would be given another opportunity to work in the jute mill.

POSTOFFICE COMMITTEE ADOPTS WAGE INCREASE AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—An amendment offered by Representative Ayers of Kansas, to the postoffice appropriation bill providing a salary increase of ten per cent for every urban, and rural post office employee receiving less than twelve hundred and five per cent for those getting between twelve and eighteen hundred dollars a year was adopted by the postoffice committee.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG, TERPSICHOEAN ARTIST

Demonstrates Ability at the Pastime Theater on Sunday-Monday.

Clara Kimball Young who plays the title role in the Vitaphone de luxe edition of "My Official Wife," which is the attraction at the Pastime theater on Sunday and Monday, is well versed in the terpsichorean art. Furthermore, she demonstrates her abilities along this line in that film play.

During the first part of the picture, Miss Young is seen as a Russian peasant girl in the picturesque costume of those people and wearing the high leather boots she does the dance in vogue with the peasants.

As the story runs its course she becomes a nihilist owing to the severe treatment her people receive from the nobility.

Now wearing a beautiful evening gown she enters the royal ballroom with the nobleman who has gained entrance for her. It is not the rough and rowdy peasant dance which she now enters, but the society steps of the day.

In both instances, however, Miss Young gives praiseworthy performances and one decides that she is an artist in the terpsichorean art as well as the dramatic.

In addition to the above will be a Krazy Kats comic cartoon for the kiddies and Mrs. Ethel Livermore will play special Russian music on the photoplayer pipe organ.

Alta Sunday and Monday.

Jesse L. Lasky presents Sessue Hayakawa in "The Soul of Kura-San," with Myrtle Stedman. Cast of characters:

- Toyo Sessue Hayakawa
- Kura-San Tsuri Aoki
- Anne Willoughby Myrtle Stedman
- Herbert Graham George Webb
- Naguchi Thomas Kurihara
- Okii George Kuwa
- Assistant to Naguchi H. Konishi

A rare novelty among screen offerings is the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company's presentation of the celebrated American screen favorite Myrtle Stedman, in the virile and unusual photoplay, "The Soul of Kura-San."

To discriminating followers of the silent drama Sessue Hayakawa has brought a unique and powerful screen art. In such screen successes as "The Cheat," "Allen Souls," and "The Honorable Friend" he has demonstrated a tremendous dramatic talent. Myrtle Stedman has herself starred in many pleasing and popular photoplays. The combination of these two artists of such different types in a thrilling Japanese-American drama must be considered a distinctive screen event.

"The Narrow Path."

"The Narrow Path," a five reel Red Feather feature production starring Violet Mersereau in the principal part, will be seen at the Cosy theater on Sunday and Monday. In this play Miss Mersereau has the part of a little waif of the East Side in New York who drifts into the dramatic field and finds that she has a great talent for dancing. She falls in love with a wealthy young man who helps her to stardom and after a long and stormy courtship, marries him. The supporting cast is very strong and includes William Welsh, Clara Beyers and Joseph W. Girard.

Vaudeville at Temple Is All to the MERRY.

Between six and seven feet of drolery—that is MacAvoy of the team of MacAvoy and Ellwood at the Temple theater. Ellwood, the feminine half of the team, short and bright and sparklingly clever, makes her towering companion all the more comical in his solemn jesting. MacAvoy has besides his patter a semi-impromptu song about the audience and things in general that he can put over with variations as long as the audience wants more and they seemed to want more last night.

The other act, The Wait Trio, is three young boys who are full of harmony and each sings a solo in a way that pleases.

This same vaudeville will be on this evening, along with the Brady-Made picture, "The Rail Rider," featuring House Peters.

Odd Type of Girl Portrayed by Lillian Gish in New Triangle Drama, "The Children Pay," at the Temple.

Lillian Gish characterizes an unusual type of girl in "The Children Pay," a new Triangle-Fine Arts production directed by Lloyd Ingraham, at the Temple theater Sunday and Monday.

Her part is that of Millicent Ainsley, eldest daughter of Theodore Ainsley, a wealthy, self-centered man of affairs who divorces his equally selfish wife and sends his daughters away to a small town in charge of an old servant in order that he may make a new match with a young society belle.

Millicent and her little sister are forced to find happiness in their own devices, as they are ostracized by the villagers, who only know there is some mystery connected with their present situation.

To amuse herself Millicent turns inventor and builds improved dishwashers, clothes wringers and even a strange racing contrivance, half automobile, half motorcycle. In this unique "go-devil" she tears over the public highways at the risk of life and limb and to the horror of the local puritans.

The strange speed wagon shown in this play was built especially for Miss Gish at the private machine shop of Barney Oldfield while the great record-smasher was appearing recently in Los Angeles. After watching the fair Lillian guide the cranky little contrivance Barney predicted that she would some day retire from the motion picture field long enough to beat him at his own game.

Roumanis had a short war, but not particularly a merry one.

WOMEN HAVE SUFFRAGE IN RACE OF LILLIPUTIANS

Little Indians on South American Island Are Feminists.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Gulliver discovered the Lilliputians, but he failed to learn that the tiniest race extant were firm believers in woman suffrage and the cleanest people on earth.

Dr. Edward A. Salisbury in company with Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart and Rex Beach, both widely known writers, has just completed a trip of exploration through islands of the western coast of South America.

The scientist-explorer while in Chicago today told a story about the San Bias Indians, a pygmy race of which little is known because of their exclusive habits. They inhabit an island near Colon. There are only 19,000 in existence.

"These Indians are a serious minded little people, who live a communal life in which the woman plays as important a part as the man," he said. "They are the Lilliputians of fact. All matters of importance are settled by the whole tribe in a council in which the women vote and talk. If a youth decides to marry he presents his chosen bride to the council and if she is approved he makes his demands known. They are wary of whites because they have often been cheated."

PLAN TO RAFFLE ONE BABY CREATES DEMAND FOR 15

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Fifteen homeless babies are to find homes as a result of the popularity of the Saugus Knights of Pythias baby raffle, which is to be held tomorrow.

When it was announced that the committee which is arranging a dance was planning to present some deserving couple with a "beautiful, blue-eyed, blond-haired, three-month-old male baby," applications began to pour in on Carl F. Koch, keeper of the Saugus poor farm and chairman of the dance committee.

Eleven yearning couples from outside Saugus and four inside the town limits asked for babies so today the committee arranged with the Little Wanderers' home in Boston to supply all the applicants.
