2.-Finn letails have been completed for rights of way and trackage in St Helens for the Holland, Briggs and Avery Logging Co. which will begin mediately to construct a logging railroad to its large timber holdings near Trenholm. The road will tap a district holding 175,000,000 feet of timber. The land after logged off ASTORIA. Feb. 2 .- Fifty towns, villages and community organizations n Clatsop and Columbia counties have united in an effort to bring the Oregon legislature's attention to the need of state appropriations for completing Columbia river highway work in the two counties. Both Claisop and Columbia bonded themselves to build the highway through their dis tricts, but funds gave out before the work was completed. Now the state is being asked to finish the job.

MISSOULA, Mont., Feb. 2 .- The modern student as a rule is out of touch with the world in which he lives according to the belief of Carl Holli day, professor of English at the Uni-books, in which some students show passing interest, books fail to win the attention of the average student." maid Prof. Holliday. "Excepting the students in journalism and current events classes, the seniors themselves are indifferent to what passes on outside the campus. They lose much of their interest even in looking on at the game of life and surround themselves with their text books and their own self sufficiency. It is deplorable that the task of getting an education causes many students to neglect numerous educational opportunities."

Philchuck Julin, Indian secress, laims credit for the snows which nave been threatening the northwest off and on for about a week. Some followers laughed at Julia for being an erring weather prognosticator, but she foretold a snow "two squawy deep" and shortly after that the little flages began tumbling down

GOLD HILL, Or., Feb. 2 .- John Hammersley, government hunter, is daily undergoing the novel experience of meeting folks who believed him dead The report that Hammersley had been slain and devoured by a pack of timber wolves was thoroughcirculated while he was in the Caswith gasps of astonishment, palsied hand shakes and pallid cheeks, Like Mark Twain, Hammersley says the reort of his death was "very much ex-

PORTLAND, Fe5b. 2 .- An anti-cat ordinance will probably be acted upn soon by the Portland city council. It is designed to eliminate homeless cats but some of its advocates want so drastic that all cats will be slain.

not later than the year 1920, continue to unearth and produce operas comius of quality equal to that now on display in Portland. Of musical comedy "shows," consisting of one eccentric comedian surrounded by a flock of semi-dressed horus girls, there has been no lack, but the real, pleasurable comic operas have been as rare as the visits of angels in recent years. "The Lilac Domino" not only follows the bect traditions of its special class of enter-alument, but the interpreting company is worthy of praise for the qual-ity of voices displayed. There is medy a-plenty of the clean, clever sort, suplied by four or five men; there are lliting melodies well sung. and there is the story.

What is particularly noticeable in the presentation of "The Lilac Domino" is the distinctnes of the enunciation of the principals. Usually, sonst numbers are mouthed until it is impossible to understand the singers. In the present instance, every word can be caught of song or dialogue. Take Bradford Kirkebride, the tenor, for instance. It is a genuing delight to listen to him, not only because of his vocal abilities, but because of his faculty for enunciation. There is an army of singers in these Unite." States who would do well to copy Mr. Kirke-bride's example. The same is true of Yvonne Darle, who has the title role, and of all the other principals.

In adapting this comic opera for the American stage, the American weakness for ragtime has received due consideration. From time to time the tempo is changed to the syn-copated style, adding a touch of giner There is one bit of burlesque introduced which stormed the house last night.
