The cooperation of Portland in the new method of handling wheat is assured.

Wolf Skins Not Wolf Skins.
Recently there have been a number of spirited stories of black wolves killed in Baker county. Two of the skins of the slain animals arrived this morning at the office of the biological survey for examination and, in the opinion of Messrs. Averill and Jewett, they are not from wolves at all. They believe the animals from which they were taken were a cross between a coyote and a dog. The hides belong to the Heltmers Co. of Baker.

Their food is to cost 25 cents a day. Last night they expressed themselves as well pleased with the first day's meals. They all signed an agreement.

Men's Hats

Have you ever bought one of our real up to the minute hats for dress wear? If not, come in and let us show you the nicest spring line that you have seen anywhere and for much lower price. Can you imagine any store saving you a cold dollar on the price of a hat? Well, we do it on our $2.98 model, as they are sold everywhere at $4.00. We also have them at $1.98 and $2.49 which sell at $2.50 and $3.00 respectively any place. The new shades for this season include Palmetto Greens, Claro Browns, Seal Brown, Light Tans, Steel Grays and Blacks. The shapes vary quite a bit from last year's styles as the brims are somewhat wider and the crowns are quite a bit lower. One look at them will convince you that we are right in style as well as price.

"TROTTING" SNAKE CAUSES STAMPEDE IN POLICE STATION

Serpent Can't Make Its Coils Behave When It Hears Ragtime; is Sent to Zoo.

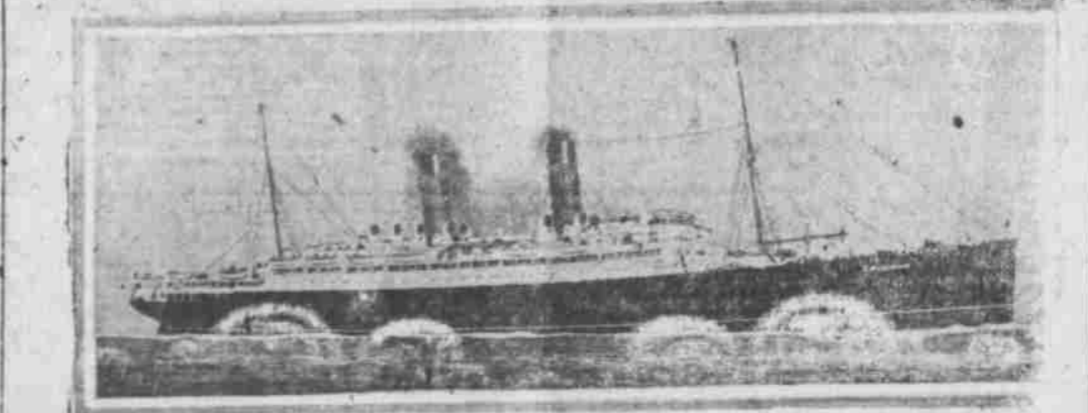

NEW YORK, March 6.—A seven-foot snake occasioned some lively maneuvers in the East city's first street police station yesterday. It made its entrance by the front door, reposing in a long box carried by George B. McCoy of No. 9 East Forty-third street.

PRESIDENT DELIVERING INAUGURAL ADDRESS FOUR YEARS AGO

This photograph was taken four years ago when President Wilson delivered his inaugural address from the foot of the main steps of the Capitol. The same kind of stand was built in the same spot and the seats on the Capitol steps were arranged in the same way for yesterday's inauguration.

TEN AMERICANS ON BOARD LACONIA SUNK BY GERMAN U-BOAT

The Commodore Line steamship Laconia, of 15,000 tons gross, sunk by a German submarine of the Irish coast, off Cape Cod, on February 18.

"Lieutenant, I want to leave this here," said McCoy, putting down the box and backing away from it. Lieutenant Frank glanced at the box and inquired with a yawn: "What's in it—flowers?" "No, a snake," answered McCoy earnestly. The lieutenant cut short his yawn. McCoy read a startled question in his eyes and continued: "Yes, it's alive. It's an educated bull-head snake. Mrs. Barrie trained it to do the tango and the bunny hug. But now she's gone away. I don't know where she is. And I couldn't stand the responsibility." "What do you mean—responsibility?" demanded the lieutenant. "This snake is very fond of music," McCoy explained. "And there's so much piano playing around my place that it's always trying to get out and dance around the room. When it hears, ragtime it just can't make its coils behave." He was permitted to leave his unwelcome guest in the roofter room, after which he went away with an air of relief. Soon afterward the incoming platoon of patrolmen invaded the station. Several of them began to whistle. Immediately the innocent looking florist's box began to act in an unusual manner. Noises of rustling and knocking escaped from it, and it began to rock. Presently a corner of the lid was forced up and the bull-head snake proceeded to glide forth. The whistling gave place to shouts of dismay, and it needed some sharp commands from Lieutenant Frank to rally the demoralized reserves and bring about the re-arrest of the terpsichorean serpent. Then he dispatched it in a patrol wagon, to the Central park zoo.
