SWINE FAMINE THREATENS MARKET

By Hyman H. Cohen. Disaster threatens the hog industry of the entire United States, and especially in the Pacific northwest is danger is slight.

Carload after carload of brood sows are being marketed not only at North Portland, but in the leading markets of the United States.

"The situation is a desperate one," says William H. Daughtrey, president of the Portland Union Stockyards.

There was only a very light movement of swine into the North Portland yards overnight and with the exception of a very few head there was little available to give the market any sort of test.

Hog market trade conditions remain firm. In fact, they are so firm that the country is being drained of supplies in order to meet current demands at extreme values.

General hog range: Heavy packing 11.40@12.50, Best light 12.00@13.25, Rough heavy 12.00@12.25, Flax 11.00@11.25, Stockers 10.25@10.50.

Cattle Situation Strong. Situation in the cattle market is extremely firm and full prices are being maintained.

Overnight there was only an extremely small run at North Portland, but for what stock came forward there was an instant demand at full price, quality considered.
