WASHINGTON, March 20.—Franz Karl Zitelman, former German Consul-General to the Philippines Gasim and the Zulu Islands, is traveling back and forth on the Pacific ocean, unable to find hospital shores upon which to land. Zitelman was expelled from Manila following the break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany and then sent on an American army transport to Japan, on route to China. The Japanese authorities, however, declined to afford him safe conduct and he was forced to continue his journey to Honolulu. Honolulu, being an American harbor, could not receive Zitelman, and it was decided to send him by the next boat direct to China. He will soon put into China, to learn that diplomatic relations between that country and his have been severed and that he cannot land there.
