MOTION PICTURE NEWS

What the Picture Theaters Have to Tell You.

MARY MILES MINTER IN "THE GENTLE INTRUDER" AT PARTIME TODAY

In an appealing role of youth and innocence, Mary Miles Minter as Sylvia, the orphan girl, presents another of the charming portrayals that have endeared her to all picture lovers.

In "The Gentle Intruder" she is seen as the unwelcome ward of a family of social climbers, she is looked upon as an intruder and they openly resent her plebeian presence as much as they secretly envy her youth and beauty. When the son of the family falls in love with her, she is thought a designing adventuress, scheming to marry into the family.

In these situations, and in the sudden and surprising climax, which she has many excellent opportunities to display her charming personality and youthful genius.

In addition the comical George Ovey in a laughable farce, "Jerry's Mix-Up," an entertaining, well balanced program. Usual admission. Adults, 15c; children, 5c.

Alta Wednesday. "Nightingale" is a good girl who, stranded in the Yukon, becomes an inmate of a dance hall. Disgusted with her surroundings, she offers herself as the stake in a gambling game in order to get enough money with which to return to civilization.

A stranger who wins the prize sends Nan away, telling her some day he will call to see her. She becomes a famous prima donna in New York. The stranger calls and makes his demand. Herein lies the most dramatic situation in a great drama.

Alta Theater Wednesday.

LONDON COSTERS IN RED FEATHER

One of the pictures which lingers in the memory of all who saw it, is the Universal five reel feature, "My Old Dutch," which was issued more than a year ago, but is still going strong.

When "Me an' Me Pal" was shown for the first time in the Universal projection room the unanimous verdict was "Another Old Dutch." This Red Feather photoplay, which will come to the Cozy theater on today, is a heart interest story, set among the London costers, that pictures a group of people, who were first made known to us in this country by Albert Chevalier, the popular singer of songs about them.

They are peddlers of fruits, flowers or vegetables who go about the streets of the great English capital, crying their wares, which they carry in little carts drawn by donkeys if they are prosperous, or pushed on a hand-barrow if they are not. They have their own manners.

customs and costumes. A cozier dressed up for a holiday is a strange sight, his clothes sewn all over with rows and rows of pearl buttons. He wears tight trousers, widening at the foot, and a short jacket, and both of them, with his hat, are a mass of buttons. His wife, or his "donna" as he calls his sweetheart, wears a huge hat with towering ostrich feathers, and an apron of bright colored silk. Often she has a velvet bodice of a different color from her skirt. A delightful story about these interesting people will be told in the Red Feather, "Me an' Me Pal."

"The Libertine" Contains Scenes of Remarkable Beauty; The Powerful Drama Features John Mason and Alma Hanlon.

Glimpses of a millionaire's fairy-land kingdom on the historical Hudson river, including beautiful lawns and gardens surrounding this palace. One of the striking features in the powerful moral photodrama, "The Libertine," which comes to the Alta theater on Thursday for two days. This extraordinary film produced by the Triumph Film Corporation under the personal supervision of Julius Steger, contains many other remarkable scenes. Another striking feature is the scene of a moonlight party taken on board a $70,000 pleasure yacht, showing the beautiful shores of the Hudson along Riverside Drive, and the skyline of New York City in the distance.

The interior scenes in "The Libertine" are the most costly ever used in any photo drama produced. Scenes depicting the home of Jim Mills, the libertine, shows glimpses of an art gallery containing some of the most costly paintings and tapestries of famed European artists.
