

Painting Pictures of Clothes---

The artist has done his best with the brush and we have done our best with printer's ink to paint for you an accurate picture of Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes and their surprising merits.

We have said that they are all-wool with the qualities and the character which only all-wool can impart.

We have said that no detail is too small for the application of tailoring skill and thoroughness according to the Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes making code.

We have said that the makers and this store unite in a double pledge of your lasting satisfaction.

With that we have gone as far as the limitation of newspaper illustration and type will permit us to go.

What we want above all is for you to get—not a vague type picture, but a first hand actual picture of the clothes and their fit, their fashion, their feel upon your person. There is just one way to do that—come in and try them on. Our prices range from $17.50 to $30.00.

WEAKLY BULLDOGGER

MONDAY, APRIL 30, 1917.

She Had His Number.
Judge Marsh was figuring on going to Portland the other day on No. 17, and wanted to ascertain if his train was on time. He took down the telephone receiver to call the depot but, being preoccupied, forgot to give his number when central answered. Instead he asked the telephone girl, "How's 17?" She evidently recognized his voice for she answered, "Pretty good. How's 47?"

This Is No Time to Be on De-fence.
Rev. J. E. Snyder has been made vice chairman of the Council of De-fence. It seems incongruous to us for a patriotic organization to have a hyphenated office title or for a minister of the gospel to accept a position that is connected with vice.

He Must Be a Submarine.
"Which one of the military units do you belong to, the first, second or third?" someone asked Roy Ritner, whose age is as uncertain as a woman's.
"Neither," said he. "I belong to the Submerged Tenth."

The Operations of the K-9.
Bill Lowell owns a bulldog and the same has come to the notice of the Bulldogger. Since his master has joined the married men's military unit, the canine has developed the habit of attending drill. This, Bill says, shows him to be a regular dog of war though we believe the statement, like the dog, is mostly bull. Personally we believe the animal is of Teutonic origin. At least it has the instincts and habits of the kaiser, for last week it ruthlessly killed four Belgian hares. The brute ought to be interned, and Bill Roesch, who owned the hares, agrees with us.

Concerning the Judge's Drilling.
Editor Bulldogger:
I would like for you to explain through the columns of your weakly sheet why Judge Marsh reported Wednesday night for drill with the married men's unit. Also why did he break ranks when a couple of the girls of the Honor Guard appeared on the scene?

His Name Ought to Be George Baer.
The editor of the Bulldogger, along with other home-grown heroes, joined the citizen soldiery and reported for drill at the park yesterday morning. It chanced that we were stationed in a squad directly behind George Baer. At first the position was pleasing to us for it had distinct advantages. George is built on the massive style of architecture while our figure is of the string-bean design. Therefore, we would wobble over a good bit of ground and still be in line with him. Also in case of attack a bullet would have a pretty poor chance of seeking us out. However, it happened that the only thing trained upon the home guard yesterday was a moving picture camera and we might as well have been home for all the chance we had of appearing in the finished film.

Squabs and Dressing.
Several of the girls of the Honor Guard tried out for the positions of officers last week. Each was given a squad to drill. One of them went to give the command, "Squads—right, dress," and she gave it, "Squabs, dress right."

He Probably Heard Them Barking.
Rev. J. N. Cornelson suggests that Supt. Hayes build fences about the trees which he planted on the reservoir hill as, he says, he has seen certain indications that they are about to leave.

Pat Wanted Bloodshed.
The Irish are known as fighters and they don't want to waste any positions on an adversary. Pat Loneragan is an Irishman and the blood of his ancestors rebelled the other night when, during the drill of the second unit, he had put in a half hour at following the commands to turn his eyes to the right and fold his hands at parade dress. "Sir," he finally exploded to the officer, "can't you get out some of this pink tea stuff and get down to business?"

Let the Honor Guard Be On Her Guard.
It's hard to trust the Honor Guard in times of war's alarms. For she is used to yielding when she hears the call to arms.

The Only Gun in the Company.
Speaking of names in wartime, J. C. Gunn has enlisted in the married men's unit.

Dedicated to Our Local Kniters.
While up near the Canadian line last week, Ed Averill encountered a Canadian officer who told him that while the efforts of the ladies to do their bit by the boys at the front are very commendable, they are sometimes futile. As evidence he recited the following bit of verse composed by a soldier who had received a pair of knitted socks.

SICK WOMAN HAD CRYING SPELLS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

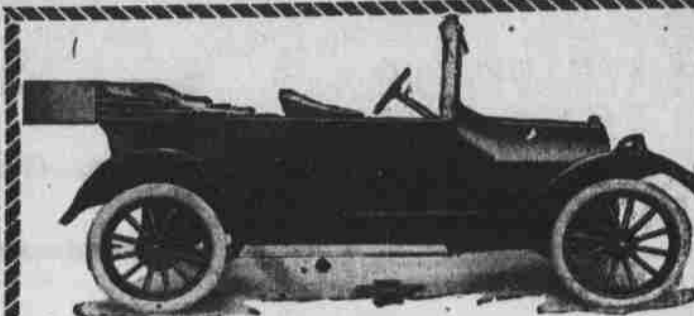

Enhaut, Pa.—"I was all run down and weak inwardly. I had female troubles and nervous feelings and my head bothered me. I would often have crying spells and feel as if I was not safe. If I heard any one coming I would run and lock the door so they would not see me. I tried several doctors and they did not help me so I said to my mother 'I guess I will have to die as there is no help for me.' She got me one of your little books and my husband said I should try one bottle. I stopped the doctor's medicine and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It soon made a change in me and now I am strong and do all my work."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS BAUGHMAN, Box 86, Enhaut, Pa.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?
If you would like free confidential advice address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Dear Lady—I received the socks, some fit, I use one for a hammock, the other for a mit, Some day I hope to see you, when I've done my little bit, But in the meantime tell me where in hell you learned to knit.

And the Emphasis Was on the Look- ing.
"Let's go down and take a look at the river," said a friend to Billy Clark the other day when the Umattilla was on a rampage.
"All right," said Billy, "I don't mind looking at water."

Help Wanted.
Wanted—A name for the married men's military unit. Someone called them the "Benedicts" the other day and raised a storm of protest because the word "benedict" doesn't have much standing in American history. Any name is barred that is suggestive of that old joke about married men being experienced in warfare. Already such connotative names as "Cradle Rockers," "Night Walkers," "Baby Tamers," and "Bill Footers" have been suggested but they are not

"Four-Ninety" Touring Car $635
F. O. B. PENDLETON.

The Chevrolet Four-Ninety Touring Car is a car of ideal economy. It gives you the most value for your money. The Chevrolet delivers the maximum power to the rear wheels. It accomplishes this feat through simplicity of mechanism. This compels directness of action. The result is more power and speed and less fuel and expense. The path of Chevrolet power is short and direct. The vaporized fuel enters directly into the valve-in-head motor. The impart of explosion strikes full against the piston head. It is an act of face-to-face co-operation. The fullness of the force is exerted immediately on the rear wheels. No fraction of a second or horse-power is unduly spent. The Upr power plant type of construction does the business. And the result is, of course, that you ride faster and farther on one gallon of gasoline in this particular model. That is economy. And that is what you will find in the Chevrolet Four-Ninety. We are the authorized agents for Pendleton and Umattilla county. Carload just received for immediate delivery.
