FEED BIG SEA GULL COLONY.

GREEN BAY, Wis., May 21.—The breaking up of the ice on Green Bay waters released for scavenger on the waters of the Great Lakes approximately 6000 gulls. The birds have found hibernating herabouts during the winter a profitable means of subsistence.

A few stray gulls discovered the dumping ground of fish waste cast away daily by fisheries when the ice first covered the bay last fall. The following day the gulls were augmented by thousands more.

Every afternoon about eight horse-heads of fish waste were dumped. Three minutes was the average time taken to consume a wagonload of waste.

WILL H. HAYS

To the young men of America, I appeal for a larger interest in the politics of the country. The young men of today are the burden bearers of tomorrow. On the shoulders of the young voters will very soon rest governmental problems measured only by the vastness of the country's future.

These difficulties must be met. This evolution is inevitable. Young men are trained to enter, and entering, strive to increase their proficiency in the professions, their ability as artisans and their success in business.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION IS THE BEST EVER

UMATILLA COUNTY RECEIVES "BLUE RIBBON" FOR HIGHEST AWARDS.

William Landrum of La Grande Elected Vice President of Eastern Oregon; Not a Mediocore Number on Program.

(By Rev. R. E. Gornall.) What is said to have been thus far the best eastern Oregon Sunday convention closed last night with enthusiastic interest.

Umatilla county received a "blue ribbon" indicative of highest awards. Saturday afternoon the election of the state officers occurred with the following results: Vice president of eastern Oregon, William Landrum of La Grande, Ore.; Executive committee members, M. H. Rice, Milton, Mrs. F. B. Farmer, Vale, Mrs. C. E. Woodson, Heppner.

Not a single mediocre number appeared upon the extensive program. Every vocalist and speaker hit the "home plate" in a cloud of dust, while the observers cheered. No one in Pendleton who attended the convention will doubt the bigness of the Sunday school business, if every speaker were given his or her due it would crowd out every vestige of advertisement in this issue.

Sunday came in bright and ambitious and portended good things. The church schools were well attended. The local pulpits were occupied by visitors. Harold F. Humbert of Eugene, preached at the Christian church; Dr. J. D. Springston at the Baptist; Marion Lawrence at the Presbyterian; and M. B. Paroungan at the Methodist. Not being omnipresent the writer only heard the latter pulpiteer, but he gave an unusually interesting and penetrating message. We rather surmise that in keeping with the spirit of the times yesterday's pulpit product values "went up."

Two Stars in Convention. The "stars" of the convention were Marion Lawrence and M. B. Paroungan. The burr on the tongue of the latter, with the quaint humor captivated the listener so that one forgot "notes" until the address was over. Then the uniqueness of the material, enhanced by the attractive personality made it impossible to in any degree reproduce the address. It gripped the soul and all that was left to live it out. That we think indicates true eloquence.

Marion Lawrence of course is recognized the world over as a teacher of teachers. We wish everyone not privileged to hear this remarkable man might read his messages but here we can only touch the barest outline.

His address on "The Teacher at His Best" was one of entire practical utility. There was no surplus verbiage for padding. He made an analogy using Christ as the model teacher. The shepherd qualities were emphasized in this fashion: "He must know his sheep." "He must know their names, peculiarities and needs." "They must know his voice and he must lead." With telling illustration Mr. Lawrence showed how the lessons could be made interesting and helpful. "How can you stop a boy from eating green apples?" "Give him ripe ones." Such were the many epigrammatic illustrations with which his lectures were illuminated.

"Sunday School Efficiency" was another theme of Mr. Lawrence. The world is eager for anyone who knows how. Why do multitudes go to Rochester, Minn.? Because the Mayo Bros. have a reputation for knowing how!

The teacher is more important than the material taught. When God wants to send a soul he puts another soul near it which is vibrating with spiritual vitality. Radiating manhood and woman is efficient teaching. Boys and girls first get acquainted with Christian people then with Christ.

The smile upon the face of our general secretary, Charles A. Phipps, to whom great credit is due, showed complacent satisfaction that the convention had been a great success.

MENT TO SMOKE OUT SPECULATORS.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Packers, wholesalers, retailers and the public—even speculators—have been invited by the city to attend a mass meeting Thursday.

"To smoke out speculators," John Garner, of the commission on public service, called the meeting. W. J. Henry, food crusader, is taking a hand in the campaign.

"Since our arrival yesterday," said Henry, "a wheat gambler told me if the lid hadn't been clamped on trading in wheat futures, wheat would have reached five dollars a bushel."

LABOR DEPARTMENT BILL WOULD GIVE SWEEPING POWERS. Creates U. S. Commission of Industrial Adjustment to Fix Wages and Hours of Labor in Interstate Transportation. WASHINGTON, May 21.—The labor department has presented a bill to congress creating a United States commission of industrial adjustment with sweeping powers to fix wages and hours of labor in interstate transportation. The bill is designed to eliminate strikes and lockouts. The proposed commission is composed of nine members, the president appointing with the consent of the senate. The bill gives drastic powers to intervene in labor wars. It has not attempted to deprive labor of the prerogative to cease work individually or collectively, or prevent employes from discharging men. By preventing the possibility of wages being increased, or a change in other laboring conditions it is thought the cause for strikes is removed. The proposals are similar to the recommendations the President made last February. HAS A BIG BURIAL BILL. Butte Mining Company Enters a Protest. HELENA, Mont., May 21.—Probably the largest bill ever presented by an undertaker to the state industrial accident board was filed yesterday by a Butte undertaker, who itemized $550.50 for burying one Michael Rozic a miner killed a few weeks ago, in a property at Butte. The bill was so large that the mining company wrote a letter in protest to the board stating that the average price of miners' funerals paid by companies in Butte is about $250.
