HOME READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS

LESSON NO. 16. ARMY INSIGNIA.

(Preceding lessons: 1. Your Post of Honor. 2. Making Good as a Soldier. 3. Nine Soldierly Qualities. 4. Getting Ready for Camp. 5. First Days in Camp. 6. Cleanliness in Camp. 7. Your Health. 8. Marching and Care of Feet. 9. Your Equipment and Arms. 10. Recreation in Camp. 11. Playing the Game. 12. Team Work in the Army. 13. Grouping Men into Teams. 14. The Team Leaders. 15. Fighting Arms of the Service. 16. Staff Branches of the Service. I. Staff Branches of the Service, II.) The uniform of the United States Army stands for democracy. It is almost the same for all ranks from private to commanding general—so much so, in fact, that it is often difficult to recognize a man's place in the service at first glance. But a closer view will tell the whole story to any experienced observer.

"Insignia" is the term used to include all the badges, buttons, braids, hat cords, and other devices which indicate these three things:

1. The rank of each officer or soldier. 2. His branch of the service or his special duty. 3. His personal experience or record.

An ordinary private's uniform carries no insignia of rank. When a man becomes a first-class private, however, in the Engineer Corps, Hospital Corps, Ordnance Department, Quartermaster Corps, or Signal Corps, he is entitled to wear on the sleeve of his coat and shirt the design of the department to which he belongs. A lance corporal wears on his sleeve an inverted V-shaped bar. A corporal has two bars, and a sergeant three bars. Below the sergeant's three V-shaped (inverted) bars may appear a number of additional marks, indicating his duties. For example, a first sergeant has a diamond-shaped mark; the stable sergeant has a device representing a horse's head; the color sergeant has a star; the battalion quartermaster sergeant has three horizontal bars; the chief trumpeter has one bar and a device representing a bugle; and so on. All the cloth designs, such as those just described, which are sewn on the sleeves, are known as "chevrons."

Insignia of Rank. Above the noncommissioned officers' rank is shown by various insignia on the shoulder loops of coats, on the sleeves of coats and overcoats, on the collars of shirts, and by hat cords. The most important are those made of metal and sewn on shoulder loops and shirt collars. A major general has two silver stars; a brigadier general, one silver star; a colonel, a silver eagle; a lieutenant colonel, a silver oak leaf; a major, a gold oak leaf; a captain, two silver bars; a first lieutenant, one silver bar. A second lieutenant has no shoulder insignia. You can really tell the rank of any officer by glancing at these metal insignia.

It is often quite necessary, however, to recognize that some one at a little distance is a commissioned officer in order that you may treat him with the courtesy due to all officers; in this case you look for the marks indicating that a man holds a commission without waiting to observe his exact rank. Until recently commissioned officers customarily wore leather leggings, while all enlisted men wore canvas leggings. However, leather leggings may not be worn by mounted men. The hat cord is another mark of rank which is easily observed; the hat cords of generals are gold; those of other officers are of gold and black. Another mark of an officer is a band of brown braid about 2 inches from the end of the coat sleeve. Officers of the General Staff Corps wear black braid instead of brown. On overcoats the braid is even on in loops except that of general officers, who wear two black bands of braid.

Every branch of the service has its special color which appears on the hat cords of enlisted men, on the chevrons of noncommissioned officers, and in many other places. These colors are: Infantry, light blue. Cavalry, yellow. Artillery, scarlet. Adjutant general's, inspector general's, and judge advocate general's departments, dark blue. Engineer Corps, scarlet interwoven with white. Signal Corps, orange interwoven with white. Medical Department, maroon. Quartermaster Corps, buff. Ordnance Department, black interwoven with scarlet.

By remembering these colors you will often be able easily to recognize men and troops. In addition to these colors, every branch of the service has its own device with all of which you will soon become familiar.

Regimental Insignia. The number of the regiment to which each man belongs is on the collar of his coat. All regimental numbers will run in three different series, showing whether each regiment was originally a part of the regular army, of the National Guard or of the new National Army. The number of regiments formerly of the Regular Army will begin with the figures 1 and run up to the figure 100; those of regiments formerly in the National Guard will begin with figures 101 and run up to 300; those of regiments in the new National Army will begin with figure 301. The former National Guard regiments will show also their former State designations, as for example, (1st Me.), (2d Pa.), etc. The device of regiments of the new National Army in the same way will show the State from which each organization, or the Reg. of N. G. was drawn as for example (W. Va.), (Mich.), etc. Thus you will easily be able to recognize not only the man's regiment but also the section of the country from which he comes and how he got into the service. Your insignia should have—and will have—a big and deep meaning for you. You will come to respect them and to wish to honor them. You will find that they are more to you than pieces of cord and cloth and metal. Behind you are the heroic deeds of thousands of men who performed duties similar to those you now perform. Your insignia stands for the bravery, the skill, and the self-sacrifice which your rank and your branch of the service demand.

CAPTAIN FAIRBANKS NOW

RICHARD M. FAIRBANKS

Richard M. Fairbanks, son of the former vice-president of the United States, has graduated from the officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison as a captain. He is a striking young fellow. He is almost as tall as his father, and very powerful. His Appropriation Asked. WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The shipping board requested congress to appropriate nine hundred and nineteen million dollars for building and equipping ships this year. If this is granted, the boards total this year will be two billion and two hundred and ninety million seven hundred and fifteen thousand dollars. Though they hate us more, the Germans really respect us more, now that we are belligerent, than when we were neutrals and too proud to fight.—San Francisco Chronicle.

LA GRANDE'S WATER SUPPLY IN DANGER FROM FOREST FIRES

La Grande, Or., Aug. 31.—(Special.)—La Grande's water supply is in grave danger from forest fires that are madly sweeping toward thousands of acres of bull pine forests on the watershed of the streams flowing into the La Grande waterworks reservoir. Tonight local business men rushed 50 soldiers of company L in automobiles under command of Captain Staffin, to the fire zone. At the last report tonight from the new and by far the worst blaze in Union County this year, the conflagration was rolling toward a mountain road that fringes the watershed and in less than two hours would be over the ridge and into the woods. Once there it seems impossible to stop the fire until it would reach the intake dam, and it is feared that the dam will give way under the pressure of heat from burning timber nearby. City, county, government and forest officers are deeply concerned. The firefighters were sent in by North Powder and, as the blaze is 45 miles away by mountain road, the soldiers would not be on the scene until late tonight. In the meantime the La Grande home guards are organized to give assistance.

The soldiers, if unable to cope with the situation, or if physically exhausted, are to be relieved by the two companies of home guards from this city. Mayor Coolidge called the battalion together tonight and every provision is made to hurry the members of the organization to the front in case of new crises.

The great danger from the fire, which is now burning over 400 acres of dense bull pine, is that it will destroy the forest of the watershed and contaminate the water supply. Other fires in the county are well under control. Not in ten years has the county been so seriously menaced by forest fires as right now.
