LIVE NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

CAMP LEWIS, Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 25.—Drafted men from Camp Lewis will be sent to camps where Utah and California guardsmen are now in training to bring the guardsmen regiments of those states up to war strength. The decision of the war department to fill out these regiments with Camp Lewis men will make it possible for Camp Lewis to accommodate the conscripts of this district without building more barracks. The cantonment is not large enough to house the 48,119 men ordered to report here.

The government is able to shift men from one camp to the other over western roads without added cost because most of the railroads are frank roads and must haul troops free.

California's "conscript guardsmen" will go direct to Charlotte, N. C., and the Utah men will go to Linda Vista, California.

John C. Daley, five years ago a jockey of international fame in sporting circles, is in training here. He explained today the government drafted him because he knows Berlin so well he can act as a guide when the Americans arrive at Berlin.

Tacoma will provide a soldier's club for men in training when they are in the city. The club will be fitted out with tables, chairs, billiard and pool tables, magazines and books and writing materials. It is estimated it will cost approximately $1,000 a month to maintain the club. Tacoma business men will meet the cost.

HOME MADE FRUIT BUTTERS.

Surplus Fruits May Be Conserved in This Way.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—As a final drive on fruit preserving the United States Department of Agriculture urges the making of home-made fruit butters. This is recommended not only to those who grow the fruit, but to those in the city who may take advantage of large supplies and cheap prices. In a great many cases it will be possible for city people to get from outlying farms fruit which might otherwise be wasted.

Various fruit butters recommended are apple butter with cider, apple butter without cider, apple butter with grape juice, apple butter with lemon, pear butter, peach butter, plum butter and cranberry butter made with plums and peaches. With the exception of a good preserving kettle very little equipment is needed for the preparation of such butters.

Apple Butter.

There is no better way to use good apples says the department, than to make them into butter. The sound portions of windfalls, wormy, and bruised apples may also be used. The better the apple the better the butter will be. In apple butter with cider either fresh sweet cider, or commercial sterilized cider should be used, after being boiled down to about half its original quantity. The peeled and sliced apples may be cooked in the boiled cider or they may be first made into apple sauce which is then cooked in cider. It usually takes about equal quantities of sweet cider and sliced apples to make butter of the right consistency. In other words, 2 gallons of sweet cider should be boiled down to 1 gallon, and 2 gallons of the prepared apples should be added to it either uncooked or as apple sauce. The two essentials of good apple butter are long, slow cooking—from 4 to 6 hours—and frequent stirring. If sugar is used, it should be added after the cooking is about two-thirds done. About 1 pound of sugar is the usual proportion for each gallon of apple butter but more or less may be used to suit the taste. The butter may be spiced with cinnamon, cloves and allspice, or with any one of the three, the spices being stirred in when the cooking is finished.

While still boiling hot the butter should be packed in sterilized glass receptacles, or in stone jars, with thorough precautions against spoiling as with any other preserves.

Without Cider.

Good apple butter may be made without cider. In this case enough water is added to make a thin apple sauce. Brown sugar rather than white sugar is ordinarily used. If a grape flavor is desired, it may be obtained by the use of grape juice in the proportion of 1 pound to each gallon of peeled and sliced apple. There should also be added a cup of brown sugar and 1-4 teaspoonful salt. When the desired thickness is obtained, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon is stirred in.

Pear butter is made like apple butter without the cider.

In making peach butter it is desirable to put the peaches into a wire basket and dip them in boiling water for a few seconds until the skin slips, then dip the peaches into cold water, peel them, and pit them. Well-ripened free-stone peaches are best. They should be mashed and cooked in their own juice without adding water, and if butter of a fine texture is wanted the pulp should be put through a colander or coarse wire sieve. To each measure of pulp add a half measure of sugar. Peach butter can be made also from dried or canned peaches. Lemon juice in the proportion of 1 lemon to 15 pounds of peaches may be added to give tartness.

Plum butter is made like peach butter except that the skins and pits are separated by rubbing the pulp through a colander or wire sieve after the plums have been cooked. Free-stone plums, however, may be treated exactly like peaches.

The Garfield butter is made of two-thirds plums and one-third peaches and needs rather more sugar than the plain peach butter.

Farmers' Bulletin 906, "Home-made Fruit Butters," which contains detailed directions for making various fruit butters, may be obtained free from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

NEW TRENCHES MAY BE CARRIED ABOUT BY HAND

QUANTICO, Va., Sept. 25.—Trenches that may be picked up bodily and moved around from place to place is the invention of United States Marines stationed here, who use this novel apparatus for practice in hand grenade throwing.

Sections, about 10 feet long, with a parapet that stands 3 feet above the head of the grenadier, form a skeleton framework of pipe, shaped similar to the regular trenches. Joles inside these portable trenches or "stalls" as the marines call them, the sea-soldiers hurl the grenades over the top and into other stalls, placed

GIRLS! MAKE A BEAUTY LOTION WITH LEMONS

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quart of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier by squeezing the juices of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothen and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is truly marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

about 50 feet away, to represent the enemy trenches. The practice grenades are non-explosive, but are of the same weight and size as those used by the allies. Long, rangy fellows prove to be the best throwers, as their greater reach helps them to develop the sweeping over head throw that experienced grenadiers use.
