ATTENTION CALLED TO RADICAL CHANGE MADE IN TAX LAWS

A radical change in the tax laws relating to liability for personal taxes was made by the last legislature but many people have forgotten it. By the change the tax against personal property becomes a lien. Assessor C. F. Strain explains it as follows: "When buying personal property the purchaser owes it to himself to make sure that the seller has paid all taxes on the property which is being sold. The personal property tax is due after March 1st and is payable to the assessor until the roll is turned to the collector, after which it is payable to the sheriff. The taxes need not be paid to the assessor except on demand of the assessor, while the roll is in the assessor's hand unless the owner sells it, in which case the buyer should demand that the taxes be paid; otherwise a lien will attach to the property and the buyer may have to pay the tax. The tax on personal property being distributed in any way by the courts must be paid ahead of creditors' heirs, or other claimants."

He suggested that he be given a three month's leave of absence and be paid a half year's salary in consideration for the cancellation of his contract. The board refused to pay more than three months salary, $500, and upon this basis, settlement was made. The superintendent accepted a check for $500, surrendered his contract and the motion relative to his suspension was erased from the records.

Asked to Resign Before. During the discussion it developed that efforts had been made by some of the directors to have him quietly resign early last summer because of what Director Rice last evening referred to as "a deep undercurrent of
