A SONNET.

Loving you so I loved the world entire,
Your friends, your kin, yea, all created life,
My heart seemed glowing with a holy fire
And every thought with tenderness rife.
I sought to lighten sorrows and to teach
Th' ecstasy of life to every being;
And prayed for greater usefulness to reach
And share my insight with each soul unseeing.
But since you went away from earth with death
I seem to have no feeling left to give,
Save sharp surprise toward all things that have breath
Which cries in wonderment "You live! You live!"
Ignoble satisfaction adds this "Oh,"
"To all, to all shall death come by and by."
—Poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

aticism. Their inability to hold the city, even with German aid, will lower their confidence in Teuton prowess and perhaps make them ready for a separate peace with the allies.

The capture of Jerusalem will become known throughout Germany and will not strengthen the kaiser's insane claim that he is the co-partner of God, etc., etc. It will encourage the allied soldiers who fight with determination because of the deep feeling that they battle for humanity and justice, with civilization itself dependent upon the triumph of Wilhelm's foes. They will see in the taking of Jerusalem a sign of triumph for those who fight to make the world safe for nations that place stress on such Christlike qualities as sympathy for those who suffer and fair play towards neighbors whether they be helpless or strong.

The war is approaching a crisis and it is a good omen that the allies now control the city made immortal by the man of Galilee whose doctrines are spat upon with scorn by the philosophers and warlords of Potsdam.

IS PORTLAND PROUD OF SUCH BUSINESS?

THE CAPTURE OF JERUSALEM

NOT important from a strictly military viewpoint the fall of Jerusalem is an event of real significance, carrying good cheer for the allies. The loss of the Holy City will dishearten the Turks who fight best when prodded with the goad of religious fandom. The capture of Jerusalem will become known throughout Germany and will not strengthen the kaiser's insane claim that he is the co-partner of God, etc., etc. It will encourage the allied soldiers who fight with determination because of the deep feeling that they battle for humanity and justice, with civilization itself dependent upon the triumph of Wilhelm's foes. They will see in the taking of Jerusalem a sign of triumph for those who fight to make the world safe for nations that place stress on such Christlike qualities as sympathy for those who suffer and fair play towards neighbors whether they be helpless or strong.

wide interest and astonishment that anti-liberty loan speeches are tolerated in the public library at Portland. The liberty loan was floated for the purpose of raising money, in the only practical way open for financing a war to defend the honor and welfare of the United States and to aid in saving the world from the degradation of Prussian conquest. Who ever talks against the financing of our part in the war attacks the very foundation of our war program. It is a line of effort most people will not tolerate and the East Oregonian wonders by what rules the Portland library is governed that it permits such meetings. Only a few weeks ago the Portland library permitted a militant suffrage meeting in its auditorium, the same meeting that was barred from the Umatilla county library and from the streets of Pendleton. As an upshot a few weeks later two Portland girls, recruited by the evangelist of disorder, were jailed at Washington for trying to picket the white house.

Do the people of Portland wish their institution used for such purposes? Are they proud that they gave aid and comfort to those who seek recruits for the brigade that annoys the President; are they proud of the story travelling the wires today and revealing that the rostrum of their library auditorium was used by an anti-liberty loan speaker?

No man remaining at home should hesitate for one part of a second to join the Red Cross, so if member getters ask your name and dollar during the Christmas membership campaign prepare to "come across," no matter how strong you may go in contributing to this cause you will always be a piker as compared to the boys who have "gone across."

The Russians will be anxious to climb into the band wagon some day but they may find it too late to obtain seats.

The auditorium of the Commercial church last evening in which some 100 of the city's most distinguished and prominent citizens and ladies, including Mrs. Nina Dean, gathered off the lamp.

A brilliant soprano left the track on the mountain the other day and in two minutes a young gentleman and a lady were thrown into the air without having a chance to say "good-bye."

Numbers of our soldiers are being taken from the front and held in the rear.

The ship of 2000 tons was sent by our people from Portland yesterday to purchase tickets in the Louisiana lottery. Speculation in this concern is carried on extensively in this section.

KAISER NO SUBJECT FOR RODIN'S CHISEL

Sculptor Refused to Make Bust of Wilhelm—Death Prevented One of Albert.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—It is just revealed here that the famous French sculptor Rodin, who was once asked to make a bust of the Kaiser, refused to do so. Friends proposed that he make it and although it was previous to the outbreak of the war, Rodin, who ever then hated Germany and everything German, refused to do the Kaiser's bidding. He had health ordered him to leave the country and that he was unable to give a definite answer.
